A Regulation to amend the law relating to forests, forest-produce and the duty leviable on timber in Assam.

WHEREAS it is expedient to amend the law relating to forests, forest-produce and the duty leviable on timber in Assam; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

CHAPTER I.

PRELIMINARY.

Title, extent and commencement.

1. (1) This Regulation may be called the Assam Forest Regulation, 1891.

(2) It extends to the whole of the territories for the time being administered by the Chief Commissioner of Assam:

Provided that the Local Government may, by notification in the official Gazette, exempt any place from the operation of the whole or any part thereof, and withdraw such exemption; and

(3) It shall come into force on such day as the Local Government, by notification in the official Gazette, directs.

(4) A notification under the proviso to sub-section (2) exempting a place from the operation of the whole or any part of the Regulation shall not affect anything done, or any offence committed, or any fine or penalty imposed, in such place before such exemption.

Repeal, and saving of rules and other proceedings.

II of 1878. 2. (1) On and from the day on which this Regulation comes into force, the Indian Forest Act, 1878, as amended by subsequent enactments, shall be repealed:

(2) But all acts done, proceedings had, appointments made, powers conferred, rules prescribed and notifications published under the said Indian Forest Act, 1878, or under any other law relating to matters for which this Regulation provides, shall, so far as they are not inconsistent with this Regulation, be deemed to have been respectively done, had, made, conferred, prescribed and published under this Regulation.

Definitions.

3. In this Regulation, and in all rules made thereunder, unless there is something repugnant in the subject or context,—

(1) "Forest-officer" means any person appointed by name or as holding an office by or under the orders of the Governor General in Council or the Local Government to be a Conservator, Deputy Conservator, Assistant Conservator, Sub-Assistant Conservator, Forest-ranger, Forester or Forest-guard, or to discharge any function of a Forest-officer under this Regulation or any rule thereunder:

(2) "tree" includes palms, bamboos, stumps, brushwood and canes:

(3) "timber" includes trees when they have fallen or have been felled, and all wood, whether cut up or fashioned or hollowed out for any purpose or not:

(4) "forest-produce" includes—

(a) the following, whether found in, or brought from, a forest or not, that is to say:—

timber, charcoal, caoutchouc, catechu, wood-oil, resin, natural varnish, bark, lac and myrabolams, and

(b) the following, when found in, or brought from, a forest, that is to say:—

(i) trees and leaves, and fruits and all other parts or produce not hereinbefore mentioned of trees,

(ii) plants not being trees (including grass, creepers, reeds and moss), and all parts or produce of such plants,

(iii) wild animals and skins, tusks, horns, bones, silk, cocoons, honey and wax, and all other parts or produce of animals, and

(iv) peat, surface-soil, rock and minerals (including limestone, laterite, mineral oils and all products of mines or quarries):

(5) "forest offence" means an offence punishable under this Regulation or any rule thereunder:

(6) "cattle" includes also elephants, buffaloes, horses, mares, geldings, ponies, colts, fillies, mules, asses, pigs, rams, ewes, sheep, lambs, goats and kids:

(7) "river" includes also streams, canals, creeks and other channels, natural or artificial:

(8) "land at the disposal of the Government" means land in respect of which no person has acquired—

(a) a permanent, heritable and transferable right of use and occupancy under any law for the time being in force; or

The Assam Forest Regulation, 1891.

(Chapter II.—Reserved Forests.—Sections 4-10.)

(b) any right created by grant or lease made or continued by, or on behalf of, the British Government: and (9) "Magistrate" means a Magistrate of the first or second class, and includes a Magistrate of the third class when he is specially empowered by the Local Government to try forest-offences.

CHAPTER II.

RESERVED FORESTS.

Power to constitute reserved forest.

4. The Local Government may constitute any land at the disposal of the Government a reserved forest in manner hereinafter provided.

Notification by Local Government of proposal to constitute a reserved forest.

5. (1) Whenever it is proposed to constitute any land a reserved forest, the Local Government shall publish a notification in the official Gazette—

(a) specifying as nearly as possible the situation and limits of such land;

(b) declaring that it is proposed to constitute such land a reserved forest; and

(c) appointing an officer (hereinafter called the Forest-settlement-officer) to inquire into and determine the existence, nature and extent of any rights claimed by, or alleged to exist in favour of, any person in or over any land comprised within such limits, and any claims relating to the practice within such limits of jhum-cultivation, and to deal with the same as provided in this Chapter.

(2) The Forest-settlement-officer shall ordinarily be a person other than a Forest-officer, but a Forest-officer may be appointed by the Local Government to assist the Forest-settlement-officer in the inquiry prescribed by this Chapter.

Proclamation by Forest-settlement-officer.

6. When a notification has been published under section 5, the Forest-settlement-officer shall publish in the language of the country, at the head-quarters of each district and subdivision in which any portion of the land comprised in such notification is situate, and in every town and village in the neighbourhood of such land, a proclamation—

(a) specifying as nearly as possible the situation and limits of the proposed forest;

(b) setting forth the substance of the provisions of the next following section;

(c) explaining the consequences which, as hereinafter provided, will ensue on the reservation of such forest; and

(d) fixing a period of not less than three months from the date of the publication of such proclamation, and requiring every person claiming any right or making any claim referred to or mentioned in section 5 either to present to such officer within such period a written notice specifying, or to appear before him within such period and state, the nature of such right or claim.

Bar of accrual of forest-rights after proclamation.

7. (1) During the interval between the publication of such proclamation and the date fixed by the notification declaring the forest to be reserved as hereinafter provided, no right shall be acquired in or over the land comprised in such notification, except by succession or under a grant or contract in writing made or entered into by, or on behalf of, the Government or some person in whom such right or power to create such right was vested when the proclamation was published; and on such land no new house shall be built or plantation formed, no fresh clearings for cultivation or for any other purpose shall be made, and no trees shall be cut for the purpose of trade or manufacture except as hereinafter provided.

(2) Nothing in this section shall be deemed to prohibit any act done with the permission in writing of the Forest-settlement-officer, or any clearings lawfully made for jhum cultivation by persons in the habit of practising such cultivation on such land.

Inquiry by Forest-settlement-officer.

8. (1) The Forest-settlement-officer shall take down in writing all statements made under section 6, and shall inquire into all claims made under that section, and the existence of any right or practice mentioned in section 5 in respect of which no claim is made.

(2) The Forest-settlement-officer shall at the same time consider and record any objection which the Forest-officer, if any, appointed under section 5 to assist him, may make to any such claim or with respect to the existence of any such right or practice.

Powers of Forest-settlement-officer.

9. For the purposes of such inquiry the Forest-settlement-officer may exercise—

(a) power to enter, by himself or any officer authorized by him for the purpose, upon any land, and to survey, demarcate and make a map of the same; and (b) the powers of a Civil Court in the trial of suits.

Treatment of claims relating to practice of jhum-cultivation.

10. (1) In the case of a claim relating to the practice of jhum-cultivation the Forest-settlement-officer shall record a statement setting forth the particulars of the claim and of any local rule or order under which the practice is allowed or regulated, and submit the statement to the Local Government, together with his opinion as to whether the practice should be permitted or prohibited wholly or in part.

The Assam Forest Regulation, 1891.

(Chapter II.—Reserved Forests.—Sections 11-14.)

(2) On receipt of the statement and opinion the Local Government may make an order permitting or prohibiting the practice wholly or in part.

(3) If such practice is permitted wholly or in part, the Forest-settlement-officer may arrange for its exercise—

(a) by altering the limits of the land under settlement so as to exclude land of sufficient extent, of a suitable kind and in a locality reasonably convenient for the purposes of the claimants, or

(b) by causing certain portions of the land under settlement to be separately demarcated, and giving permission to the claimants to practise jhum-cultivation therein under such conditions as he may prescribe.

All arrangements made under this sub-section shall be subject to the previous sanction of the Local Government.

(4) The practice of jhum-cultivation shall in all cases be deemed to be a privilege subject to control, restriction and abolition by the Local Government, and not to be a right.

Power to acquire land over which right is claimed.

11. (1) In the case of a claim to a right in or over any land other than the following rights, namely:—

(a) a right of way,

(b) a right to a watercourse or to use of water,

(c) a right of pasture or to forest-produce, the Forest-settlement-officer shall pass an order specifying the particulars of such claim and admitting or rejecting the same wholly or in part.

(2) If such claim is admitted wholly or in part, the Forest-settlement-officer may—

(x) come to an agreement with the claimant for the surrender of the right, or

(y) exclude the land from the limits of the proposed forest, or X of 1870.

(z) proceed to acquire such land in the manner provided by the Land Acquisition Act, 1870.

(3) For the purpose of so acquiring such land—

(i) the Forest-settlement-officer shall be deemed to be a Collector proceeding under the Land Acquisition Act, 1870;

(ii) the claimant shall be deemed to be a person interested and appearing before him in pursuance of a notice given under section 9 of that Act;

(iii) the provisions of the preceding sections of that Act shall be deemed to have been complied with; and

(iv) the Collector, with the consent of the claimant, may award compensation in land, or in money, or partly in land and partly in money.

Order on claims to rights of way, water-course or pasture, or to forest-produce.

12. (1) In the case of a claim to a right of a kind specified in clause (a), clause (b) or clause (c) of section 11, sub-section (1), the Forest-settlement-officer shall pass an order specifying the particulars of such claim and admitting or rejecting the same wholly or in part.

(2) When a claim to any such right is admitted, if the right is for the beneficial enjoyment of any land or building, the Forest-settlement-officer shall record the designation, position and area of such land or the designation and position of such building.

(3) Where the right is a right to forest-produce, the Forest-settlement-officer shall record whether the forest-produce obtained by the exercise of such right may be leased, sold or bartered, and such other particulars as may be necessary in order to define the nature, incidents and extent of the right.

Provision for rights of pasture or to forest-produce admitted.

13. (1) When the Forest-settlement-officer has admitted wholly or in part and recorded under the last foregoing section a claim to a right of pasture or to forest-produce, he shall as far as possible provide for the exercise of such right—

(a) by altering the limits of the proposed reserved forest so as to exclude land of sufficient extent, of a suitable kind and in a locality reasonably convenient for the purposes of the claimant, or

(b) by recording an order continuing to the claimant a right of pasture or to forest-produce, as the case may be, subject to such rules as may be prescribed by the Local Government.

(2) An order passed under clause (b) of sub-section (1) shall record, as far as practicable,—

(i) where the right is a right of pasture, the number and description of the cattle which the claimant is from time to time entitled to graze, and the local limits within which, and the seasons during which, such pasture is permitted, and

(ii) where the right is a right to forest-produce, the quantity of such produce which the claimant is authorised to take or receive, and the local limits within which, the season during which, and the mode in which, the taking or receiving of such produce is permitted, and,

(iii) whether the right is a right of pasture or a right to forest-produce, such other particulars as may be required in order to define the extent of the right which is continued, the mode in which it may be exercised and the extent to which the benefit thereof may be leased, sold or bartered.

Commutation of such rights.

14. Whenever any right of pasture or to forest-produce admitted under section 12 is not provided for in one of the ways prescribed in section 13, the Forest-settlement-officer shall, subject to such rules as the Local Government may prescribe in this behalf, commute such right by paying a sum of money in lieu thereof, or, with the consent of the claimant, by the grant of land, or in such other manner as such officer thinks fit.

The Assam Forest Regulation, 1891.

(Chapter II.— Reserved Forests.—Sections 15-23.)

Appeal from order passed under foregoing sections.

15. Any person who has made a claim under this Chapter may, within three months from the date of any order passed on such claim by the Forest-settlement-officer under section 11, 12, 13 or 14, present an appeal from such order to such officer of the Revenue Department, of rank not lower than that of a Deputy Commissioner, as the Local Government may, by notification in the official Gazette, appoint by name, or as holding an office, to hear appeals from such orders.

Appeals under the last foregoing section.

16. (1) Every appeal under the last foregoing section shall be made by petition in writing and may be delivered to the Forest-settlement-officer, who shall forward it without delay to the officer competent to hear the same.

(2) Every such appeal shall be heard in the manner prescribed for the time being for the hearing of appeals in matters relating to revenue, and, except as hereinafter provided, the order passed on the appeal shall be final.

Notification declaring forest reserved.

17. (1) When the following events have occurred, namely :—

(a) the period fixed under section 6 for preferring claims has elapsed, and all claims, if any, made within such period have been disposed of by the Forest settlement-officer, and

(b) if such claims have been made, the period fixed by section 15 for appealing from the orders passed on such claims has elapsed, and all appeals, if any, presented within such period have been disposed of by the appellate officer, and

(c) all lands, if any, to be included in the proposed reserved forest which the Forest-settlement-officer has, under section 11, elected to acquire under
70. the Land Acquisition Act, 1870, have become vested in the Government under that Act, the Local Government may publish a notification in the official Gazette, specifying the limits of the forest which it is intended to reserve and declaring the same to be reserved from a date fixed by such notification.

(2) From the date so fixed such forest shall be deemed to be a reserved forest.

Extinction of rights not claimed.

18. Rights in respect of which no claim has been preferred under section 6 and of the existence of which no knowledge has been acquired by inquiry under section 8 shall thereupon be extinguished, unless, before the publication of such notification, the person claiming them has satisfied the Forest-settlement-officer that he had sufficient cause for not preferring such claim within the period fixed under section 6.

Publication of translation of such notification in neighbourhood of forest.

19. The Deputy Commissioner of the district in which the forest is situate shall, before the date fixed by such notification, cause a translation thereof in the language of the country to be published in the manner prescribed for the proclamation under section 6.

Power to revise arrangement made under section 13 or 16.

20. The Local Government may, within five years from the publication of any notification under section 17, revise any arrangement made under section 13 or 16, and may rescind or modify any order made under this Chapter, and direct that any one of the proceedings specified in section 13 be taken in lieu of the other of such proceedings, or that a right admitted under section 12 be commuted in the manner mentioned in section 14.

Acquisition of rights over reserved forests.

21. No right of any description shall be acquired in or over a reserved forest, except by succession or under grant or contract in writing made by, or with the previous sanction of, the Governor General in Council, or some person in whom such right, or the power to create such right, was vested when the notification under section 17 was published.

Alienation of rights in reserved forests.

22. (1) Notwithstanding anything herein contained no right continued under section 13 shall be alienated by way of grant, sale, lease, mortgage or otherwise without the previous sanction of the Local Government :

Provided that, when any such right is continued for the beneficial enjoyment of any land or building, it may be sold or otherwise alienated with such land or building without such sanction.

(2) The benefit of any right continued under section 13 shall not be leased, sold or bartered except to the extent defined by the order recorded under that section.

Power to stop ways and watercourses in reserved forests.

23. Any Forest-officer may, from time to time, with the previous sanction of the Local Government or of a Forest-officer or other officer authorised by the Local Government in this behalf, stop any public or private way or watercourse in a reserved forest :

Provided that for the way or watercourse so stopped another way or watercourse which, in the opinion of the Local Government, is equally convenient already exists or has been provided or constructed by the Forest-officer stopping the way or watercourse.

The Assam Forest Regulation, 1891.

(Chapter II.—Reserved Forests.—Sections 24-28. Chapter III.—Village Forests.—Sections 29-30.)

Penalties for trespass or damage in reserved forests.

24. Any person who in a reserved forest—

(a) trespasses, or pastures cattle, or permits cattle to trespass, or

(b) causes any damage by negligence in felling any tree or cutting or dragging any timber, or

(c) poisons water or, in contravention of any rules made by the Local Government, hunts, shoots, fishes or sets traps or snares, shall be punished with fine which may extend to fifty rupees, or, when the damage resulting from his offence amounts to more than twenty-five rupees, to double the amount of such damage.

Acts prohibited in such forests.

25. Any person who—

(a) makes any fresh clearing prohibited by section 7, or

(b) sets fire to a reserved forest, or, in contravention of any rules made by the Local Government, kindles any fire, or leaves any fire burning, in such manner as to endanger such a forest, or who, in any such forest,—

(c) kindles, keeps or carries any fire except at such seasons and in such manner as a Forest-officer specially empowered in this behalf may from time to time notify, or

(d) fells, cuts, girdles, marks, lops, taps or injures by fire or otherwise any tree, or

(e) quarries stone, burns lime or charcoal, or collects, subjects to any manufacturing process or removes any forest-produce, or

(f) clears or breaks up any land for cultivation or any other purpose, shall be punished with imprisonment for a term which may extend to six months, or with fine which may extend to five hundred rupees, or with both.

Acts excepted from sections 24 and 25.

26. Nothing in section 24 or section 25 shall be deemed to prohibit—

(a) any practice of jhum-cultivation permitted under section 10, or

(b) the exercise, in accordance with the rules, if any, made by the Local Government under section 13, of any right continued under that section, or

(c) the exercise of any right created by grant or contract in the manner described in section 21, or

(d) any act done with the permission in writing of a Forest-officer specially empowered to grant such permission.

Penalty for offences committed by persons having rights in reserved forests.

27. Whenever fire is caused wilfully or by gross negligence in a reserved forest by any person having rights in such forest or permission to practise jhum-cultivation therein, or by any person in his employment, or whenever any person having rights in such forest contravenes the provisions of section 22, the Local Government may, notwithstanding the infliction of any punishment under this Regulation, direct that in such forest, or any specified portion thereof, the exercise of all or any of the rights of pasture or to forest-produce shall be extinguished, or for such period as it thinks fit be suspended, and, with respect to the practice of jhum-cultivation, may take such action under section 10, sub-section (4), as may seem to it to be proper.

Power to declare forests no longer reserved.

28. (1) The Local Government, with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, may, by notification in the official Gazette, direct that, from a date to be fixed by such notification, any forest, or any portion thereof, reserved under this Regulation shall cease to be reserved.

(2) From the date so fixed such forest or portion shall cease to be reserved, but the rights, if any, which have been extinguished therein shall not revive in consequence of such cessation.

CHAPTER III.

VILLAGE-FORESTS.

Constitution of village-forests.

29. (1) The Local Government may, by notification in the official Gazette, constitute any land at the disposal of the Government a village-forest for the benefit of any village-community or group of village-communities, and may in like manner vary or cancel any such notification.

(2) Every such notification shall specify the limits of such village-forest.

Power to make rules for village-forests.

30. (1) The Local Government may make rules for regulating the management of village-forests, prescribing the conditions under which the community or group of communities for the benefit of which any such forest is constituted may be provided with forest-produce or with pasture, and their duties in respect of the protection and improvement of such forest.

(2) The Local Government may by such rules declare any of the provisions of Chapter II of this Regulation to be applicable to village-forests.

The Assam Forest Regulation, 1891.

(Chapter III.—Village-forests.—Section 31. Chapter IV.—General Protection of Forests and Forest-produce.—Sections 32-36. Chapter V.—Duty on imported Forest produce.—Sections 37-38.)

Inquiry into, and settlement of, rights.

31. All claims to any rights other than the rights of the village-community or group of village-communities for the benefit of which such village-forest is constituted shall be inquired into, recorded and provided for in the manner prescribed by Chapter II of this Regulation.

CHAPTER IV.

GENERAL PROTECTION OF FORESTS AND FOREST-PRODUCE.

Reserved trees in unsettled tracts.

32. The Local Government may, by notification in the official Gazette,—

(a) declare that any trees or any specified class of trees standing on any land at the disposal of the Government shall, from a date to be fixed by such notification, be reserved trees;

(b) vary or cancel any such notification.

Protection of reserved trees.

33. No person shall fell, cut, girdle, mark, lop, tap or injure by fire or otherwise any reserved tree, except in accordance with rules made by the Local Government in this behalf or as provided by the last section of this Chapter.

Protection of unsettled forests belonging to the Government.

34. (1) No person shall make use of any forest-produce of any land at the disposal of the Government and not included in a reserved forest or village-forest, except in accordance with rules to be made by the Local Government in this behalf, or as provided by the last section of this Chapter.

(2) Such rules may, with respect to such land,—

(a) regulate or prohibit the cutting of jhums or the issue of grants or leases on behalf of the Government;

(b) regulate or prohibit the kindling of fires, and prescribe the precautions to be taken to prevent the spreading of fires;

(c) regulate or prohibit the felling, cutting, girdling, marking, lopping, tapping or injuring by fire or otherwise of any trees, the sawing, conversion and removal of timber, and the collection and removal of other forest-produce;

(d) regulate or prohibit the quarrying of stone, the boiling of catechu or the burning of lime or charcoal;

(e) regulate or prohibit the cutting of grass and pasturing of cattle, and regulate the payments, if any, to be made for such cutting or pasturing;

(f) prohibit the poisoning of water, and regulate or prohibit hunting, shooting and fishing, and the setting of traps or snares;

(g) regulate the sale or free grant of forest-produce; and

(h) prescribe, or authorise any Forest-officer to prescribe, subject to the control of the Local Government, the fees, royalties or other payments for forest-produce, and the manner in which such fees, royalties or other payments are to be levied, whether in transit, or partly in transit or otherwise.

(3) The Local Government may exempt any person or class of persons, or any local area, from the operation of any such rule, and may cancel such exemption.

Penalties.

35. (1) If any person infringes the provisions of section 33, he shall be punished with imprisonment for a term which may extend to six months, or with fine which may extend to five hundred rupees, or with both.

(2) The Local Government may, by a rule under section 34, attach to the breach of any rule under that section any punishment not exceeding that mentioned in sub-section (1).

Nothing in this Chapter to prohibit acts done in certain cases.

36. Nothing in this Chapter, or in any rule under this Chapter, shall be deemed to prohibit any act done in the exercise of any right or with the permission in writing of a Forest-officer specially empowered to grant such permission.

CHAPTER V.

DUTY ON IMPORTED FOREST-PRODUCE.

Power to impose duty on forest-produce.

37. (1) The Local Government may, with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, levy a duty, in such manner, at such places and at such rates as it may prescribe by notification in the official Gazette, on all forest-produce which is brought into the territories to which this Regulation extends from any place beyond those territories.

(2) In every case in which such duty is directed to be levied ad valorem, the Local Government may, by like notification, determine the manner in which the value is to be ascertained.

Power to exempt forest-produce from duty.

38. The Local Government may exempt any forest-produce from the duty to which it is liable under the last foregoing section, and revoke such exemption.

The Assam Forest Regulation, 1891.

(Chapter V.—Duty on imported Forest-produce.—Section 39. Chapter VI.—Control of Forest-produce in Transit.—Sections 40-41.)

Provisions of Chapter not to limit purchase-money or royalty.

39. Nothing in this Chapter shall be deemed to limit the amount, if any, chargeable as purchase-money or royalty in respect of any forest-produce.

CHAPTER VI.

CONTROL OF FOREST-PRODUCE IN TRANSIT.

Power to make rules to regulate transit of forest produce.

40. (1) The control of all rivers and their banks as regards the floating of timber, as well as the control of all forest-produce in transit by land or water, is vested in the Local Government, and that Government may make rules to regulate the transit of any forest-produce.

(2) Such rules may, among other matters,—

(a) prescribe the routes by which alone forest-produce may be imported into, exported from or moved within the territories to which this Regulation extends;

(b) prohibit the import, export, collection or moving of forest produce without a pass from an officer authorised to issue the same, or otherwise than in accordance with the conditions of such pass;

(c) provide for the issue, production and return of such passes;

(d) fix, or authorise any Forest-officer subject to the control of the Local Government, to fix, the fees payable for such passes;

(e) in the case of timber formed into a raft or fastened to the shore, prohibit the loosening or the setting adrift of such timber by any person not the owner thereof or not acting on behalf of such owner or of the Government;

(f) provide for the stoppage, reporting, examination and marking of forest-produce in transit, in respect of which there is reason to believe that any money is payable to the Government, or to which it is desirable, for the purposes of this Regulation, to affix a mark;

(g) establish revenue-stations to which forest-produce is to be taken by the persons in charge of it for examination, or for the realization of such money, or in order that such mark may be affixed to it, and prescribe, or authorise a Forest-officer subject to such control as aforesaid to prescribe, the conditions under which forest-produce is to be brought to, stored at and removed from such revenue-stations;

(h) provide for the management and control of such revenue-stations, and for regulating the appointment and duties of persons employed thereat;

(i) authorise the transport of timber across any land, and provide for the award and payment of compensation for any damage done by the transport of such timber;

(j) prohibit the closing up or obstruction of the channel or banks of any river used for the transit of forest-produce, and the throwing of grass, brushwood, branches or leaves into any such river, or any other act which tends to cause the obstruction of such channel;

(k) provide for the prevention and removal of any obstruction in the channel or on the banks of any such river, and for recovering the cost of such prevention or removal from the person causing such obstruction;

(l) prohibit absolutely, or subject to conditions, within specified local limits, the establishment of sawpits, the converting, cutting, burning, concealing, marking or supermarking of timber, the altering or effacing of any marks on the same, and possession or carrying of marking-hammers or other implements used for marking timber; and

(m) regulate the use of property-marks for timber and the registration of such marks, authorise the refusal or cancellation of the registration of any property-marks, prescribe the time for which the registration of property-marks is to hold good, limit the number of such marks which may be registered by any one person, and provide for the levy of fees for such registration.

(3) The Local Government may direct that any rule made under this section shall not apply to any specified class of timber or other forest-produce or to any specified local area.

Penalties for breach of rules under the last foregoing section.

41. (1) The Local Government may, by a rule under the last foregoing section, attach to the breach of any rule under that section any punishment not exceeding imprisonment for a term which may extend to six months, or fine which may extend to five hundred rupees, or both.

(2) In cases where the offence is committed after sunset and before sunrise or after preparation for resistance to the execution of any law or any legal process, or where the offender has been previously convicted of a like offence, the convicting Court may inflict double the penalty prescribed for such offence.

The Assam Forest Regulation, 1891.

(Chapter VI.—Control of Forest-produce in Transit.—Section 42. Chapter VII.—Collection of Drift, Stranded and other Timber.—Sections 43-48.)

All persons bound to aid in case of accident at revenue-station.

42. In case of any accident or emergency involving danger to any property at a revenue-station established under a rule made under section 40, every person employed at such revenue-station, whether by the Government or by any private person, shall render assistance to any Forest-officer or Police-officer demanding his aid in averting such danger and securing such property from damage or loss.

CHAPTER VII.

COLLECTION OF DRIFT, STRANDED AND OTHER TIMBER.

Certain kinds of timber to be deemed the property of the Government until title thereto proved.

43. (1) Timber falling under any of the following descriptions, namely :—

(a) timber found adrift, beached, stranded or sunk,

(b) timber bearing marks which have not been registered under rules made under section 40,

(c) timber which has been supermarked, or on which marks have been obliterated, altered or defaced by fire or otherwise, and

(d) in such areas as the Local Government directs, all unmarked timber, shall be deemed to be the property of the Government unless and until any person establishes his right thereto as provided in this Chapter.

(2) Such timber may be collected by any Forest-officer or other person entitled to collect the same, and may be brought to such stations as a Forest-officer specially empowered in this behalf may from time to time notify as stations for the reception of drift timber.

(3) The Local Government may, by notification in the official Gazette, exempt any class of timber from the provisions of this section and withdraw such exemption.

Notice to claimants of timber of those kinds.

44. (1) Public notice shall from time to time, as occasion may require, be given by a Forest-officer specially empowered in this behalf of timber collected under the last foregoing section.

(2) Such notice shall contain a description of the timber, and shall require any person claiming the same to present to such officer, within a period not less than one month from the date on which such notice is given, a written statement of such claim.

Procedure on claim preferred to such timber.

45. (1) When any such statement is presented as aforesaid, the Forest-officer may, after making such inquiry as he thinks fit, either reject the claim after recording his reasons for so doing or deliver the timber to the claimant.

(2) If such timber is claimed by more than one person, the forest-officer may either deliver the same to any of such persons whom he deems entitled thereto, or may refer the claimants to the Civil Court and retain the timber pending the receipt of an order from such Court for its disposal.

(3) Any person whose claim has been rejected under this section may within three months from the date of such rejection institute a suit to recover possession of the timber claimed by him, but no person shall recover any compensation against the Government or against any Forest-officer on account of such rejection, or the detention or removal of any timber or the delivery thereof to any other person under this section.

(4) No such timber shall be subject to process of any Civil Court until it has been delivered or a suit brought under this section has been decided.

Disposal of unclaimed timber.

46. Where no statement is presented in the manner and within the period prescribed by notice issued under section 44, or, where such statement having been so presented and the claim rejected, the claimant omits to institute a suit to recover possession of such timber within the further period mentioned in section 45, the ownership of such timber shall vest in the Government free from all incumbrances or, when such timber has been delivered to another person under section 45, in such other person free from all incumbrances not created by him.

Payments to be made by claimant before timber is delivered to him.

47. No person shall be entitled to recover possession of any timber collected or delivered as aforesaid until such sum as may be due for salving, collecting, moving, storing and disposing of the timber has been paid by him to the Forest-officer or other person entitled to receive the sum.

Power to make rules and prescribe penalties.

48. (1) The Local Government may make rules to regulate the following matters, namely :—

(a) the salving, collection and disposal of all timber mentioned in section 43 ;

(b) the use and registration of boats used in salving and collecting timber ;

(c) the amount to be paid for salving, collecting, moving, storing and disposing of such timber ; and

The Assam Forest Regulation, 1891.

(Chapter VIII.—Penalties and Procedure.—Sections 49-57.)

(d) the use and registration of hammers and other implements to be used for marking such timber.

(2) The Local Government may, by a rule under this section, attach to the breach of any rule under this section any punishment not exceeding imprisonment for a term which may extend to six months, or fine which may extend to five hundred rupees, or both.

CHAPTER VIII.

PENALTIES AND PROCEDURE.

Seizure of property liable to confiscation.

49. (1) When there is reason to believe that a forest-offence has been committed in respect of any forest-produce, such produce, together with all tools, boats, carts and cattle used in the commission of such alleged offence, may be seized by any Forest-officer or Police-officer.

(2) Every officer seizing any property under this section shall place on such property, or the receptacle, if any, in which it is contained, a mark indicating that the same has been so seized, and shall, as soon as may be, make a report of such seizure to the Magistrate having jurisdiction to try the person accused of the offence on account of which the seizure has been made:

Provided that, when the forest-produce with respect to which such offence is believed to have been committed is the property of the Government and the offender is unknown, it shall be sufficient if the officer makes, as soon as may be, a report of the circumstances to his official superior.

Procedure on receipt by Magistrate of report of seizure.

50. Upon the receipt of any such report, the Magistrate shall take such measures as may be necessary for the trial of the accused and the disposal of the property according to law.

Forest-produce, tools, &c., when liable to confiscation.

51. (1) When any person is convicted of a forest-offence, all forest-produce which is not the property of the Government, and in respect of which such offence has been committed, and all tools, boats, carts and cattle used in the commission of such offence, shall be liable by order of the convicting Court to confiscation.

(2) Such confiscation may be in addition to any other punishment prescribed for such offence.

Disposal on conclusion of trial for forest-offence of produce in respect of which it was committed.

52. When the trial of any forest-offence is concluded, any forest-produce in respect of which such offence has been committed shall, if it is the property of the Government or has been confiscated, be taken possession of by a Forest-officer specially empowered in this behalf, and, in any other case, shall be disposed of in such manner as the Court may order.

Procedure when offender is not known or cannot be found.

53. (1) When the offender is not known or cannot be found, the Magistrate enquiring into the offence, if he finds that an offence has been committed, may, on application in this behalf, order the property in respect of which the offence has been committed to be confiscated and taken possession of by a Forest-officer specially empowered in this behalf, or to be made over to such Forest-officer or other person as the Magistrate may consider entitled to the same:

Provided that no such order shall be made till the expiration of one month from the date of the seizure of such property, or without hearing the person, if any, claiming any right thereto, and the evidence, if any, which he may produce in support of his claim.

(2) The Magistrate shall either cause a notice of any application under sub-section (1) to be served upon any person whom he has reason to believe to be interested in the property seized, or publish such notice in any way which he may think fit.

Procedure as to perishable property seized under section 49.

54. The Magistrate may, notwithstanding anything hereinbefore contained, direct the sale of any property seized under section 49 and subject to speedy and natural decay, and may deal with the proceeds as he might have dealt with such property if it had not been sold.

Appeal from orders under sections 51, 52 and 53.

55. Any person claiming to be interested in property seized under section 49 may, within one month from the date of any order passed by a Magistrate under section 51, section 52 or section 53, present an appeal therefrom to the Court to which orders made by such Magistrate are ordinarily appealable, and the order passed on such appeal shall be final.

Vesting of confiscated property in the Government.

56. When an order for the confiscation of any property has been passed under section 51 or section 53, and the period limited by section 55 for presenting an appeal from such order has elapsed, and no such appeal has been presented, or when, on such an appeal being presented, the Appellate Court confirms such order in respect of the whole or a portion of such property, such property or portion, as the case may be, shall vest in the Government free from all incumbrances.

Saving of power to release property seized.

57. Nothing hereinbefore contained shall be deemed to prevent any Forest-officer or other officer empowered in this behalf by the Local Government from directing at any time the immediate release of any property seized under section 49 which is not the property of the Government and the withdrawal of any charge made in respect of such property.

The Assam Forest Regulation, 1891.

(Chapter VIII.—Penalties and Procedure.—Sections 58-64.)

Punishment for wrongful seizure.

58. (1) Any Forest-officer or Police-officer who vexatiously and unnecessarily seizes any property on pretence of seizing property liable to confiscation under this Regulation shall be punished with imprisonment for a term which may extend to six months, or with fine which may extend to five hundred rupees, or with both.

(2) Any fine so imposed, or any portion thereof, shall, if the convicting Court so direct, be given as compensation to the person aggrieved by such seizure.

Penalty for counterfeiting or defacing marks on trees and timber and for altering boundary-marks.

XLV of 1860.

59. Whoever, with intent to cause damage or injury to the public or to any person, or to cause wrongful gain as defined in the Indian Penal Code,—

(a) knowingly counterfeits upon any tree or timber a mark used by Forest-officers to indicate that such tree or timber is the property of the Government or of some person, or that it may lawfully be felled or removed by some person, or

(b) unlawfully affixes to any tree or timber a mark used by Forest-officers, or

(c) alters, defaces or obliterates any such mark placed on any tree or timber by or under the authority of a Forest-officer, or

(d) alters, moves, destroys or defaces any boundary-mark of any forest or waste land to which any provisions of this Regulation apply, shall be punished with imprisonment for a term which may extend to two years, or with fine, or with both.

Power to arrest without warrant.

60. (1) Any Forest-officer or Police-officer may, without orders from a Magistrate and without a warrant, arrest any person reasonably suspected of having been concerned in any forest-offence punishable with imprisonment for one month or upwards, if such person refuses to give his name and residence, or gives a name or residence which there is reason to believe to be false, or it there is reason to believe that he will abscond.

(2) Every officer making an arrest under this section shall, without unnecessary delay, take or send the person arrested before a Magistrate having jurisdiction in the case or to the officer in charge of the nearest police-station.

Power to prevent commission of offence.

61. It shall be the duty of every Forest-officer and Police-officer to prevent, and any such officer may interfere for the purpose of preventing, the commission of any forest offence.

Power to compound offences.

62. (1) The Local Government may, by notification in the official Gazette, empower a Forest-officer by name, or as holding an office,—

(a) to accept from any person against whom a reasonable suspicion exists that he has committed any forest-offence, other than an offence specified in section 58 or section 59, a sum of money by way of compensation for the offence which such person is suspected to have committed ; and,

(b) when any property has been seized as liable to confiscation, to release the same on payment of the value thereof as estimated by such officer.

(2) On the payment of such sum of money, or such value, or both, as the case may be, to such officer, the suspected person, if in custody, shall be discharged, the property, if any, seized shall be released, and no further proceedings shall be taken against such person or property.

(3) No Forest-officer shall be empowered under this section unless he is a Forest-officer of a rank not inferior to that of a Forest-ranger, and is in receipt of a monthly salary amounting to at least one hundred rupees : and the sum of money accepted as compensation under sub-section (1), clause (a), shall in no case exceed the sum of fifty rupees.

Presumption in favour of forest-produce belonging to the Government.

63 When in any proceedings taken under this Regulation, or in consequence of anything done under this Regulation, a question arises as to whether any forest-produce is the property of the Government. such produce shall be presumed to be the property of the Government until the contrary is proved.

Compensation for damage caused by commission of offences.

64. (1) When any person is convicted of felling, cutting, girdling, marking, lopping or tapping trees or of injuring them by fire or otherwise, in contravention of this Regulation or of any rule thereunder, the convicting Court may, in addition to any other punishment which it may award, order that person to pay to the Government such compensation, not exceeding ten rupees for each tree with respect to which the offence was committed, as it may deem just.

(2) If the person convicted of the offence committed it as the agent or servant of another person, the convicting Court may, unless after hearing that other person it is satisfied that the commission of the offence was not a consequence of his instigation, or of any neglect or default on his part, order him, instead of the person who committed the offence, to pay the compensation referred to in sub-section (1).

(3) An appeal from any order under sub-section (1) or sub-section (2) shall lie to the Court to which orders made by the convicting Court are ordinarily appealable, and the order passed on such appeal shall be final.

The Assam Forest Regulation, 1891.

(Chapter VIII.—Penalties and Procedure.—Section 65. Chapter IX.—Cattle-trespass.—Sections 66-67. Chapter X.—Forest-officers.—Sections 68-71. Chapter XI.—Supplemental Provisions.—Section 72.)

Forfeiture of leases.

65. When the holder of any lease, license or contract whatsoever granted or continued by or on behalf of the Government for any of the purposes of this Regulation commits an offence against this Regulation or any rule thereunder, or when any such offence is committed by any agent or servant of the holder of any such lease, license or contract, and the Local Government is satisfied that the commission of the offence was a consequence of the instigation of such holder or of any neglect or default on his part, the Local Government may, by order in writing, declare the lease, license or contract to be forfeited in whole or in part with effect on and from a date to be specified in the order not being prior to the date of the commission of the offence.

CHAPTER IX.

CATTLE-TRESPASS.

Cattle-trespass Act, 1871, to apply.

66. Cattle trespassing in a reserved forest or in a village-forest shall be deemed to be cattle doing damage to a public plantation within the meaning of section 11 of the Cattle-trespass Act, 1871, and may be seized and impounded as such by any Forest-officer or Police-officer. I 1871.

Power to alter fines fixed by that Act.

67. The Local Government may, by notification in the official Gazette, direct that, in lieu of the fines fixed by section 12 of the Act last aforesaid, there shall be levied for each head of cattle impounded under section 66 of this Regulation such fines as it thinks fit, but not exceeding the following, namely:—

| | R a. p. |
| For each elephant . . . . | 10 0 0 |
| For each buffalo . . . . | 2 0 0 |
| For each horse, mare, gelding, pony, colt, filly, mule, bull, bullock, cow or heifer . . . . . . | 1 0 0 |
| For each calf, ass, pig, ram, ewe, sheep, lamb, goat or kid . . | 0 8 0 |

CHAPTER X.

FOREST-OFFICERS.

Investiture of Forest-officers with certain powers.

68. (1) The Local Government may invest any Forest-officer by name, or as holding an office, with all or any of the following powers, namely:—

(a) power to enter upon any land and to survey, demarcate and make a map of the same;

(b) the powers of a Civil Court to compel the attendance of witnesses and the production of documents;

(c) power to issue search-warrants under the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1882; X of 1882.

(d) power to hold inquiries into forest-offences, and in the course of such inquiries to receive and record evidence;

(e) power to notify the seasons and manner in which fire may be kindled, kept or carried in a reserved forest;

(f) power to grant any permission referred to in sections 26 and 36;

(g) power to notify stations for the reception of drift timber;

(h) power to give public notice of timber collected under section 43;

(i) power to take possession of property under this Regulation;

(j) power to direct the release of property or withdrawal of charges;

and may withdraw any power so conferred.

(2) Any evidence recorded under clause (d) of sub-section (1) shall be admissible in any subsequent trial before a Magistrate of the alleged offender:

Provided that it has been taken in the presence of the accused person and recorded in the manner provided by section 355, section 356 or section 357 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1882.

Forest-officers deemed public servants.

69. All Forest-officers shall be deemed to be public servants within the meaning of the Indian Penal Code. XLV of 1860.

Indemnity for acts done in good faith.

70. No suit or criminal prosecution shall lie against any public servant for anything done or omitted by him in good faith under this Regulation.

Forest-officers not to trade.

71. No Forest-officer shall, as principal or agent, trade in forest-produce, or be or become interested in any lease or mortgage of any forest, or in any contract for working any forest, whether in British or foreign territory.

CHAPTER XI.

SUPPLEMENTAL PROVISIONS.

Additional powers to make rules.

72. The Local Government may make rules consistent with this Regulation—

(a) to declare by what Forest-officer or class of Forest-officers the powers or duties conferred or imposed by or under this Regulation on a Forest-officer are to be exercised or performed;

(b) to regulate the procedure of Forest-settlement-officers;

The Assam Forest Regulation, 1891.

(Chapter XI.—Supplemental Provisions.—Sections 73-79.)

(c) to regulate the rewards to be paid to officers and informers from the proceeds of fines and confiscations under this Regulation or from the public treasury; and,

(d) generally, to carry out the provisions of this Regulation.

Rules when to have force of law.

73. All rules made by the Local Government under this Regulation shall be published in the official Gazette, and shall thereupon have the force of law.

Persons bound to assist Forest-officer and Police-officer.

74. Every person who exercises any right in a reserved forest or village-forest, or who is permitted to remove any forest-produce from, or to pasture cattle or practise jhum-cultivation in, such forest; and every person who is employed by such person in such forest, and every person in any village contiguous to such forest who is employed by the Government, or who receives emoluments from the Government for services to be performed to the community, shall be bound to furnish, without unnecessary delay, to the nearest Forest-officer or Police-officer any information which he may possess respecting the occurrence of a fire in or near such forest, or the commission of, or intention to commit, any forest-offence, and shall assist any Forest-officer or Police-officer demanding his aid—

(a) in extinguishing any fire occurring in such forest;

(b) in preventing any fire which may occur in the vicinity of such forest from spreading to such forest;

(c) in preventing the commission in such forest of any forest-offence; and,

(d) when there is reason to believe that any such offence has been committed in such forest, in discovering and arresting the offender.

Recovery of money due to the Government.

75. All money, other than fines, payable to the Government under this Regulation, or under any rule made thereunder, or on account of the price of any forest-produce, or of expenses incurred in the execution of this Regulation in respect of any forest-produce, may, if not paid when due, be recovered under the law for the time being in force as if it were an arrear of land-revenue.

Lien on forest-produce for such money.

76. (1) When any such money is payable for, or in respect of, any forest-produce, the amount thereof shall be deemed to be a first charge on such produce, and such produce may be taken possession of by a Forest-officer specially empowered in this behalf and may be retained by him until such amount has been paid.

(2) If such amount is not paid when due, such Forest-officer may sell such produce by public auction, and the proceeds of the sale shall be applied first in discharging such amount.

(3) The surplus, if any, if not claimed within two months from the date of the sale by the person entitled thereto, shall be forfeited to the Government.

Government and its officers not liable for loss or damage in respect of certain forest-produce.

77. The Government shall not be responsible for any loss or damage which may occur in respect of any forest-produce while at a revenue-station established under a rule made under section 40, or while detained elsewhere for the purposes of this Regulation, or in respect of any timber collected under section 43; and no Forest-officer shall be responsible for any such loss or damage unless he shall have caused the same negligently, maliciously or fraudulently.

Land required under this Regulation to be deemed to be needed for a public purpose.

78. Whenever it appears to the Local Government that any land is required for any of the purposes of this Regulation, such land shall be deemed to be needed for a public purpose within the meaning of section 4 of the Land Acquisition Act, 1870. X of 1870.

Recovery of penalties due under bond.

79. When any person, in compliance with any rule under this Regulation, binds himself by any instrument to perform any duty or act, or covenants by any instrument that he, or that he and his servants and agents, will abstain from any act, the whole sum mentioned in such instrument as the amount to be paid in case of a breach of the conditions thereof may, notwithstanding anything in section 74 of the Indian Contract Act, 1872, be recovered from him in case of such breach as if it were an arrear of land-revenue. IX of 1872.

ORGANIZATION.

NATIVE ARMY.

No. 8.—The Governor-General in Council is pleased to sanction the reconstitution of two more regiments of Madras native infantry for service in Burma.

2. The corps selected for reconstitution are the 30th and 31st Regiments of Madras Infantry, which, on re-formation, will be designated, respectively—

"THE 30TH REGIMENT (5TH BURMA BATTALION) OF MADRAS INFANTRY."

"THE 31ST REGIMENT (6TH BURMA BATTALION) OF MADRAS (LIGHT) INFANTRY."

3. These corps will be formed—the one from the existing Pyinmana Battalion of Military Police (six companies) supplemented by two companies of the Katha-Magwe Military Police Battalion, and the other from the existing Shwebo Battalion of Military Police (eight companies).

4. The existing material of the 30th and 31st Regiments of Madras Infantry will be mustered out, and the Native officers, non-commissioned officers and men now serving in these corps will be transferred to other regiments or pensioned or discharged in the manner hereinafter stated.

5. These corps as now reconstituted will ordinarily be stationed in Burma, but will be recruited for general service.

6. The strength of each corps will be as follows, organized in eight companies :—

1 Commandant.
2 Wing Commanders (the senior to be 2nd-in-Command).
5 Wing officers (of whom one will be Adjutant and one Quartermaster).
1 Medical Officer.
8 Subadars (one of whom will be Subadar-Major).
8 Jemadars (one of whom will be Native Adjutant).
41 Havildars (including one Havildar-Major).
40 Naicks.
16 Drummers or buglers.
720 Sepoys.

7. The British officers will be selected by the Commander-in-Chief, Madras, as far as possible from volunteers from the Madras Army, but those now serving with the police corps about to be transferred to the army, if they belong to another presidency, may receive suitable appointments in the reconstituted corps for a period of three years, should it be desired to retain their services with them, and if they are willing to remain.

8. The rule (Article 266, clause (a), Army Regulations, India, vol. I, part I) requiring commandants to vacate on completion of seven years' tenure will not for the present be applied to the commandants of the corps now reformed.

9. The pay and allowances of the British officers of these corps will be the same as those allowed for native infantry generally, but, in consideration of the circumstances of local service in Burma, each British officer will receive in addition a local allowance of Rs. 100 per mensem, and will also be eligible for the indulgence of three months' privilege leave in each year.

10. The British officers of these corps belonging to the Madras army will be eligible for general staff employment in the same way as all other officers of that army. They will be subject to the same rules as regards exchanges and transfers as the officers of the four Burma battalions already formed.

11. Probationers for the Indian Staff Corps may be appointed direct to these corps in succession to vacancies, without first going through a course of duty with other regiments of the Madras Army.

12. The native officers, non-commissioned officers and men now serving in the police battalions above named will be eligible to continue serving in the corps on their conversion on the terms now laid down.

13. The following rates of pay are sanctioned for the native ranks of the corps, viz. :—

Pay as laid down for Madras in Army Regulations, India, vol. I, part II, articles 45-C and 68-D, plus the following monthly Burma allowance in lieu of batta allowed to Madras troops in Burma (vide article 109-A of the same Regulations):

| | R |
|---|---|
| Subadar-Major | 50 |
| Subadar | 30 |
| Jemadar | 15 |
| Havildar | 7-8 |
| Naick | 6 |
| Drummer, Bugler, and Sepoy | 2 |

The Burma local allowance will be admitted to native officers, non-commissioned officers and men of the Burma battalions of Madras Infantry during all authorised leave or furlough taken by them, whether in India or in Burma.

14. Good-conduct pay will be given as laid down in articles 85 and 86 of the Regulations above quoted.

15. The conditions of service as regards enlistment, kit money, clothing, half mounting, discharge, pensions, and free quarters will be the same as those sanctioned for the four Burma battalions already formed.

16. Former service in the police battalions and in the army will count towards the period of service required for the grant of good-conduct pay and pension.

17. All ranks, including native officers, will be granted free rations as in Army Regulations, India, vol. V, para. 522.

18. Furlough and leave will be granted under the regulations in force in the Bengal Army.

19. The indulgences conceded to the military police in regard to families will be continued on the transfer of these companies of military police to the Madras Army, viz. :—

(a) Native officers will be permitted to take their families to Burma on payment of half passage money.

(b) Twenty per cent. of havildars, 20 per cent. of naicks, and 5 per cent. of drummers, buglers, and sepoys will be allowed a similar indulgence free of cost.

(c) Free accommodation will be provided for families to the above extent.

The term "families" is held to apply to wives and children only.

20. Soldiers serving in the battalions as now re-formed will be liable to transfer to any other local Burma battalions to which these corps may hereafter be linked, as the exigencies of the service may require.

21. The classes of which the 30th and 31st (Burma) Regiments of Madras Infantry are composed will be notified hereafter.

22. The Native officers, non-commissioned officers and men now serving in the 30th and 31st Regiments of Madras Infantry will cease to be borne on the rolls thereof from the 31st January, 1892, and will be disposed of as follows:

(a) Native officers, non-commissioned officers and men who have served for pension for 25 years and upwards will be transferred to the pension establishment on the superior rate of pension of their rank, irrespective of the period they may have served therein, plus rice compensation.

(b) Native officers, non-commissioned officers and men of 15 years' service and upwards will be transferred to the pension establishment on the ordinary pension of their rank (irrespective of the period they may have served therein), plus rice compensation, with the option, in the case of drummers, buglers, and privates who have not completed 21 years' service, of being transferred to other regiments.

(c) Native officers, non-commissioned officers and men of more than 10 and less than 15 years' service will be transferred to the pension establishment on two-thirds of the ordinary rate of pension of their rank (irrespective of the period they may have served therein), plus rice compensation, with the option, in the case of drummers, buglers, and privates, of being transferred to other regiments.

(d) Non-commissioned officers and men of more than 5 years' and less than 10 years' service will have the option of transfer to other regiments, and, in the case of privates only, of joining the active reserve. Such as elect for discharge from the service, or for transfer to the active reserve, will receive a gratuity of one month's pay (including good-conduct pay) for each year of service.

(e) Non-commissioned officers and men of less than 5 years' service will have the option of being transferred to other regiments, or, in the case of privates only, of joining the active reserve.

23. The restriction as to the number of men (160) to be permitted to join the active reserve of any one battalion is suspended in regard to the 30th and 31st Madras Infantry.

24. The present reservists of the battalions to be reconstituted will be allowed the option of joining the reserves of the battalions linked to these corps under their former organization, or of taking their discharge.

25. The mess, band, and other property of the 30th and 31st Madras Infantry, together with the colors of these corps, will remain with the regiments as reconstituted.

OFFICE OF THE RESIDENT IN MYSORE AND CHIEF COMMISSIONER OF COORG.

NOTIFICATION.

Dated Bangalore, the 23rd December, 1891

No. 3975—303-91.—The following rules submitted by the Inspector of Schools for the institution of two public examinations styled the Primary and Lower Secondary examinations, have been approved by the Resident in Mysore and Chief Commissioner of Coorg, and are hereby published for general information:—

PRIMARY EXAMINATION.

Name of examination.

An examination to be styled the Primary examination, shall be held annually in Coorg in the months of April and May at such centres as shall be found convenient and in the Civil and Military Station of Bangalore in June.

Objects of examination.

2. The objects of this examination are (1) to test the fitness of candidates for the lower grades of the public service, (2) to provide a final test for Upper Primary schools, (3) to institute a test for the promotion of pupils from Primary to Secondary schools.

To whom open.

3. The examination shall be open to:—

(1) Pupils in the fourth class of all government aided and other recognized schools, to be called "Pupil candidates."

(2) Teachers in government aided and other recognized schools, to be called "Teacher candidates."

(3) All other persons, to be called "Private candidates," of any age if in government or municipal service, or below the age of 25, if not so employed.

Note 1.—Pupil candidates must be certified by the Head Master or Head Mistress of the school to which they belong, to have been in regular attendance in that or some other recognized school from the month of June in the year preceding that in which the examination is held and to have paid all fees due from them to the school.

Note 2.—Pupils in the fourth class of government and aided schools must (unless specially exempted by the Educational Inspector) pass this examination to be eligible for promotion to a Lower Secondary school or department.

Qualification for government service.

4. In Coorg, no one will be, after the 1st of April 1892, admitted to any government appointment of the value of less than R 15 per mensem, who has not passed this or the Lower Secondary or some higher examination.

Test for entrance to a Normal school and for pupil teachers.

5. This examination will, in Coorg, be the entrance examination for the Normal school and the test for candidates for employment as pupil teachers in government schools.

Examination how conducted.

6. The examination shall be conducted by a committee consisting of a chairman and members who will be appointed by the Chief Commissioner of Coorg and Resident in Mysore.

Subjects of examination.

7. The following are the subjects of examination:—

Compulsory.

First language A or B.

A. English.
B. Vernacular, Kanarese, Tamil, Telugu, Hindustani.

I. Reading with Recitation, Language, Grammar.

Passed candidates.

10. A candidate may come up and pass in the compulsory portion alone, and enter for one or more of the optional subjects at subsequent examinations, but no candidate shall be admitted to the examination in any of the optional subjects alone until he has passed the compulsory ones, and no candidate shall be considered or declared to have passed the Primary examination until he shall have passed in the three compulsory branches and in any two of the optional subjects. Such candidates shall be called " Primary passed candidates."

Classification of passed candidates.

11. Passed candidates, as defined above, shall be arranged in two classes:—

i. The first consisting of those who have obtained not less than one-half of the maximum marks in each of the three compulsory subjects, and three-fifths of the maximum marks in each of the two optional subjects.

ii. The second consisting of those who have obtained not less than one-third of the maximum marks in each of the three compulsory subjects, and two-fifths of the maximum marks in each of the two optional subjects.

Failure in compulsory subjects.

12. A candidate failing in any of the compulsory subjects—failing, that is, to get one-third of the marks in each of the three compulsory subjects, shall be considered to have failed completely and must undergo examination again in all the three compulsory subjects.

Failure in optional subjects.

13. A candidate failing in one or more optional subjects shall not be required to undergo examination again in any of the compulsory subjects, but, to complete the test, is required to pass only in the optional subjects in which he failed. Candidates completing their qualifications for a first class, Article 11, shall be classed in that class in the year in which they complete their qualifications. A candidate who brings up both compulsory and optional subjects at the same examination, and who fails in the former, but passes in the latter, will be allowed to count his success in the optional subjects at a subsequent examination, when he comes up again in the compulsory ones.

Passed candidates eligible to appear again.

14. A "passed candidate," as defined in Article 11, may come up again at any subsequent examination in any one or more of the optional subjects, or in any language in which he may not have already passed.

Issue of certificates.

15. Certificates signed by the Chairman of the Board, by whom the examination was conducted, shall be issued to "passed candidates," as described in Article 11. Such certificates shall be in a prescribed form and specify the language and subjects in which the candidate passed.

Applications how and when to be made.

16. Applications for admission to the examination shall be made before the 31st of January, preceding the examination, on printed forms which may be obtained in Bangalore at the office of the Inspector of schools, and in Coorg at the office of the Deputy Inspector of schools. They shall be addressed to the Chairman of the Board by whom the normal lists will be prepared and the necessary arrangements made for the examination.

REDUCTION IN THE PRICE OF THE PURE SULPHATE OF QUININE

Manufactured at the Bengal Government Cinchona Plantation.

On and after 1st April, 1891, the price of this Quinine will be as follows :—

| | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| 1 pound tin, | R16, | or post free, | | R16-12. |
| ½ | „ | R 8, | „ | R 8-8. |
| ¼ | „ | R 4, | „ | R 4-8. |

Analysis shows this Quinine to be of the purest manufacture ; and it is guaranteed to be free from wilful mixture with the inferior alkaloids Cinchonine and Cinchonidine. It is for sale only to Government officers, and only for cash, and may be had from the Superintendent, Botanic Garden, Seebpore, near Calcutta. It can be had either white or coloured pink.

বঙ্গদেশের গবর্ণমেণ্টের সিন্‌কোনা আবাদে প্রস্তুত বিশুদ্ধ কুইনাইনের মুল্য কম করণ

১৮৯১ সালের এপ্রেল মাসের ১লা তারিখ অবধি এই কুইনাইনের নিম্নলিখিত মূল্য হইবে, যথা—

| | | |
|---|---|---|
| ১ এক পৌণ্ড টিন . | ১৬, বা ডাকমাশুল বিনা | ১৬৷৹ |
| ½ আধ „ „ | ৮, বা ডাকমাশুল বিনা | ৮৷৹ |
| পিকি „ „ | ৪, বা ডাকমাশুল বিনা | ৪৷৹ |

THE INDIAN LAW REPORTS.

PUBLISHED UNDER AUTHORITY.

The Indian Law Reports, published under the authority of the Governor-General in Council, appear in monthly parts, published as soon as possible after the first of each month, at Calcutta, Madras, Bombay, and Allahabad, and comprise four series,—one for the Calcutta High Court, a second for the Madras High Court, a third for the Bombay High Court, and a fourth for the Allahabad High Court. The cases heard by the Privy Council on appeal from each High Court are reported in the series for that High Court. Cases heard by the Privy Council on appeal from Provinces in India not subject to any High Court are reported in the Calcutta Series.

The Calcutta Series is distributed by the Bengal Secretariat, and the Madras, Bombay and Allahabad Series are distributed direct from Madras, Bombay and Allahabad, respectively.

In supersession of the previous advertisements, on and from the 1st January, 1889, the terms of subscription and sale will be as follows for current issues as well as for back numbers of the Reports from 1870:—

Terms of subscription payable annually in advance.

REVENUE DEPARTMENT.

[Revised Advertisement.]

A Dictionary of the Economic Products of India.

BY DR. GEO. WATT, C.I.E.,

Reporter on Economic Products.

Published under the authority of the Government of India in the Revenue and Agricultural Department.

The first five volumes of the Dictionary are now ready at the Office of Superintendent of Government Printing, No. 8, Hastings Street, Calcutta, and will be supplied to non-subscribers on receipt of the price for the complete set, which is R45 in India, and 3 guineas in England (exclusive of the Index, for which a separate charge will be made): packing and postage, in India, 8 annas per volume; for England, 2 rupees 6 annas per volume. For copies bound in half calf or half morocco, R6 and 8 shillings respectively will be charged extra for the whole set.

The Dictionary is intended to deal with the products of India—animal, vegetable, and mineral; each product being treated after a uniform plan, the paragraphs of which give the scientific, vernacular, and European names; habitat or source; history; properties and uses (both chemical and industrial); trade statistics; markets, etc. The work is arranged alphabetically according to scientific nomenclature, but commercial and important vernacular names are also given as cross references, so that little difficulty need be experienced in finding the account of a product even when its scientific name is unknown to the reader.

An important feature of the Dictionary consists in the fact that derived information is in every instance given under quotation marks, and with a reference to the original publication. Numerous contributors have, however, furnished the results of new discoveries, and confirmed the vernacular names, so that the Dictionary is not only a complete compilation of published information, but has been brought abreast of the most recent inventions and discoveries.

Volume I contains the letters A and B, and consists of 559 royal octavo pages; Volume II embraces the letter C in 689 pages; Volume III contains the letters D, E, F, and half of G; Volume IV, latter half of G to middle of L, and Volume V contains the latter half of L to end of O. The whole work will, it is expected, be completed in seven volumes during the current year, but an eighth volume may also be issued, consisting of an Index to all the vernacular and other names contained in the Dictionary. The Index will practically be a glossary of the vernacular and European names of the plants, animals, and minerals of India, and, as such, will be a work of reference, which, it is hoped, may prove of considerable value.

REVENUE AND AGRICULTURAL DEPARTMENT.

Weather Review of India for the week ending at 8 a.m. on Saturday, December 19th, 1891.

Over the greater part of India the strongly marked anticyclonic conditions which have prevailed for so long have held steadily, but in the Bay conditions have been somewhat unsettled and the weather has been disturbed by a cyclonic storm which passed from the Carnatic coast north-eastward across the Bay.

On the 13th pressure was high and uniform over a large part of North-Western India, while readings were low over the extreme south of the Indian region. Off the Carnatic coast over the south-west of the Bay a small depression existed which was giving strong cyclonic winds in that region and heavy rain to the South Madras coast. Except in the extreme south there was no rain in any part of the Indian region. On the 14th conditions were generally unchanged. Readings were high and uniform in the north-west and the cyclonic storm was still shown over the south-west of the Bay. Rain continued to fall in South Madras and the winds were strong and cyclonic. A slight shower was also reported from Akyab. By the morning of the 15th the depression had travelled out into the centre of the Bay. Rain had almost ceased in Madras and the winds had fallen lighter, while, on the contrary, the force had risen at Diamond Island. Showers continued at Akyab. On the 16th the barometer was falling in Burma, while it was rising on the west side of the Bay. The wind force at Diamond Island had still further increased and rain was extending in Burma. High uniform pressures continued over North-Western and Central India and rain had quite ceased in the Carnatic. The chart of the 17th showed no important change, but the low pressure over the Bay was evidently filling up. The winds were, however, still strong in Lower Burma and rain was falling at several stations. On the 18th also there was no change of importance except that the barometer was falling in Madras and rain had recommenced while it had almost ceased in Burma. On the 19th a fresh low pressure area was shown over the south-west of the Bay and rain was falling in South Madras. Elsewhere there was no important change.

Temperature.—The temperature variations of the past week have been generally small. The following table shows the variations of temperature from the normal average on each day of the week for the principal provinces of India:—

| PROVINCE. | 13th. | 14th. | 15th. | 16th. | 17th. | 18th. | 19th. | Mean variation of week. |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Burma . . . . | +2·5 | +1·2 | +0·5 | −2·0 | −2·0 | −2·3 | −0·3 | −0·3 |
| Bengal and Assam . | +0·1 | 0 | +0·4 | +1·1 | +2·2 | +3·0 | +2·9 | +1·4 |
| North-Western Provinces and Oudh . . . . | −1·9 | −0·9 | −0·8 | −0·3 | +0·4 | +1·0 | +1·3 | −0·2 |
| Punjab . . . . | +0·7 | −0·2 | +0·6 | +0·8 | +1·1 | +0·9 | −0·6 | +0·5 |
| Bombay . . . . | +1·3 | +2·5 | +1·5 | −0·8 | −1·0 | 0 | +1·4 | +0·7 |
| Berar and Central Provinces | −2·8 | −1·1 | −0·6 | −0·6 | 0 | +0·8 | +1·4 | −0·4 |
| Guzerat and Central India . | −2·6 | −1·7 | +0·2 | −1·0 | −0·2 | +0·8 | +1·8 | −0·4 |
| Sind and Rajputana . . | −0·6 | +0·4 | +0·8 | +1·4 | +1·3 | +2·1 | +2·2 | +1·1 |
| Madras . . . . | +1·8 | +1·2 | +1·4 | +1·5 | +2·6 | +3·0 | +4·9 | +2·3 |
| MEAN FOR WHOLE INDIA . | −0·2 | +0·2 | +0·4 | 0 | +0·5 | +1·0 | +1·7 | +0·5 |

The mean decimal variation for the whole of India was only + 0·05°. For the first five days of the week the variations were very small and variable, but on the 18th and 19th there was a slight excess. The provincial variations also show considerable irregularities. Bengal, the Punjab, Bombay, Sind, Rajputana, and Madras exhibited an excess and the other provinces a deficiency. The only province in which the variation was large, was Madras, where there was an excess of 2·3°.

Rain.—As mentioned in the earlier paragraphs, the only regions in which rain of any importance fell were Burma and the south of the Peninsula, and only in the south of the East Coast and in Malabar did the average fall of the whole week for the district equal one inch. In all other parts of India there was no rain. There were thus twelve districts which received rain and thirty-eight which reported no rain. Of the twelve divisions which received rain, four had an average fall for the week of less than one-tenth of an inch, four had an average fall of between 0·1 inch and 0·5 inch, two had an average fall of between 0·5 inch and 1 inch, and two had a fall of over 1 inch. The only divisions in which there was any excess, compared with the normal fall of the week, were the Burma divisions and the East Coast, central and south, and it was only in the south of the East Coast that the excess was at all large.

With the exception of Alleppy, which received 5 inches, Nellore which received 3 inches, Trivellore (Chingleput) which received 5¼ inches, Wandiwash (North Arcot) which received 4⅝ inches, the sudder station (South Arcot) which received 9 inches, and Mayavaram (Tanjore) which received 10 inches, there were no heavy falls of rain.

The only change in the state of the seasonal rainfall is that over the greater part of the country, the deficiency is somewhat more marked. The Burma divisions, Cachar, Orissa, Malabar, the East Coast (south), and Madras (south) exhibit an excess and all the other divisions a deficiency. In parts of the North-Western Provinces, Khandeish, Berar, the west of the Central Provinces, Guzerat, Sind, and Rajputana, there has been absolutely no rain since October the 18th.

REVENUE AND AGRICULTURAL DEPARTMENT.

Weekly Report on the state of the Season and Prospects of the Crops.

Madras.—For week ending 26th December.—Rainfall heavy in parts of South Arcot, Tanjore, Trichinopoly, Madura, and Tinnevelly; fair in remainder of southern districts except parts of Coimbatore, Salem, and North Arcot; light showers in parts of Nellore, Cuddapah, and Cumbum taluk of Kurnool, which have done some good; no rain elsewhere. No material change in prospects. Prices nearly stationary in southern districts, slight fall in North Arcot, risen slightly elsewhere and sharply in Vizagapatam. Works:—Numbers employed—Chingleput 1,403, Wandiwash 103, Polur 240, Kalahasti 2,432, Coimbatore 3,034, Salem 3,915, Kurnool 3,278, Anantapur 459, and Bellary 2,607, total 17,501 against 18,501 last week. In Cuddapah this week 889. Decrease in Bellary due to enforcement of tasks which are said to be too severe. Kitchens:—numbers fed mostly women and children—Chingleput 21, Wandiwash 461, Polur 118, Kalahasti, 634, Coimbatore 250, Salem 336, and Kurnool 1, 8, total 1,958, decrease from last week 227. Kitchens being closed in North Arcot, Chingleput, and Coimbatore. Loans disbursed up to date: For construction and repairs of wells:—Chingleput R3,77,209; Wandiwash R1,62,657, Polur R18,2:4, Coimbatore R1,30,597, Cuddapah R55,188, Nellore R6,220, Tinnevelly R41,481, South Arcot R18,049, Salem R43,085, Kurnool R1,745, and Bellary, corrected figures, R1,570. For purchase or support of cattle and seed grain:—Chingleput R21,872, Wandiwash R700, Polur R855, Coimbatore R52,015, Cuddapah R5,006, Nellore R1,670, Tinnevelly R4,870, South Arcot R5,740, Salem R9,378, Kurnool R1,080, and Bellary R598. Wells constructed—Chingleput 1,522, Wandiwash and Polur 399, and seven other districts 318; under construction—Chingleput, 2,374, Wandiwash and Polur 1,167, and seven other districts 1,808.

Bombay.—For week ending 30th December.—Slight rain in parts of Nasik and Belgaum; no rain elsewhere. Late crops fast withering for want of moisture in parts of Deccan and Karnatak. Scarcity of fodder continues in parts of Sind and seven districts of the Deccan and Karnatak. Cattle being removed to other places in parts of four districts. Water scarce in parts of three districts. Prices continue high in eight districts. Harvesting of early crops continues in five districts.

Bengal.—For week ending 29th December.—No rain. Weather cold and dry. Rice harvest is mostly gathered in, and the outturn for the whole province is fair, but in several parts of Behar and Northern Bengal the high lands have yielded almost nothing, and in Nuddea and Jessore the crop is reported to be very poor. General prospects of the rabi crops are fair, but rain is wanted, particularly for the unirrigated tracts in Behar, Central Bengal and Chota Nagpore. In these tracts a good rainfall within a fortnight would still save the crops to a considerable extent, otherwise there will be a poor return. Poppy cultivation has generally improved since the weather has become colder. In Mozufferpore it has been a total failure in the unirrigated lands. Prospects of sugarcane, tobacco and indigo are satisfactory. In some districts the pressing of sugarcane has begun. Ganja promises to be a good crop in the Rajshahye district. There is ample supply of fodder and water all over the province, and cattle are in good condition. Food-stocks are sufficient, and prices generally remain almost stationary. There are no signs of immediate scarcity anywhere, and the cutting of paddy affords occupation to the labouring classes. If there be no rain during the present month, there will be more or less severe distress later on in thanas Shewhur, Belsund, Paru and Lalgunge in Mozufferpore, in parts of the Madhubani sub-division of Durbhanga, of the Supool and Mudebpura sub-divisions of Bhagulpore, of the Sudder sub-division of Monghyr, in thanas Kudwa and Amour in Purneah, in parts of the Buxar and Bhabuah sub-divisions of Shahabad, and of the Sudder and Aurungabad sub-divisions of Gya. No definite information respecting the tracts likely to be affected in the Rajshahye division has yet been received. The Commissioner is making tours of inspection throughout the division.

North-Western Provinces and Oudh.—For week ending 30th December.—Weather clear. Irrigation continues. Rabi and poppy doing well. Rain needed in places. Prices almost stationary.

Punjab.—For week ending 30th December.—No rainfall. Prices stationary in all but three districts, where they are rising. Kharif crops harvested; rabi sowings over; weeding in progress. Rain badly wanted in most districts. Condition of rabi crops is reported good; at present it is said to be average in two districts. Condition of cattle is poor in three districts, fair in two, and good elsewhere. Fodder scarce in five districts, below average in one, and sufficient elsewhere.

Central Provinces.—For week ending 30th December.—Weather clear and cold. Harvesting of kharif crops in progress. Rain needed for rabi crops, especially in southern and eastern districts. Fodder sufficient. Cattle in good condition.

Burma.—For week ending 26th December.—LOWER BURMA: Reaping continues and approaching completion in some districts. Except in parts of Prome and Thayetmyo districts the paddy crop is reported to be on the whole good, but prices of paddy are ruling much higher than usual at this season. UPPER BURMA: In Mandalay condition of crops good. In Bhamo reaping of early paddy completed, sowing of dry-weather paddy begun, wet-weather paddy fair except in Mohlaing where it has been much damaged by recent rain; reaping of wet-weather paddy in progress. In Katha prospects of crops good, reaping progressing except in Myadoung sub-division and Manle and Kawlin townships and parts of Pinlebu. In Shwebo new paddy has been reaped and is selling at R135 per 100 standard baskets. In Sagaing, in the Sagaing sub-division one-third of paddy and sesamum crops have been reaped, the remaining two-thirds have been destroyed by drought; in Myinmu and Ava sub-divisions sesamum and millet are being reaped. In Lower Chindwin sowing of pulses continues in eastern sub-division; jowar being reaped in Kudaw township; outturn very poor; reaping of millet and sesamum commenced in Ayadaw; estimated yield one-tenth of usual crop; in western sub-division onions have been sown and reaping of wet-weather paddy and jowar commenced; standing crops in eastern sub-division very bad; crops along river bank western Kani estimated to yield from one-fourth to one-third of an average crop; in many places standing crops in western sub-division fair. In Upper Chindwin reaping of wet-weather paddy nearly finished; dry-weather planting of paddy progressing. In Myingyan crop prospects same as reported last week, cotton being picked and early paddy being reaped in Natogyi township. In Pakoko in the Pauk sub-division reaping progressing, harvest good; in Yawdwin reaping progressing, paddy being exported; crop prospects fair throughout Pakokku sub-division. In Magwe crops in Natmauk sub-division kept alive by heavy dew on irrigated lands; in Taungdwingyi they are being reaped. In Kyaukse wet-weather crop is being reaped, ploughing for dry-weather paddy progressing. In Yamethin and Pyinmana reaping continues. Price of paddy has fallen slightly in Akyab and Magwe, considerably in Toungoo, Bhamo, and Yamethin, and risen considerably in Thongwa, Henzada, and Thayetmyo; elsewhere it is stationary. Numbers on relief works:—Shwebo, Meiktila, Minbu, and Magwe not reported; Sagaing 2,712, exclusive of those on Kandaw tank not reported; Lower Chindwin 1,377; Myingyan 4,633, exclusive of numbers on Kainglet-Pabya road; Yamethin 4,375.

Assam.—For week ending 23rd December.—Weather seasonable. Reaping of winter paddy and gathering of pulses continue. Supply of fodder normal. Condition of cattle fair. Tea pruning going on.

Mysore and Coorg.—For week ending 30th December.—Slight rain in two districts. Standing crops withered altogether or withering in parts. Want of rain felt generally. Fodder scarce. Prices risen in two districts.

Harvesting of rice crop still in progress in Coorg. Coffee-picking continues. Prices of food-grains rising Water and fodder for cattle sufficient.

Berar and Hyderabad.—For week ending 30th December.—Weather fair and cool in Berar. Threshing of jowari commenced, cotton-picking continues, rabi crops not in good condition in three districts for want of sufficient moisture. Prices rising in three districts. Fodder and water sufficient except in one taluk where fodder is insufficient. Cattle healthy.

No rain in Hyderabad during the week. Harvesting of abi crops continues. Standing rabi crops are at present in good condition except in some villages where they are now in need of rain. Fodder for cattle, though at present available, is gradually becoming scarce. Prices :—wheat 8¾, coarse rice 8, white juar 12, yellow juar 14½, and tur 12, seers per current rupee.

Central India.—For week ending 30th December.—No change in condition of crops and weather since last report.

Rajputana.—For week ending 30th December.—Agricultural operations and standing crops generally satisfactory. Kharif harvested. Rabi in good condition in Ajmere, but the area cultivated is much below average; cotton collected. Wheat and jowar prospects good in Jhallawar. Good outturn of rabi expected in Sirohi. Cattle getting worse in Ajmere and poor in Marwar, Kherwara, Meywar, Kishengurh, and Bikanir. Pasturage and fodder scarce in six States and at Ajmere, Kherwara, and Harowtee. Prices steady in ten States and at Ajmere, rising in three, and fluctuating in one. Seven hundred and ninety-six immigrants and 4,523 cattle entered Kotah during the week. In Ajmere-Merwara, 17,80 persons employed on relief works and 769 gratuitously treated; 1,987 persons employed on relief works in Marwar, and 2,752 gratuitously treated; in Bikanir 1,530 persons employed and 510 gratuitously treated.

Nepal.—For week ending 24th December.—Weather fine. Prospects of crop normal. Prices steady.

THE INDIAN LAW REPORTS.

PUBLISHED UNDER AUTHORITY.

The Indian Law Reports, published under the authority of the Governor-General in Council, appear in monthly parts, published as soon as possible after the first of each month, at Calcutta, Madras, Bombay, and Allahabad, and comprise four series,—one for the Calcutta High Court, a second for the Madras High Court, a third for the Bombay High Court, and a fourth for the Allahabad High Court. The cases heard by the Privy Council on appeal from each High Court are reported in the series for that High Court. Cases heard by the Privy Council on appeal from Provinces in India not subject to any High Court are reported in the Calcutta Series.

The Calcutta Series is distributed by the Bengal Secretariat, and the Madras, Bombay and Allahabad Series are distributed direct from Madras, Bombay and Allahabad, respectively.

In supersession of the previous advertisements, on and from the 1st January, 1889, the terms of subscription and sale will be as follows for current issues as well as for back numbers of the Reports from 1870:—

REVENUE DEPARTMENT.

[Revised Advertisement.]

A Dictionary of the Economic Products of India.

BY DR. GEO. WATT, C.I.E.,

Reporter on Economic Products.

Published under the authority of the Government of India in the Revenue and Agricultural Department.

The first five volumes of the Dictionary are now ready at the Office of Superintendent of Government Printing, No. 8, Hastings Street, Calcutta, and will be supplied to non-subscribers on receipt of the price for the complete set, which is R45 in India, and 3 guineas in England (exclusive of the Index, for which a separate charge will be made): packing and postage, in India, 8 annas per volume; for England, 2 rupees 6 ans as per volume. For copies bound in half calf or half morocco, R6 and 8 shillings respectively will be charged extra for the whole set.

The Dictionary is intended to deal with the products of India - animal, vegetable, and mineral; each product being treated after a uniform plan, the paragraphs of which give the scientific, vernacular, and European names; habitat or source; history; properties and uses (both chemical and industrial); trade statistics; markets, etc. The work is arranged alphabetically according to scientific nomenclature, but commercial and important vernacular names are also given as cross references, so that little difficulty need be experienced in finding the account of a product even when its scientific name is unknown to the reader.

An important feature of the Dictionary consists in the fact that derived information is in every instance given under quotation marks, and with a reference to the original publication. Numerous contributors have, however, furnished the results of new discoveries, and confirmed the vernacular names, so that the Dictionary is not only a complete compilation of published information, but has been brought abreast of the most recent inventions and discoveries.

Volume I contains the letters A and B, and consists of 559 royal octavo pages; Volume II embraces the letter C in 689 pages; Volume III contains the letters D, E, F, and half of G; Volume IV, latter half of G to middle of L, and Volume V contains the latter half of L to end of O. The whole work will, it is expected, be completed in seven volumes during the current year, but an eighth volume may also be issued, consisting of an Index to all the vernacular and other names contained in the Dictionary. The Index will practically be a glossary of the vernacular and European names of the plants, animals, and minerals of India, and, as such, will be a work of reference, which, it is hoped, may prove of considerable value.

PUBLIC WORKS DEPARTMENT.

CIVIL WORKS.

Irrigation.

REVENUE REPORT OF IRRIGATION WORKS IN THE PUNJAB FOR 1890-91.

No. 1-I, Calcutta, dated the 4th January, 1892.

RESOLUTION—By the Government of India, Public Works Department.

Read—

Letter No. 5059 I., dated 28th November 1891, from the Government of the Punjab, forwarding the Revenue Report of Irrigation Works in the Punjab for 1890-91, and Resolution by that Government reviewing the Report.

OBSERVATIONS.—The number of canals in operation in the Punjab is twelve as stated in para. 1 of Government of India Review No. 1 I. I., dated 21st January 1891, on the Irrigation Revenue Report for 1889-90. The Sirsa Branch of the Western Jumna Canal is still under construction. The construction estimates of the main Western Jumna Canal and those of the Bari Doab Canal were closed with effect from 31st March 1890, and of the Sirhind Canal and of the Lower Sohag and Para Canal with effect from 31st March 1891. Subsequent capital outlay on these canals will be charged to open capital account under the terms of para. 156, Chapter XV, Volume II of the Public Works Department Code.

A.

2. The following statement shows the capital outlay incurred during and up to the end of 1890-91 divided according to financial heads of account :—

| | Number of works. | During the year 1890-91. | | | | | | | Total direct and indirect to end of 1890-91. |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| | | Works. | Establishment. | Tools and Plant. | Suspense Account. | Total direct charges. | Indirect charges. | Total direct and indirect charges. | |

| TOTAL . | 13 | 19,03,388 | 2,65,627 | 6,139 | 1,55,300 | 23,30,454 | 58,462 | 23,88,916 | 6,43,58,188 |

3. The principal outlay was again incurred on the Sirsa Branch of the Western Jumna Canal, and on the Chenab Canal. On the former the capital outlay amounted to Rs. 4,83,172, charged against Imperial funds, and to Rs. 1,64,635 charged against the Patiala State, which the canal also serves to irrigate. The main channel was nearly completed to 47 miles from the head, and well advanced to 63 miles. Good progress was also made with the masonry works and distributaries.

On the Chenab Canal, the outlay was Rs. 19,19,315, principally in connexion with the permanent head-works, on which excellent progress was made.

On the Sirhind Canal, there was a write-back of Rs. 5,02,598 from Imperial to Contributions in adjustment of the shares of the cost of the project met from Imperial funds and by Native States respectively. The amounts charged in the accounts of the year against capital were, therefore, Rs. 5,10,366 under Contributions and a minus entry of Rs. 2,75,866 under Imperial.

4. The following statement shows the mileage of main canal and distributary in operation at the close of the year under review :—

| | Completed. | |
|---|---|---|
| | Miles of Canals. | Miles of Distributaries. |
| MAJOR WORKS. | | |

| Irrigation Works not charged against Revenue . . | 1,205 | 4,874 |
| MINOR WORKS. | | |
| Of which Capital and Revenue Accounts are kept . . | 1,791 | 155 |

5. The actual financial results of the year of the twelve canals in operation were as follows, the Native States portion of the Sirhind Canal being excluded. The Irrigation Revenue includes the rabi collections of 1889-90 and the kharif collections of 1890-91:—

| Canal. | Total direct and indirect Capital outlay to end of 1890-91. | Gross Revenue collected. | | | Working Expenses. | | | Net Revenue. | Percentage of net revenue on Capital outlay. |

* Refunds deducted from Revenue.
† These percentages of net Revenue on Capital outlay do not include Muzaffargarh Canal.

6. The aggregate returns from the Major Works are very good and show an increase in net revenue of over eight lakhs as compared with 1889-90. The principal increases are in the Western Jumna and Sirhind Canals; the latter for the first time yielding a net revenue more than sufficient to cover its interest charges. The gross revenue realised from the Swat River Canals was larger than in 1889-90, but the large outlay on works of improvement and repairs made the net return less. As, however, this canal was sanctioned as a protective work only, the figures may be considered favourable. The Chenab Canal paid its working expenses in full for the first time.

The decrease in the net returns from the Lower Sohag and Para and from the Sidhnai Canals, was caused by remissions of revenue rendered necessary by a deficient supply of water.

The Minor Works, with the exception of the Muzaffargarh Canals, exhibit a low net revenue in comparison with the figures for the previous year. Owing to the rivers rising in flood late and falling early in the season, and to the consequent deficient supply in the canals, the revenue receipts did not improve, and there was a large increase in charges. This was due, in the case of the Lower Sutlej Canals, partly to the execution of necessary improvements and partly to the fact that some receipts previously credited to Imperial are now made over to the Zar-i-Nagha fund. In the case of the Indus Canals, the increase in working expenses was caused by heavy silt clearances.

7. The net surplus of revenue from the Major Works in operation after meeting all interest charges amounted to Rs. 13,27,473, and the balance of revenue in favour of the canals at the close of the year amounted to nearly 211½ lakhs.

8. The following statement shows the area irrigated and the irrigation revenue assessed thereon during the year. The figures of irrigation revenue are not comparable with those given in para. 5, which represent actual collections :—

9. The irrigated area is again the largest on record, being 45,486 acres in excess of that for 1889-90. The increase is entirely under the perennial canals, the inundation canals showing a diminished area of irrigation.

The season was one of very heavy rainfall over the greater portion of the Punjab, and a large area of rabi crop was, owing to the plentiful winter rains, sown and matured without the aid of canal water.

10. The areas of kharif and rabi crop were as follows :—

| | Kharif. | Rabi. |
|---|---|---|
| | Acres. | Acres. |
| Perennial Canals . . . . . | 633,701 | 1,031,276 |
| Inundation „ . . . . . . . . | 644,540 | 533,141 |
| | 1,278,241 | 1,564,417 |

The increase under the perennial canals and the decrease under the inundation canals of the area cultivated under kharif crop compared with the figures for the previous year, is most marked: the total areas of both crops are the largest yet recorded.

11. The areas of the principal crops cultivated during the last two years compare as follows :—

| | 1890-91. | 1889-90. |
|---|---|---|
| | Acres. | Acres. |
| Sugarcane . . . . . . . | 77,207 | 54,236 |

| Cotton . . . . . . . . | 275,3[illegible]0 | 240,6[illegible]0 |

The area under wheat is well sustained, and there has been a recovery in the area cultivated under sugarcane. The estimated value of the crops irrigated is 882 lakhs.

12. The following statement gives some particulars regarding the discharge in the rivers and canals and the irrigating duty of the water. The minimum river discharges observed were exceptionally high on account of the heavy winter rainfall :—

| Canal. | Minimum discharge of river. | Maximum discharge of Canal as designed. | Maximum discharge of canal during year. | Average discharge at head. | | Acres irrigated per cubic foot of average discharge. | |

* Excluding Native States Branches.

13. Under the Native States branches of the Sirhind Canal the proportion of the area actually irrigated to the area capable of being irrigated according to the British standard showed considerable improvement. In 1889-90 this proportion was only 55 per cent., but in the year under review it rose to 64 per cent.

14. The working of these branches is shown by the following figures :—

| State. | Capital outlay. | Gross revenue less refunds. | Working Expenses. | Water-rates assessed. | Area irrigated. | Water-rate assessed per acre. | Working expenses per acre. |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| 1 | 2 | 3 | 4 | 5 | 6 | 7 | 8 |
| | Rs. | Rs. | Rs. | Rs. | Acres. | Rs. | Rs. |

| Nabha . . . | 12,48,092 | 71,633 | 37,034 | 65,576 | 18,644 | 3·52 | 1·98 |
| Jhind . . . | 10,92,565 | 52,642 | 30,791 | 47,918 | 13,394 | 3·58 | 2·30 |

These figures show a considerable improvement over those for the previous year; the revenue is more by over two lakhs and the working expenses are less.

15. The aggregate working expenses of the various canals were given in the statement in para. 5. The following figures exhibit the details of this expenditure:—

| | Canals. | 1890-91. Works. | Establishment. | Tools and Plant. | Indirect charges. | Total. | 1889-90. Total. |

| | Per acre irrigated | ... | ... | ... | ... | 1·14 | 1·07 |

The aggregate increase in working expenses compared with 1889-90 amounts to Rs. 2,41,646. The increase under the head of "Works" alone amounts to Rs. 2,57,408, which is reduced by savings under Establishment. The causes that led to the increased works outlay have already been referred to in para 6.

16. The details of the charge for establishment are as follows:—

| | Rs. | Percentage of total. |
|---|---|---|
| Direction | 1,54,036 | 12·74 |
| Executive | 6,63,105 | 54·83 |
| Medical | 7,208 | 0·60 |
| Revenue, including collection fees | 3,83,893 | 31·74 |
| Navigation | 1,049 | 0·09 |
| | 12,09,291 | |

17. The principal works executed on Revenue account were— On the Western Jumna Canal, the completion of the embankment of the Hansi Canal and the general silt clearance of that branch; on the Bari Doab Canal, repairs and extensions of Dhanna works on the Ravi, Chakki torrent works at Dhangu, and berm cutting on the Main and Lahore Branches; on the Sirhind Canal the repair of the head-works at Rupar; on the Lower Sutlej and Chenab Canals, the building of regulators to distributaries and the widening of the Dourana Langana Canal; on the Indus Canals, the diversion of the Chibri Canal.

| | Receipts. | Charges. |
| | Rs. | Rs. |
| Western Jumna . . | 44,207 | 7,860 |
| Sirhind . . . | 12,632 | 10,596 |

18. The navigation receipts and charges on the only two canals that are navigable were as marginally noted. There was a falling-off in the raft traffic on the Western Jumna Canal as compared with the previous year.

19. The Miscellaneous Receipts on the Western Jumna, Bari Doab and Sirhind Canals shown in the statement in para. 5, include Rs. 1,49,083 on account of water-power.

The Miscellaneous Receipts on the Lower Sutlej and Chenab and the Muzaffargarh Canals include the value of the "Chher" labour and the contributions from the Zar-i-Nagha funds. An explanation of these terms was given in para. 20 of the Review on the report for 1889-90. On the Lower Sutlej Canals the number of labourers called out was 617,981, of whom 522,283 were present, 26,625 were permitted to be absent, leaving 99,073 as actual absentees. The fines inflicted amounted to Rs. 49,537.

On the Muzaffargarh Canals the corresponding figures were— Called out, 489,474; present, 441,165; remitted, 12,207; absent, 36.102; fines, Rs. 19,054. The realizations on account of the Zar-i-Nagha fund, which are derived from the fines on absent chher labourers and other sources, amounted to Rs. 90,548 and Rs. 24,445, respectively; the expenditure from the same fund, to Rs. 93,281 and Rs. 23,930.

20. The net demand on account of water-rate during the year, including an unrealized demand at the commencement of the year of Rs. 70,107 (the difference between this and Rs. 62,215 shown in para. 21 of last year's Review is explained in Statement III C) and deducting remissions, was Rs. 48,05,832. Of this, Rs. 46,92,502 were realised, leaving Rs. 1,13,329 to be collected.

21. The report was received by the Government of India in good time, on 28th November. It is, as usual, admirably prepared, and furnishes an interesting and valuable record of steady development and improvement.

Good progress was made on the Sirsa Branch of the Western Jumna Canal. The channel excavation was nearly completed for 47 miles and well advanced down to the 63rd mile. The masonry works were also well in hand, and equally good progress was made on the Distributaries. The Chenáb Weir Works were pushed on with great vigour during the year. The undersluices and regulator were, with the exception of arching, almost complete; the fishladder was completed, as was also a length of 1,150 feet of the weir, whilst the core walls had been completed for a distance of 1,550 feet, and fair progress had been made on the Feeder Line.

On the Chenáb Canal itself good progress was also made. A very detailed map of the whole tract was completed, and proposals were submitted for the extension of the Canal to enable the full power of the Head Works to be utilized. The Koranga and Fázil Shah (two of the canals subsidary to the Sidhani Canal) were completed and opened for irrigation, whilst the third (the Abdul Hakím) was nearly completed by the end of the year. The Construction Estimate of the Sirhind Canal was closed on the 31st March 1891, but work on the sanctioned extensions was in progress. On the Bári Doáb Canal no heavy works were in hand, but a scheme was under preparation to enable the Canal to carry an increased supply during the Kharíf.

On the Lower Sohág Canal the alternative head was nearly completed.

2. The revenue assessed during the last five years is shown for each Canal in the following table:—

| Budget item. | Canal. | Revenue Assessed. 1890-91. | 1889-90. | 1888-9. | 1887-88. | 1886-87. |

There is a slight falling off under item 35 (Swát River Canal) as compared with the previous year. The question of enhancing the existing rates, which are very low, is engaging attention, but, from the peculiar circumstances of the Canal, this matter requires very careful consideration. There is again a very substantial increase under item 49; it is mainly due to the Sirhind Canal, though the Bári Doáb, Sidhnai and Western Jumna Canals have all largely contributed to this result. There is a slight increase under item 43, which is mainly attributable to the good working of the Mooltan and Muzaffargarh Canals.

The Canal Revenue assessed during the year amounted to R75,14,914, or R6,22,312 in excess of last year, and R28,11,170 in excess of that assessed in 1886-87.

3. The following table shows the actual earnings of the Canals in operation for which interest accounts are maintained, and the returns on the Capital outlay for three years:—

The Sirsa Branch of the Western Jumna Canal and the Jhelum Canal have been excluded from the above table as they are not yet in operation.

The Lower Sohág and Pára was the only Canal that failed to pay its working expenses; the Western Jumna, Bári Doáb and Sirhind all show large increases in percentage of net revenue on Capital outlay, whilst the percentage for the whole Province has risen from 4·76 last year to 5·91 in the year under review, and there is a balance of R13,27,473 after providing for interest charges, as against a balance of R5,80,027 last year and one of R1,64,313 the previous year.

4. The financial results up to the close of 1890-91 are exhibited below for all the Canals for which interest accounts are maintained :—

| | TOTAL 1887-88 | ... | ... | 1,90,88,867 | ... |

The balance of net revenue for the whole Province continues to increase very satisfactorily. At the end of March 1891 it amounted to R2,20,31,866 as against R2,11,42,795 at the end of the last financial year. The Sirsa Branch was not in operation, and the Chenáb Canal was still working as an Inundation Canal, the expenditure on the incomplete Head Works being still unproductive, so that a still greater and very marked improvement may be expected within the next few years.

5. The Working Expenses of the above-mentioned Canals for the past five years are given below :—

| Canal. | Working Expenses. 1890-91. | 1889-90. | 1888-89. | 1887-88. | 1886-87. |

The total for the year under review amounts to R21,73,686, or R59,571 more than in 1889-90. The increase is mainly due to abnormally heavy maintenance charges on the Swát River, Western Jumna and Lower Sohág and Pára Canals.

The figures under this head must, however, be expected to increase as the irrigated area extends.

6. The following table shows for the past five years the cost per acre irrigated of Working Expenses and Establishment :—

The cost of Working Expenses per acre irrigated on the Western Jumna Canal has again risen considerably; this is due to there having been heavy expenditure during the year not only on repairs, but also on extensions and improvements, whilst a smaller area was irrigated.

On the Lower Sohág the apparently large increase is mainly due to the fact that very large remissions were given before the submission of the demand statements, so that the rate has this year been struck on an abnormally small area.

7. The remaining Canals for which no interest accounts are maintained and which are classed as Minor Works (item 43) are all Inundation Canals, and their working is exhibited in the following table :—

| Budget item. | CANAL. | Capital outlay to end of year. | Collections less Refunds. | Working Expenses. | Net Revenue. | NET REVENUE OF PREVIOUS YEARS. | | |

With the exception of the Muzaffargarh Series, the net revenue has fallen off considerably on all the Inundation Canals, due (except in the case of Shahpur) to failure of supply owing to the rivers rising late and falling again very rapidly and at comparatively a very early date.

The loss on the Indus Canals amounted to R75,867, or 10·72 per cent. of the Capital invested.

Much of the expenditure incurred was for reclamation and other bunds; and it seems worthy of consideration whether the whole of such charges ought to be debited to the Canals as at present, and whether such expenditure ought not more properly to be, at least partly, met from an Agricultural grant, as was done in the case of the Muzaffargarh District on the opposite bank of the same river. If the whole of the expenditure ought to be debited, as before, to the Canals, it will probably be right at the approaching Land Revenue Settlement to provide that such expenditure shall be included in the account from which the half clearance rate is deduced.

In Shahpur the falling off shown in mainly attributable to an incorrect debit of the pay of the Engineer Officer deputed for the management of the Canals. The error referred to in para. 197 of the Chief Engineer's Report will be adjusted in the accounts for 1891-92.

With the exception of the Shahpur Canals, the increase in the percentage is due to the falling off in the irrigated area. In Shahpur the increase in cost per acre is mainly due to the incorrect debit under the head of Establishment which has been referred to above.

* The Sirsa Branch is under construction.

The mileage of channels sanctioned on permanent Canals has increased during the year owing to an additional length of 20 miles on the Chenáb and 21 miles on the Sidhnai Subsidiary Canals having been now included in the statement. The lengths of the Inundation Canals are liable to vary from year to year according as lengths are washed away or new heads constructed. The length of Distributaries sanctioned and completed has largely increased during the year, the sanctioned length of these channels being now in excess of 6,300 miles in British territory.

10. The following table shows the area irrigated during the past five years on the Perennial and Inundation Canals:—

The total area irrigated (2,842,658 acres) is 45,486 acres in excess of that of last year, which in its turn was the largest recorded to that date in this Province. The Perennial Canals show a large increase throughout, whereas the Inundation Canals fell off in both crops as compared with the arears of the last two years, which, however, were exceptionally large as compared with previous ones.

11. The following table shows the area of principal crops for the past five years :—

| Crops. | 1890-91. | 1889-90. | 1888-89. | 1887-88. | 1886-87. |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| | Acres. | Acres. | Acres. | Acres. | Acres. |

| Maize . . . . | 102,891 | 101,031 | 122,392 | 80,876 | 36,961 |
| Wheat . . . . | 1,011,127 | 1,023,321 | 935,510 | 783,189 | 747,514 |
| Cotton . . . | 273,300 | 240,640 | 215,688 | 223,470 | 212,779 |

The principal changes in the areas of important crops are increases under cotton (32,660 acres), sugar-cane (22,971 acres), and rice (15,120 acres), and decreases under wheat (12,194 acres) and jowár (8,853 acres). The increase under cotton has been most marked on the Bári Doáb and Western Jumna Canals, but there has also been a substantial increase both on the Swát River and Chenáb Canals.

The increase in sugar-cane is due entirely to the Western Jumna Canal, whilst the increase under rice is attributable mainly to the Western Jumna and Chenáb Canals.

The decrease under jowár occurred on the Sirhind and Chenáb Canals, whilst that shown under wheat is wholly due to the Western Jumna Canal, where, however, the area was still large for that Canal. The total wheat area is still over a million acres and is second only to that of last year.

12. The value of the crops raised with canal water during the year is estimated at R8,81,57,770, as against a value of R8,14,02,861 last year, and a value of R7,51,97,720 in 1888-89.

The average value of the crops raised on the Perennial Canals during the year under review was R35·3 per acre, and the average water-rates assessed, (including owner's rates and water-advantage rates) was R3·2 per acre.

The increase in average value is due to the larger porportion of valuable crops (such as sugar-cane) irrigated during the year.

13. There were no remarkable floods during the year. The most marked feature of the supply being the sudden fall of all the rivers in the commencement of the fourth week of August, which most prejudicially affected the operations of all the Inundation Canals.

14. The rainfall was unusually heavy throughout the year over the greater portion of the Province. During the Kharíf, however, it fell late, whilst during the cold weather the rainfall was both heavy and continuous, thus enabling large areas of winter crops to be sown and matured without the aid of canal water.

15. The following table shows the duty, or area irrigated, per cubic foot of water entering the Canal on the Perennial Canals for the past five years :—

| Canals. | Area irrigated per cubic foot. | | | | | | | | | |

| | ... | ... | ... | 55 | ... | 83 | ... | 42 | ... | 75 |

There has been a slight improvement in the Kharíf duty as compared with last year on all the Canals except the Chenáb, where, however, it is still very large. On the other hand, the duties in the Rabi have decreased on the Swát River, Western Jumna and Bári Doáb, owing to the abundant rainfall which obviated the necessity for carefully husbanding every drop of water, whilst it has increased on the Sirhind Canal, owing doubtless to the fact that there was comparatively less winter rain in this tract.

16. The Miscellaneous Receipts show a slight decrease as compared with the figures for the last two years. This appears to be mainly due to the falling off of navigation receipts on the Western Jumna Canal, but partly also to a decrease under the head of "Water-power on the Sirhind Canal," the receipts from which, however, are still in excess of all previous years except the last, when they were unusually high—

These receipts are considerably below those of last year, and are very little in excess of those of 1888-89. There appears to be little probability of any substantial improvement under this head.

18. The working of the Native States Branches of the Sirhind Canal has, as usual, been reviewed by the Chief Engineer in his report on that Canal. The area irrigated during the year has been 216,583 acres, being an increase of 64,148 acres over the area of last year. Although there has thus been a marked improvement in the working, these Branches only irrigated 64 per cent. of the area which they would have watered had they worked up to the standard obtained on the British Branches.

In the Patiála State the revenue realized has for the first time covered the working expenses, leaving a profit of R1,48,600, which is equivalent to a return of 1·30 per cent. on the Capital invested.

In the Nábha State there has been a most marked improvement, and the Canal, which has hitherto worked at a loss, has this year given a profit of R34,599, equivalent to a return of 2·78 per cent. on the Capital invested by the State.

In the Jínd State the working of the Canal has also considerably improved, there being a profit of R21,848 as against R2,064 last year.

The working expenses in Patiála are practically the same as last year, whilst in Nábha and Jínd there have been substantial reductions.

The following table shows the areas irrigated by each State for the last five years :—

| YEAR. | AREAS IRRIGATED FROM THE NATIVE STATES BRANCHES. | | | | | | | | | | | |

The value of the crops irrigated by the Native States Branches during the year is estimated at R64,73,370 as against R40,22,656 in 1889-90.

19. The Lieutenant-Governor is glad to be able to cordially congratulate Colonel Ottley and the Officers of the Irrigation Branch on the general results for 1890-91, which seem to him to be again highly satisfactory. The revenue assessed was more than six lakhs in excess of the figures for the previous year, which were themselves considerably higher than any previously recorded. At the same time there was a general decrease noticeable in objections to assessments.

The percentage of net revenue on Capital outlay has risen to the handsome figure of 5·91, though remissions were liberally given where required.

In spite of the early closing of the Inundation Canals, which led to a considerable diminution of the area of their irrigation, the total area irrigated by all canals increased, and the increase was very large in the case of the Perennial Canals, though the autumn and winter rainfalls were heavy. With the increase in area the average water-rate increased showing improvement also in class of crops.

The estimated value of crops raised rose by sixty-seven lakhs and reached the enormous figure of eight hundred and eighty-one lakhs.

The good work done by Mr. Higham, Superintendending Engineer, and his staff seem to Sir James Lyall to deserve special recognition with reference to the very good progress made in the construction of the new Sirsa Branch of the Western Jumna Canal, and in the clearing out of drainage channels in the Delhi Division, a most important sanitary work; also with reference to the improved working and earnings of the Sirhind and Western Jumna Canals. The interest charges on the Sirhind Canal were for the first time covered by the net earnings and a surplus secured.

Sir James Lyall also concurs with Colonel Ottley in considering that Mr. MacLean deserves special credit for the great progress made on the Head Works of the Chenáb Canal, and that the very good work done by Mr. Benton, in renewals of the Head Works and emergent repairs of the Bári Doáb Canal, calls for recognition.

The Canals of the Province are already yielding a handsome profit, and it seems certain that the rate of profit will largely and steadily increase in the next few years. In addition to the profit to the revenues of the State, there are other economical and political advantages to be derived from Canal extension in the Punjab. Sir James Lyall hopes that this will be recognized, and that it will be held to be a good reason for special treatment of the Province in the matter of liberal supply of funds for Irrigation projects.

By order of the Honorable the Lieutenant-Governor.

No. 68 (Revenue), dated 28th August 1890.

From—The Secretary of State for India,
To—The Government of India.

I forward, for the information of Your Excellency's Government, a copy of a memorial presented to me on the 30th July by an influential deputation on the subject of the consumption of opium and other drugs in India.

2. I informed the deputation that their memorial would be forwarded for the consideration of your Government, and I remarked that the number and character of the names appended to the memorial added weight to their representations. At the same time I said that the Government of India were, like myself, fully alive to the evil attendant upon the unrestrained consumption of opium and other intoxicating drugs.

3. I shall be glad to receive at your convenience any observations you may see fit to offer respecting this memorial.

Dated 30th July 1890.

To the Right Honourable VISCOUNT CROSS, G.C.B., Her Majesty's Principal Secretary of State for India.

The humble memorial of the SOCIETY FOR THE SUPPRESSION OF THE OPIUM TRADE.

MY LORD,—On behalf of the Society for the Suppression of the Opium Trade, we desire to present to Your Lordship the following considerations with regard to the consumption of opium and other drugs in British India.

2. During the last two years the Society has received from different quarters information tending to show that in various parts of India the habit of opium-smoking is on the increase, and in particular that houses licensed by Government in many of the towns of India for smoking opium and its products on the premises were causes of great demoralisation. We have also received information of a similar character with regard to other narcotic drugs, of the sale of which the Indian Government has a monopoly under the Abkari Act.

The information thus received by the Society is derived mainly from papers which have from time to time been reprinted in its quarterly organ, the Friend of China, and a reference to which will be found in the appendix to this memorial.

3. Recently the Society has obtained through a return furnished by Sir John Gorst to Mr. Mark J. Stewart, M.P., information as to the number of shops for the last ten years in several provinces of India.

The numbers are as follows:—

Number of licensed shops for opium, ganja, and kindred drugs in each province for the past ten years, so far as the reports show.

Madras and Bombay.—The excise reports for years before 1887-88 do not give the number of licensed shops for opium and ganja; so only two years' figures can be given. For Bombay, too, the earliest report giving these particulars is that for 1887-88. The report for the following year has not yet come. So for Bombay only one year's figures can be given. In both Madras and Bombay shop licenses for opium and drugs are shown together.

* This figure differs from that previously given—namely, 651—because the smaller figure was for Bombay alone, and did not include Sind.

† These figures differ from those previously given. The present figures include the opium shops licensed to sell other drugs. The previous figures—397 and 722—showed only the shops separately licensed for sale of ganja, bhang, &c.

‡ In this year the 14 shops in Upper Burma were reckoned for the first time.

§ In Berar the shops for the different drugs are not distinguished.

4. With regard to the general question of the abkari revenue from drugs, the Society is well aware that the avowed policy of the Indian Government, as repeatedly expressed in the reports on the "Progress and Condition of India," is "to obtain a maximum of duty with a minimum of consumption." To quote the language employed in the Report for 1882-83, which contained a review for the preceding ten years: "The rates of duty are raised from time to time to the highest point that will not encourage illicit manufacture or illicit importation." That Report states that "in the case of opium and ganja, the most deleterious drugs in popular use, the consumption is being steadily reduced by successive augmentations in the rate of duty." Whilst we are by no means able to accept this principle as satisfactory, yet even if we could so accept it, we should still feel it our duty to call attention to the need of greater stringency, especially in some of the provinces of India, in order to carry it out loyally. We would call attention to the inevitable danger under such a rule lest the effort to reduce consumption be subordinated to the consideration of "maximum revenue;" and we would urge the importance of clear instructions being given on this point to the local officials since there is ground to fear that they have in some instances looked upon the revenue as the first consideration, and the limitation of consumption as quite secondary.

5. With regard to Bengal, the Central Provinces, and Assam, the Society notice with pleasure that the number of licenses for the sale of opium and other narcotics has been largely reduced during the ten years covered by the table given above. In the Central Provinces, however, we observe that the year 1888-89 shows an increase, as compared with the three previous years, of the number of licenses for the sale of opium; and, with regard to ganja and other drugs, that there has been a steady growth in the number of licenses from 1882-83, when the licenses numbered 959, to 1888-89, when the licenses were 1,121. We suggest the desirability of calling the attention of the Chief Commissioner to this increase, and of enquiring whether it would not be possible further to restrict the number of licenses.

6. The Society is also very glad to learn from the Report for 1888-89, as from similar statements in earlier Reports, that in Assam the measures taken by the Government of that Province in limiting the number of licenses and raising the price of the drug have greatly affected for the better the habit of consuming opium, specially in the valley of the Brahmaputra We observe that the Chief Commissioner's resolution on the Report for 1888-89 suggests "that the time has come to raise the question whether the price at the Treasury, which has been for some years at its present figure, might not now be raised." We hope that effect will promptly be given to this suggestion, and the number of licenses be further reduced at the same time. We regret to note that in Assam the number of licenses for other narcotic drugs has been steadily rising during the ten years from 267 in 1879-80 to 328 in 1888-89.

7. The remaining provinces of India do not present similarly encouraging features. In the North-West Provinces and Oudh the number of licenses for opium has increased from 792 to 1,084, about 36 per cent. in the ten years whilst the licenses for other drugs have risen from 2,964 in 1879-80 to 3,878 in 1888-89 We regard this increase as a very serious matter, and trust that the attention of the Commissioner will be called to the subject. We are glad to see that in 1886-87 the whole of the chandu shops were closed, and that the Provincial Government was then promoting tea shops as a counter-attraction. We are gratified to learn that the peremptory closing of all the opium dens in Lahore was ordered to take effect from the 1st of April last. We trust that the same measure may be extended to other parts of these Provinces. The subject of providing substitutes for these demoralising practices has not been mentioned again in the reports on the "Progress and Condition of India," but we hope that it has not been lost sight of; and we would suggest that similar counter-attractions might be suitably encouraged by the Governments of other Provinces. It is well known that in this country the increased supply of attractive and comfortable coffee and cocoa shops and temperance restaurants has had a powerful influence in diminishing intemperance.

8. In the Punjab the increase of opium licenses is still more startling, there being 685, or 63 per cent., more in 1888-89 than in 1879-80. There can, we feel assured, be no adequate justification for such an increase. Recent information is to the effect that the opium dens in Lucknow were to be closed, with the exception of three; we rejoice at the closing of so many, but cannot admit the necessity for any exception.

9 In Berar the increase in licenses for all drugs is 72 or 12 per cent. We have not been furnished with returns for Coorg and Ajmere; but in the latter Province the "Progress and Condition" Report for 1887-88 shows an increase of licenses from spirits and drugs from 205 to 210, and in both Provinces the revenue from opium appears to have steadily increased.

10. The facts as to Lower Burma have frequently been brought by the Society before Your Lordship's predecessors. We venture here to refer to the memorial presented to Lord Kimberley on the 4th March 1886, in which, whilst expressing our approval of the reduction of licenses in 1881 and following years from 68 to 18 shops, we urged that the remaining licenses should also be withdrawn. We would here repeat the arguments which were put before Your Lordship's predecessor, and, whilst we are glad that two more shops have since then been closed, we cannot regard this as by any means a satisfactory rate of progress in the diminution of temptations and vice.

This partial success in checking the spread of an evil which, in Sir C. U. Aitchison's words, "affects the very life of this young and otherwise prosperous province," should inspire the Indian Government to proceed farther in the same direction, having as their goal the entire suppression of the trade. In support of this view, we quote the report of Mr. Hodgkinson, Commissioner of the Irrawaddy District:—*

Opium, drink, and gambling are the three curses of the country, and to cope with these evils the present machinery is utterly inadequate.

The terrible growth of opium eating and smoking, and the evil effects which have made themselves felt wherever the drug permeates, have been dwelt upon again and again, yet nothing has been done which really tends to check the evil, except in the Kyaukphyu District of the Arakan Division, where opium shops have been entirely abolished with the most beneficial result. In this division, it is true, the number of shops has been greatly reduced, and the selling price of the drug somewhat raised; but the only effect of the change has been an enormous increase in smuggling and law breaking (which the high value and small bulk of the drug make it most difficult to effectually check) in order to disseminate opium throughout the country without reducing the consumption in the very least. A large revenue is secured to the Government by the present system, but it is secured by sapping the very heart's blood of the people, the better classes of whom most bitterly reproach us, and in my opinion very justly, for our apathy and misgovernment in this matter.

We also refer Your Lordship to the important report by the Burmese Excise Commissioner, Mr. Copleston, who evidently is of opinion that total prohibition would be practicable, except at the sea-ports and that the only real objection to this course is the consequent loss of revenue. Mr. Copleston says:—†

The real question seems to be first, whether it is to be accepted as an admitted fact—and there can be no doubt that a vast majority of officers do consider it to be so - that opium-eating and smoking are most injurious to the well-being both of individuals and of society in British Burma; and, secondly, whether the evil is to be stopped at all hazards, and regardless of the loss of revenue which must be incurred.

And again:—

The chief practical objection to the present system is that it is framed on the belief that opium is bad for the Burmese, and yet it does not go far enough, and falls far short of its intended efficiency. If opium is still believed to be a serious evil, and likely to cause deterioration—physical, mental, and moral—of the Burman, and if the revenue difficulty can be got over, then I would say let us have shops at the sea-ports, and penalise its possession outside these towns.

A most important argument in favour of total prohibition is that it, and it alone, will satisfy the moral convictions of the people of Burma. Commissioner Aitchison reported:—

Native opinion is unanimous in favour of stopping the supply altogether, and no measure we could adopt would be so popular with all the respectable and law-abiding class of the population.

More than once natives of Burma have petitioned for the total prohibition, and they have even gone so far as to suggest to Government to impose an extra land-tax in order to make up the deficit which would be occasioned by the loss of the opium revenue. We would respectfully submit to Your Lordship that it is the duty as well as the wisdom of the British rulers of India not to attempt to govern the vast realm committed to their charge altogether in accordance with the ideas and practices prevalent in Great Britain, but to give patient attention and generous consideration to the reasonable wishes, and especially to the higher moral sentiments of the people of India. In the particular case before us, if it can be proved—and it seems to us to be abundantly established on the testimony of British officials—that the Burmese are all but unanimous in desiring total prohibition of a noxious drug, then no considerations of revenue should be allowed to delay compliance with their so reasonable demand

11. To the foregoing arguments we have one more to add. It is stated in one of the appendices to the Despatch on Abkari Administration from the Government of India, addressed to Your Lordship in 1887, that "licenses were issued for the sale of ganja" in Lower Burma "up to the year 1872, since which the cultivation, sale, or possession of that drug has been absolutely prohibited." What reason can there be, except that of the revenue involved, why the same policy should not be adopted with regard to opium?

12. With regard to Upper Burma, the Society urged in the memorial just referred to that no licenses for opium should be granted. Here again we cannot do better than repeat the arguments presented in 1886:—

Granted, for the sake of argument, that the entire extirpation of the habit is beyond the powers of Government—although it is no compliment to the integrity and ability of British officials to place them in this respect on a level with the agents of a sovereign like Theebaw—even so, we submit that the legalisation of opium consumption would be a fatal mistake. The legal prohibition of the vice which has existed for generations in Burma, Siam, and China, and which has been encouraged and supported by the British Government in Corea and Japan, cannot owe its origin to the mere caprice of arbitrary monarchs, who might rather be expected to catch at so fair an opportunity of obtaining money from their subjects, but must be due to their perception of what the moral and religious sense of their people requires of them. The Oriental populations do not think it right and wise that each individual should be left to his own individual responsibility, with an opium-shop within sight, which he is free to enter or avoid at his pleasure. Knowing their own weakness, and in their anxiety for their children, they crave of their rulers that these pitfalls shall not be suffered in their midst. Even though no Asiatic Government—perhaps not all the vigour and honesty of British rule—can ever entirely prevent the illicit sale and consumption of the drug, still we believe that the imperfect operation of a prohibitory law is far less harmful than would be the introduction of licensed sale. In the first place it must be remembered that the regulated Government sale by no means avails to exclude illegal traffic, as is evident from the case of Lower Burma.

* Excise Report, 1883-84. | † Excise Report, 1884-85.

But the main objections to the licensing system are two—the greater facility for the spread of the vice and the injurious influence of Government patronage. While the sale and consumption are illegal, they must, under a Government of any vigour, necessarily hide away in the dark. The consequence is that it will be chiefly persons of low moral character—profligates, gamblers, and criminals—who will resort to these secret haunts of a forbidden indulgence. This state of things naturally tends to confine the indulgence chiefly to these classes, and to warn off all others. But if the Government throws the shield of its protection over the haunts of vice by licensing and deriving revenue from them, on the one hand the legality and publicity of the opium shops makes it easier for the more respectable classes to enter them, and on the other the Government loses in reputation in the eyes of the people. A further and weighty argument is to be found in the teaching of experience that the licensing of opium consumption opens the door to smuggling and illegal consumption. So long as the sale is licensed, it is not always easy to tell whether opium found on the person or in the dwelling of a Burman be part of what has been legally introduced. If altogether prohibited it would be contraband wherever found. In this way prohibition is much easier than regulation.

13. We regret that this view has not commended itself to the Government of India, and that 14 licensed shops for the sale of opium have been opened in the province, though an attempt was made to restrict the sale to the Chinese and Shan population. The following communication, taken from Regions Beyond, a missionary publication, for May last, shows how completely our predictions have been verified. We venture again to press the necessity of complete prohibition as the only effective mode of protecting the population of this recently-acquired Province from the evil habit which has wrought such havoc in Lower Burma:—

It is with bitter shame for our country and its character abroad that we read such words as the following, received lately from Mr. Stevens, of the China Inland Mission, who is stationed in Bhamo, Upper Burma, which has recently become part of our great Eastern Empire. He says:—

The English Government at first published a proclamation (of which I prepared the official Chinese translation) to the effect that the Queen-Empress would never derive a revenue from the sale and use of opium in Upper Burma. In a very few months after that explicit declaration preparations were made for licensing opium dens, and deriving a revenue from it in every possible way. Licenses to buy and sell whole-sale, taxes upon the drug, licenses of opium monopolies, &c., all go now to increase the revenue, and opium-smoking goes on as before, the only advantage gained being that by taxation the price of the drug is raised; hence poor men who cannot earn enough to keep themselves supplied with it will either go back to China, or take to thieving to compass this end. Property is less secure from "sneak-thieves" than it was in the Burma days.

14. With regard to the provinces of Bombay and Madras, the figures supplied do not enable us to judge of the increase of licenses; but the revenue returns show that in Bombay the duty on opium consumed in the Province, which amounted to Rx. 59,497 in 1879-80, had risen to Rx. 121,518 in 1888-89, having more than doubled in a period of nine years. We do not find any mention of an increase of price to account for this rapid growth of the revenue, and we fear it points to a great increase in the facilities for opium-eating and opium-smoking. Your Lordship will observe that much of the evidence that has reached us as to the demoralising effects of the opium-dens relates specifically to the city of Bombay, and it is under a grave sense of responsibility for the welfare of our fellow-subjects in that important city, and in the Province of which it is the centre, that we implore Your Lordship at once to take steps to stay the spread of the plague amongst them.

15. In Madras, the return of opium licenses shows a comparatively small increase of shops from 1887-88 to 1888-89, but it gives us no information as to how far this is part of a steady process. The revenue returns, however, tell us that there has been an even greater proportionate increase in the amount derived from internal consumption of opium than in Bombay, the figure for 1879-80 being Rx. 25,383 against Rx. 60,858 in 1888-89. The evidence of Sir T. Pycroft and Mr. E. D. Harrison before the House of Commons Committee of 1871 was to the effect that there was practically no consumption of opium in the Province (Evidence 1871, Qq. 3238-39 and 3961-63; 1872, Qq. 3955-56). Since that time, however, measures appear to have been taken to spread the habit of opium-smoking. Thus in the "Progress and Condition" Report for 1884-85, we are told that "the licenses conveying the monopoly to particular dealers have generally been put up to auction, but in some of the hill tracts they have been disposed of free of charge." The only excuse for this would appear to be that hinted at in the Report for 1887-88, which states that "in the feverish hill tracts of the northern divisions (of Madras) the people obtain opium at a lower price than elsewhere." We would earnestly deprecate so cruel a kindness as that of teaching the people to rely on opium as a febrifuge. Without denying that it is capable of being used for this purpose, we are confident that the highest medical authorities will confirm us in stating that much more effective and less dangerous febrifuges may be found, and that in very many cases reliance on opium proves the remedy to be far worse than the disease.

16. In conclusion, we desire to impress upon Your Lordship the serious danger lest the opium habit, which has proved so fatal already in the Chinese Empire and in the Dutch Colonies of Java and Sumatra, should in like manner spread throughout Her Majesty's dominions in India. That it is specially fascinating, and therefore specially dangerous to Eastern populations, is shown by the above-named instances, whilst the practicability of entire prohibition has been proved by the examples of Japan, of Corea, of certain limited districts in Java, and, we believe, of the Philippine Islands.

17. That opium, when used under proper medical advice, may be, and often is, a most valuable drug we readily admit; but it is surely within the power of the British Government of India to devise and carry out proper provisions for its sale only for these purposes, analogous in their purpose, though necessarily different in machinery, to those contained in the Pharmacy Act, 1868, under which the retail sale of opium is regulated in this country.

18. Especially do we entreat that steps be at once taken throughout British India to close the opium dens or shops for the retail sale of opium to be consumed on the premises, which we cannot but regard as a disgrace to the British Government of India. If such establishments must exist, better far that they should be illicit, liable to be suppressed by the police, and driven to hide themselves in holes and corners, than that they should flaunt themselves in open day, parading the license of the Queen-Empress, and carrying the sanction of the Supreme Government of India.

From—A. PEASE, Esq., Chairman of the Society for the Suppression of the Opium Trade,
To—His Excellency the Viceroy and Governor General of India.

I beg to enclose copies of the resolutions passed at the Annual Meeting of the Society for the Suppression of the Opium Trade held at Exeter Hall on the 3rd instant, and venture to ask for them Your Lordship's favourable consideration.

At the Public Annual Meeting of the Society for the Suppression of the Opium Trade held at Exeter Hall on Tuesday, 3rd June, the following resolution was unanimously adopted:—

Proposed by the Revd. Canon Wilberforce, M.A.;
Seconded by Mr. Frederick Sessions,—

That, in the opinion of this meeting, the alarming spread of the opium vice in the Queen's Indian dominions is an established fact, which calls for the immediate and serious attention of Parliament and of Her Majesty's Government, and that the Government of India should be directed to use the absolute discretion conferred on it by the Indian Opium Act of 1878 by closing the licensed opium dens throughout India, and by the adoption of measures having for their object to limit the sale of opium to that which is necessary for medical use in accordance with the spirit and intention of the Pharmacy Act in force in this country. That copies of this resolution be sent to the Prime Minister, the Secretary and Under-Secretary of State for India, and Her Majesty's Governor General of India.

ARTHUR PEASE,
Chairman.

At the Public Annual Meeting of the Society for the Suppression of the Opium Trade held at Exeter Hall on Tuesday, 3rd June, the following resolution was unanimously adopted:—

Proposed by Mr. Lewis Fry, M.P.;
Seconded by the Revd. W. S. Tomlinson; Supported by Mrs. Parker,—

That in view of the widespread misery and demoralisation caused by opium-smoking throughout the Chinese Empire, the Dutch East Indies, and other parts of the Eastern hemisphere, and in consideration of the serious hindrance to missionary work caused by British connection with the opium trade, this meeting deems the cultivation of the poppy in Bengal by Government license, and under the stimulus of Government advances without interest, the preparation of opium in Government factories expressly to gratify the appetites of those who indulge in this vicious habit, and the sale by auction of the opium so prepared to be a mode of raising revenue contrary to the elementary principles of morality, and utterly inconsistent with the Gospel of Christ. This meeting, therefore, calls upon Parliament no longer to permit the continuance of this evil system. A copy of this resolution to be sent to each of the members for metropolitan constituencies, as well as to the officers of State mentioned in the previous resolution.

ARTHUR PEASE,
Chairman.

No. 4938, dated 18th October 1890.

From—J. F. FINLAY, Esq., Deputy Secretary to the Government of India, FINANCE AND COMMERCE DEPARTMENT,

To—All Local Governments and Administrations.

I am directed to forward copies of a letter from the Chairman of the Society for the Suppression of the Opium Trade, enclosing copy of the resolutions adopted by that Society on the 3rd June 1890, and of a memorial addressed to Her Majesty's Secretary of State by the same Society, together with a reprint of the passages to which references are made in the Appendix to the memorial.

2. I am directed to request that you will submit, for the consideration of the Government of India, any remarks which His Excellency the Governor in Council / His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor / you may desire to make on these papers. The general questions raised in the memorial should be discussed so far as they affect the            , and the suggestion made in paragraph 18 of the memorial regarding the grant of licenses for the retail sale of opium to be consumed on the premises should be specially considered. Your reply should also notice any particular statements regarding the            contained either in the memorial or in the extracts referred to in the Appendix.

No. 1955—218-90 E. I, dated 18th December 1890.

From—CAPTAIN L. S. NEWMARCH, Secretary to the Chief Commissioner of Coorg,

To—The Secretary to the Government of India, FINANCE AND COMMERCE DEPARTMENT.

I am directed to reply to your No. 4938 of the 18th October last, forwarding, for report, a memorial and connected papers submitted to the Secretary of State by the Society for the Suppression of the Opium Trade.

2. The inclosed letter from the Commissioner of Coorg is his report on the subject.

3. The questions raised do not affect Coorg much; and as the orders already passed by the Chief Commissioner, together with any general information that may be required, will be found in the several Annual Reports on the excise administration of the district, Sir Oliver St. John has no special remarks to offer here. He sees no reason, however, for treating opium shops differently from beer or spirit shops.

No. 604—353, dated 29th November 1890.

To—The Secretary to the Chief Commissioner of Coorg.

I have the honour to acknowledge the receipt of your endorsement No. 1713-218 of 3rd instant, giving cover to copy of letter from the Government of India, Finance and Commerce Department, No. 4938, dated 18th October last, and calling for my report thereon; and to submit the following remarks regarding the sale of opium and ganja in Coorg.

2. The exclusive right of sale of opium and ganja, including madat and majum, is leased for periods of three years at a time ordinarily to the highest bidder. Opium is supplied to the contractor by Government, being procured on requisition from the Malwa Opium Agency, and is sold to the contractor at the fixed rate of R1,500 per chest of 140lb 4oz The difference between this rate and the actual cost of the drug is a profit to the State, and amounted in the last official year to R1,209-8-0.

3. The right to the sale of opium and of ganja is put up to public competition separately, but hitherto the monopoly in respect to both has been held by one contractor.

4. In 1880-81 there were two shops in all in Coorg for the sale both of opium and ganja. In 1881-82 the number was increased to three, a shop being opened at each of the towns of Mercara, Virajendrapett, and Fraserpett. Since 1883-84, when the opium and ganja contracts were separately leased, six additional shops have been opened for the sale of ganja, &c., Gonikopal, Somvarpett, and Shanivarasante being the other towns where shops have been opened. There are thus nine shops for the sale of both opium and ganja as compared with two in 1880-81.

5. The revenue to Government from these sources has considerably increased during the same period. In 1880-81 the revenue amounted to R1,200; in 1882-83, to R1,925; in 1883-84, to R2 733. During the subsequent five years, it fluctuated from R760 to R2,745, and in 1889-90 it rose to R3,459-8-0.

6. There can be no question, therefore, that the consumption of these drugs is on the increase. The classes who indulge in them are not the Coorgs, but principally Mahomedans and others of the lower classes, usually strangers from the neighbouring districts.

7. The District Magistrate whom I have consulted considers that "the use of opium and ganja does not exhibit any abnormal signs of increase, alcoholic drinks, the consumption of which is increasing, being a counter-attraction;" but he is in favour of reducing the number of opium and ganja shops, as "the evil effects of the indulgence in these drugs are perceptible in the large towns."

8. The proposal made in the memorial to the Secretary of State to put a stop to the retail sale of opium in the shops is, it seems to me, well deserving of consideration. These shops are the resort of the most worthless and depraved characters in every town, and such gatherings might well be interdicted by law.

9. In regard to ganja shops, where madat and other deleterious substances are consumed, they should, I consider, be entirely disallowed.

10. The existing contracts will expire at the end of March 1892, and there is ample time therefore for the introduction of any restrictive measures which may be contemplated by Government.

No. 601—820 B., dated 27th January 1891.

From—F. C. ANDERSON, Esq., Offg. Secretary to the Chief Commissioner, Central Provinces,
To—The Secretary to the Government of India, FINANCE AND COMMERCE DEPARTMENT.

I am directed to acknowledge the receipt of Mr. Finlay's letter No. 4938, dated the 18th October 1890, forwarding, for the Chief Commissioner's remarks, copies of a letter from the Chairman of the Society for the Suppression of the Opium Trade, together with a copy of the Resolutions adopted by that Society on the 3rd June 1890; also of a memorial addressed to Her Majesty's Secretary of State by the same Society, and a reprint of the passages to which references are made in the appendix to the memorial.

2. In reply I am to forward herewith a copy of a letter from the Commissioner of Excise, Central Provinces, No. 2750, dated the 22nd December last, with a copy of its enclosures, and to invite the special attention of the Government of India to the orders contained in this Administration's letter No. 5106—500, dated the 14th August 1890, to the address of the Commissioner of Excise (a copy of which forms one of the above enclosures).

3. I am to say that the Officiating Chief Commissioner agrees with the Commissioner of Excise in his remarks about distinguishing opium-eating from opium-smoking, and the greater importance of discouraging the latter in every legitimate manner.

No. 2750, dated 22nd December 1890.

From—The Commissioner of Excise, Central Provinces,
To—The Secretary to the Chief Commissioner, Central Provinces.

I have the honour to reply as follows to your endorsement No. 7065—696, dated 7th ultimo, in which I am requested to submit any remarks which I may have to offer on the memorial and resolutions of the Society for the Suppression of the Opium Trade, forwarded with Government of India letter No. 4938, dated 18th October 1890 (Finance and Commerce Department), to the address of the Chief Commissioner, Central Provinces.

2. The points to which the Society invites the attention of the Government of India and the action which it wishes to be taken on these points are apparently as follows:

The Society is of opinion that the consumption of opium, except for medical use, is pernicious, and on this account deplores the spread in India of the consumption of opium as a vice. That consumption is so spreading, it considers to be "an established fact." In order to check this spread of consumption the Society thinks that the sale of opium, except for medical use, should be entirely prohibited. Further, while admitting that the avowed policy of the Government of India is "to obtain a maximum of duty with a minimum of consumption," it thinks that in some cases more stress has been placed by local officers on the former than on the latter clause of this dictum, and, with special reference to these Provinces, it is pointed out in the memorial that in 1888-89 the number of opium shops was apparently 66 in excess of the number established in the previous year while the number of shops licensed for the sale of ganja and other drugs has been steadily rising from 959 in 1882-83 to 1,121 in 1889.

Finally, the Society particularly requests that steps may be at once taken to close all opium dens or shops for the retail sale of opium to be consumed on the premises.

3. With the general question as to whether or not the consumption of opium, otherwise than as a medicine, is pernicious, I do not think it expedient to deal. The question is obviously a purely physiological one, and must be decided by medical men who have sufficient experience of the facts, and a sufficiently detailed knowledge of the people of this country to enable them to say how far and under what circumstances the drug is a necessity to them. What, however, Government has to deal with is the fact that there is among a considerable proportion of the population of this country a marked and almost imperative demand for the drug, and that this demand will (owing to the facility with which the drug can be smuggled), if it is not met by sale under Government supervision of a pure but comparatively high-priced article, be satisfied by illicit means and by opium of worse quality obtained at cheaper rates. The eating of opium (as distinguished from smoking it) in moderate quantities, though generally held in disrepute and regarded as a vice by those who do not indulge in it, is not considered to be always harmful. Indeed, the current belief is that in certain localities, and for certain ages and constitutions, its use may be actually beneficial and conducive to health and longevity. Under these circumstances I venture to think that it would be a useless task for the Government of this country to attempt to suppress altogether the use of the drug. All that it can properly do and does do is to secure the supply of a good article and, by suitable arrangements, to make the retail price of this article as high as is compatible with the prevention of smuggling. Every effort should no doubt also be made to put a stop to the smoking of opium in all its forms, practices which are universally condemned as degrading and pernicious by all native opinion with which I have come in contact.

4. I proceed to show briefly that in these Provinces every thing that is practicable has been done to effect these ends.

The Government opium which is sold from the treasury is issued to dealers at the price of R22 per seer as compared with the cost price as supplied from the factory of R7-4 per seer. Further, the monopolies of retail sale are auctioned each year to the highest bidder, a procedure which raises the price of shops very considerably, and which forces each retail vendor to sell to purchasers at very high rates. These rates vary in various parts of the Province from R35 to R40 and even R50 per seer.

5. Apart from this, shops for the sale of opium are only licensed at the larger villages and bazars where there is an actual and permanent demand for the drug. Thus, out of a total number of 45,854 villages in the Central Provinces, opium shops are only licensed in 1,228, while the average population per opium shop is nearly 10,000 according to the census of 1881, and is probably now considerably greater.

6. Finally, I may note that of the two preparations of opium—chandu and madak—which are used for smoking purposes, licenses for chandu have never been granted in these Provinces, while with regard to madak it has recently been decided, after careful and detailed enquiry, to close all opium-smoking dens in the Province with effect from the 1st April next, and to prohibit entirely the consumption on the premises of licensed vendors of drugs of any kind. The circular which was issued in September last on this subject is appended to this letter (vide Appendix A).

7. I come now to deal with the alleged increase in opium and ganja shops in these Provinces during 1888-89 and since 1882-83 respectively. As regards opium shops, it will be noticed (vide Appendix B) that there was a steady decrease in their number from 1880-81 (1,856) to 1887-88 (1,229). This decrease would have continued in 1888-89 had it not been for the issue of instructions directing that shops previously allowed in weekly bazars, and for which in former years temporary licenses had been granted, were in future to be regarded as permanent shops and included as such in the statements. The apparent increase in the number of shops was therefore purely nominal. The shops which were apparently added were in existence in previous years also, but had not been classed as permanent shops. I append a copy of the circular letter on this subject which shows how this change was made (vide Appendix C).

8. The causes which led to the increase in the number of ganja shops from 1882-83 onwards may be briefly epitomized as follows. The figures are given in the margin for facility of reference:—

| Year. | According to Reports. | As given by Society for the Suppression of the Opium Trade. |
| 1882-83 | 846 | 959 |
| 1883-84 | 891 | 980 |
| 1884-85 | 960 | 984 |
| 1885-86 | 996 | 975 |
| 1886-87 | 1,066 | 1,045 |
| 1887-88 | 1 070 | 1,070 |
| 1888-89 | 1,121 | 1,121 |

1883-84.—The increase was entirely due to the opening of a number of new shops in the Sambalpur District. This district is surrounded on nearly all sides by Feudatory States from which, at that time, untaxed ganja was freely imported. It was impossible to check this traffic without giving further facilities for the purchase by the ganja-consuming public of the taxed Government drug. Hence the addition to the number of shops. In several other districts, i e., Mandla (4), Betul (6), Hoshangabad (4), Narsingpur (7), Bilaspur (14), the number of shops licensed as compared with 1882-83 actually decreased in this year.

1884-85.—The increase in this year is said to have been due to the shops in the Nagpur District having for the first time been sold for the whole year instead of month by month as had previously been the case. There was apparently little or no increase in the actual number of shops in existence (vide paragraph 47 of the Central Provinces Excise Report for 1884-85). The explanation given in the Report is not very clear, but I am unable to ascertain anything further with regard to it.

1885-86.—The increase occurred chiefly in Chanda (16), Mandla (10), and Betul (15), and was due to the fact already referred to that it was found to be impracticable to displace the smuggled and cheaper article which was being illicitly imported from Berar and the Central India Feudatory States without opening more shops for the purchase by consumers of the local drug.

The increase in 1886-87 and 1887-88 was due to similar causes. It was chiefly confined to the Chhattisgarh Division, where the habit of smoking ganja is very general and where, owing to the numerous Feudatory States by which the Khalsa area is surrounded, smuggling is extremely easy. The only effectual method of checking this illicit traffic is to provide sufficient facilities for the sale of the Khalsa drug and, when this has been done, to punish with adequate severity all detected smugglers

The methods which have been adopted have so far proved successful. The consumption of the taxed drug has increased, while smuggling is far less frequent than it formerly was.

The apparent increase in shops in 1888-89 was due to the same causes as have been already referred to in connection with opium shops, i.e., to the inclusion in the statements of certain shops which had been previously regarded as temporary.

9. The present number of ganja shops appears to be adequate for the existing conditions of the Province I do not think that any further increase will be necessary, and every endeavour will be made to abolish all shops which do not meet a permanent and regular demand.

10. In conclusion, I would point out that the figures showing the number of opium and ganja shops in the Central Provinces, which are given in the printed papers forwarded with your letter, do not, in several cases, agree with those in the Annual Excise Reports. The latter figures are given in Appendix B for facility of reference.

APPENDIX A.

Circular No. 4, dated 5th September 1890.

From—H. H. PRIEST, Esq., Offg. Commissioner of Excise, Central Provinces,
To—All Deputy Commissioners, Central Provinces.

In forwarding, for your information and guidance, copy of a letter from the Secretary to the Chief Commissioner, containing the Chief Commissioner's orders regarding the proposal to close madak shops and prohibit the manufacture of madak, I have the honour to inform you that the instructions contained in that letter should have effect given to them from the 1st April 1891. From that date, the consumption of opium, madak, ganja, foreign bhang, or majum on the premises of the licensed vendors of these drugs will be entirely prohibited, and a condition to this effect will be inserted in all leases granted to such vendors. These orders should be promptly made known to all who are interested in the sale of drugs. When they come into force, special care will have to be taken to prevent the illicit manufacture of madak; and for this end a watch must be maintained by both the Police and Excise Officers upon all habitual assemblages of madak smokers, and the sources of supply should be quietly ascertained in all such cases. Attention is also invited to the instructions contained in paragraphs 3 and 4 of the Secretariat letter, which should be very carefully complied with. From my own experience, I incline to think that it is possible to reduce considerably the number of madak shops in these Provinces, and Deputy Commissioners should carefully consider this point when submitting their annual proposals regarding the Excise arrangements of their several districts in November next.

No. 5106—500, dated 14th August, 1890.

From—L. K. LAURIE, Esq., Offg. Secretary to the Chief Commissioner, Central Provinces,
To—The Commissioner of Excise, Central Provinces.

I am directed to acknowledge receipt of your letter No. 1767, dated the 8th instant, submitting the replies received by you from Commissioners and Deputy Commissioners on the subject of your proposal to close madak shops and prohibit the manufacture of madak.

2. I am to say that after carefully considering the various arguments adduced, the Chief Commissioner is of opinion that, while there is much to be said in favour of the entire prohibition of the manufacture of madak, it is inadvisable, in view of the opinions expressed on the other side, to go as far as this at present. He thinks that the step which the facts and papers before him render justifiable and expedient is to put a stop to the practice of allowing vendors of intoxicating drugs to maintain "taverns" for the consumption not only of madak, but of opium and ganja and all their preparations. It should be a condition of all retail licenses hereafter granted for the sale of intoxicating drugs of any kind that the drug is not to be consumed on the premises. Persons who cannot do without their regular dose of a narcotic must carry home from the shop what they require and smoke, or swallow it in private. Gregariousness in habits of vice must no longer be encouraged by Government.

3. As a rule, I am to add, the opium and madak contracts should in future be sold together. The opium vendor should be also the madak vendor; and if he declines in any instance to combine the sale of the preparation with the sale of the drug from which it is prepared the madak shop should be closed.

4. Finally, no new licenses to manufacture and sell madak should be given in places where there are no madak shops at present, even though there may be an opium shop. As an ordinary rule, madak-licenses should be granted only at large centres of population, where there is a considerable and permanent demand for the preparation.

APPENDIX C.

Circular No. 2981, dated 7th December 1887.

From—L. K. LAURIE, Esq., Officiating Commissioner of Excise, Central Provinces,
To—All Deputy Commissioners, Central Provinces.

It has been brought to my notice by the Deputy Commissioner of Wardha that the rules contained in the Excise Manual as to temporary licenses are sometimes misunderstood or misapplied. Under cover of a temporary license granted for a weekly bazar, the licensee keeps his retail shop open daily (and not merely on bazar days) in the villages in which the weekly bazar is held. If it pays him to do this, it is obvious that he ought to pay a separate license-fee for the (so-called) "temporary" shop as though it were a permanent shop: or if a permanent shop is not really required, he should not be allowed to keep the shop open on other days than bazar days.

2. The difficulty is that it is not always possible to maintain such a watch as to make sure that a licensee of a "temporary" shop sells only on bazar days. It seems to me that villages at which there is a weekly bazar should be distinguished from places at which bazars are held at rare intervals, say once or twice a year. Shops at the former places should be regarded as permanent and licensed as such whenever it is probable that it will pay the licensee to keep his agent permanently in the villages (even though the sales on days other than bazar days may be small) than to send the latter and his stock-in-trade out every week to the bazar site. There will be nothing harsh or revolutionary in this measure, for the bids for these permanent shops which depend mainly for their profits on weekly bazars will take full account of the sale prospects. Temporary licenses for bazar shops should only be granted when the bazar is held in a place the resident population of which is insignificantly small, or which is at such a short distance from the nearest permanent shop that the licensee of the latter can be under no temptation to maintain a permanent branch shop under cover of the temporary license.

3. The foregoing remarks apply to opium shops and ganja shops (paragraphs 38 and 49 of the Manual) as well as to liquor shops (paragraph 28½). If they meet with acceptance from you, they may be given practical effect to at the approaching auctions.

No. 466 R., dated 31st January, 1891.

From—F. C. DAUKES, Esq. Secretary to the Chief Commissioner of Assam,

To—The Secretary to the Government of India, FINANCE AND COMMERCE DEPARTMENT.

I am directed to acknowledge the receipt of your letter No. 4938, dated the 18th October 1890, forwarding copies of a communication from the Chairman of the Society for the Suppression of the Opium Trade with copy of the Resolutions adopted by that Society on the 3rd June 1890, and of a memorial addressed to Her Majesty's Secretary of State by the same Society, together with a reprint of the passages to which references are made in the appendix to the memorial.

2. In reply I am to forward the accompanying copies of letters from the Commissioner of Excise, Assam, and the Commissioner of the Assam Valley Districts, which, in the Chief Commissioner's opinion, furnish conclusive answers to the memorialists so far as opium and opium-dens are concerned. The latter, however numerous in large Indian cities, are unsuited to the habits and ways of living of a sparse agricultural population, such as that of Assam, and are not found in this Province.

3. In regard to licenses for the sale of narcotic drugs, I am to point out that while it is true, as stated in paragraph 6 of the memorial, that the number of shops for the sale of narcotic drugs rose between the years 1879-80 and 1888-89, yet the numbers for the past four years have been almost constant (vide table under paragraph 51, page 21 of the Excise Administration Report of Assam for 1889-90), and that, as shown in table No. 1, appended to Mr. Driberg's note, now forwarded the number of such shops was reduced to 279 for the year 1890-91. At the same time, the duty on choor ganja was raised from R6-8 to R7 per seer from 1st of April 1890

4. In conclusion, I am to say that the Chief Commissioner bases no argument on the increase of population which the forthcoming census is expected to show, until he has before him the actual figures by which it can be supported.

No. 1 T., dated 2nd December 1890.

From—J. J. S. DRIBERG, Esq., Commissioner of Excise, Assam,

To—The Secretary to the Chief Commissioner of Assam.

With reference to your letter No. 3590 R. of the 12th November 1890, I have the honour to submit herewith a note in reply to the Government of India's letter No. 4938 of the 18th October 1890, forwarding a memorial from the Society for the Suppression of the Opium Trade.

Note on the Memorial of the Society for the Suppression of the Opium Trade, presented to the Secretary of State on the 30th July 1890, copy received with Government of India's letter No. 4938 (Finance and Commerce), dated the 18th October 1890.

The question relating to the consumption of opium and other drugs in this Province has been discussed more than once with reference to similar memorials made to the Secretary of State and the Government of India. I can recollect that I have twice at least reported, and only within the last few years I gave the Commissioner of Assam a note on the subject.

2. For readier reference I enclose two statements, No. I showing the number of shops licensed in each year, since the formation of this Chief Commissionership, for the sale of opium and other drugs, and showing also the total consumption of the drugs, and No. II, a similar statement of the number of places in which madak and chandu are sold, and the quantity of opium converted into these admixtures of opium. In statement No. I I have given the duty on opium year by year up to date.

3. It seems to me that these statements are in themselves a complete refutation of the charge, so far as this Province is concerned, that Government encourages the use of these drugs by increasing the number of shops, or in other ways attracting people to their use. It will be seen that in 1874-75, when Assam was formed into a separate Chief Commissionership, we had 447 ganja shops, 58 places of vend for madak and chandu, and 3,977 opium shops; in the present year, 1890-91, we have 279 ganja shops, 33 places where madak and chandu are sold, and 934 opium shops. Surely this is evidence that we have striven to keep our shops at the lowest number actually required by the people, and it is hoped to further reduce the madak and chandu shops. In his Resolution on the Provincial Excise Report of the past year the Chief Commissioner wrote as follows regarding these shops :—"These shops must be kept down to the smallest number consistent with the absence of inducements to smuggle, and must be still further reduced as opportunity offers."

4. I would also point to the duty on opium. In 1874-75 it was R23 a seer; in 1876-77 it was raised to R24, in 1879-80 to R26, in 1883-84 to R32, and since the 1st of April 1890 it has been raised to R37. Surely this, taken with the reduction,—a very large reduction,—in the number of opium shops is proof of the desire of Government to obtain a minimum of consumption with a maximum of duty, or, in other words, to make the drug as expensive as possible to the consumers and not to place facilities of obtaining it in their way. These remarks apply equally to ganja. The duty has been steadily raised and the shops reduced.

5. In paragraph 18 of the memorial a suggestion is made that all opium-dens or shops for the retail sale of opium to be consumed on the premises should be closed. Now I can positively state that there are no "opium-dens" in this Province such as have been described by Mr. Caine and other gentlemen; none of our opium-eaters in the Province sit in the opium shops and consume the opium. All our opium-sellers carry on other business besides the sale of opium: nearly every opium vendor in the Province sells also rice, dal, cloths, and other articles. A purchaser of opium may or may not consume the opium on the premises; the generality of them carry it home. Opium is not smoked in Assam as a rule: it is swallowed in its crude state in the form of a pill, or it is diluted with water and drunk. Now a man when he wants opium buys ⅛ of a tola, or ¼ of a tola, or ½ a tola, and consumes part of it at once, and puts the remainder in a pot (debia) which he carries with him. If you hinder him from swallowing a pill in the shop he will do so outside of it. In fact there is no such thing as going into a shop. The place of vend is open on the outside, the vendor sits on a chang, or platform, the purchaser standing in a narrow verandah outside makes his purchase and leaves. There is no room into which he is invited to enter or into which he can go and rest if so inclined. After making his purchase he must go on or sit below the nearest tree. The conditions of Upper India do not apply to this Province. We have not a single "opium-den," and it is not necessary to make any change in the mode of sale. We wish to restrict people to making small purchases of the drug. This will not result from debarring them from consuming the opium in the shop verandah or outside it. If you compel a man not to take opium near a shop, he will be careful to have a larger supply always at home, and this will be worse for him and worse for all the inmates of the house.

6. Much is said in the printed papers under consideration of the "alarming spread of the opium vice." This is not the case: again see Statement I. Our consumption of opium has fallen from 1,837 maunds in 1874-75 to 1,411 maunds in 1888-89. In the following year there was an increase of some 80 maunds; but this does not indicate increased consumption last year, but increased purchases by the vendors. As soon as it was known that the price was to be enhanced by R5 a seer from the 1st of April 1890, vendors laid in larger stocks in February and March for the current year.

7. Then, again, I am not prepared to admit that the present use of opium in Assam is a "vice." In most cases it is a necessity. When we first acquired Assam (I now speak of the Assam Valley) every villager grew his own opium, just as he now does his vegetables or his chillies for his curry. He had no tax to pay for his opium-field, no restrictions placed on him. The former rulers recognised that a certain amount of the drug was necessary. Taking it broadly, and excluding tea-gardens, the valley is inhabited by two classes; the Coachariss, Lalongs, Meches, and other aboriginal tribes who reside on the higher submontane tracts or along the high banks of the larger rivers, and the Hindus, the Kolitas, Koshes, Keots, and others who reside in the low-lying country subject annually to inundation and always damp. The former people do not use opium: they do not require it; but the lowlanders use it. They are the opium-eaters of Assam. They live in a low, damp part of the country; year after year parts of their villages are submerged and temporarily abandoned; and these people use opium to counteract the damp and malaria. They themselves say that they would die from fevers if they did not use opium, and I have known medical men who have had much experience of the Province hold the same view. These people are opium-eaters, but not of the class described in the papers. They are good agriculturists, good subjects, and good fathers of families. They take their opium just as a good Englishman would take his peg. Of course there are Assamese who take too much opium, just as there are Englishmen who take too much liquor; but that opium-eating is always a vice, I am not prepared to admit so far as Assamese are concerned, and that it is increasing I deny, and the statement I have referred to proves. In the Surma Valley little opium is consumed. The people there use ganja rather than opium, and even there the consumption of this drug is smaller now than it was in 1874-75, and the duty is higher.

No. 7046, dated 30th December 1890.

From—H. Luttman-Johnson, Esq., Commissioner of the Assam Valley Districts,
To—The Secretary to the Chief Commissioner of Assam.

I have the honour to acknowledge the receipt of your letter No. 3589, dated the 12th November 1890, forwarding copy of a Circular letter, No. 4938, dated 18th October 1890, from the Deputy Secretary to the Government of India, in which the Chief Commissioner is requested to submit any remarks which he may desire to make on a memorial submitted to the Secretary of State by the Society for the Suppression of the Opium Trade.

In my letter No. 1459,* dated 5th April 1889, I reported generally on what we had done for the suppression of the consumption of drugs and spirituous liquors. I find myself unable to imagine what further remarks it is expected that the Chief Commissioner should make. It cannot be intended that he should reiterate yet again the history of our interference with opium-eating and smoking in this Province, or even give an account of the efforts made during the last few years to suppress this noxious habit: that has all been reported again and again. In my division I have this year 900 shops, and the consumption of excise opium will be about 1,300 maunds. In 1884, when I took charge, there were 1,188 shops, and the consumption of excise opium was 1,397 maunds. In the year 1873-74, when the Province was included in the Lieutenant-Governorship of Bengal, there were 4,751 shops for sale of opium and its compound in this valley, and the consumption of excise opium was 1,758 maunds. I have always held that there is illicit importation both of excise opium and of contraband opium. I do not understand that the Society for the Suppression of the Opium Traffic accuse us of conniving at the smuggling of opium. The suppression of smuggling with opium selling at R37 a seer at the treasury is an almost impossible task in a country where most of the traders come from the Native States of Rajputana, and which is crowded with immigrants from Nepal. But we are making further efforts in this direction. The fact is that ever since we occupeid Assam the suppression of the opium trade has been one of the cardinal points in our policy. In our efforts to suppress it we have gone as far as it was possible to go with any chance of success. I think the success of our last step, the raising of the treasury price from R32 to R37 per seer is not yet assured.

*Vide enclosure to letter No. 1083, dated the 21st April 1887, from the Secretary to the Chief Commissioner of Assam, to the Secretary to the Government of India, Department of Finance and Commerce.

2. With regard to the specific proposal made by the Society that our licenses for the retail sale of opium should not include consumption on the premises, I have the honour to say that consumption on the premises is not common in my division. In the case of opium shops proper, of which I have 880, I may say that the drug is never consumed on the premises. In the case of chandu shops (I have three shops for sale of chandu and seven for sale of madak and chandu) the drug is always consumed on the premises. In the case of madak shops, of which I have ten, besides the seven licensed to sell both madak and chandu, it is often consumed on the premises. My annual Excise Reports give full particulars of the number of these shops and the opium taken on their account from the treasury in each year. In 1889-90, 13 maunds 16 seers were sold from the treasury for madak and chandu shops out of a total of 1,398 maunds. I would not mind closing these shops; such a measure would make no difference to the habits of the people. The few people who use them, chiefly foreigners, would make some other arrangements.

3. The consumption of opium, deleterious as the drug undoubtedly is, is not, from the Society point of view, a crying evil in this division. I think that ganja-smoking does much more harm than opium-eating or smoking. The habit of ganja-smoking is difficult to control, partly because ganja grows wild, and it is difficult to decide whether it is growing of itself or for use as an intoxicant, partly because the use of the drug forms an important part of religious ceremonies. I would commend to the Society's attention an article in the Pioneer newspaper of December 4th, 1890, on the subject of intemperance in India. The control of habits of intemperance so ancient and so well established, so intimately connected with religious ceremonies, as are those we meet with in India, is no easy task.

No. 1—10 E., dated 2nd February 1891.

From—H. THIRKELL WHITE, Esq., Secretary to the Chief Commissioner, Burma,

To—The Secretary to the Government of India, FINANCE AND COMMERCE DEPARTMENT.

I am directed to acknowledge the receipt of your letter No. 4938, dated the 18h October 1890, concerning representations made by the Society for the Suppression of the Opium Trade on the subject of the consumption of opium in India.

2. I am to submit a copy of a memorandum, dated the 8th December 1890, by the Financial Commissioner, on the subject of the representations made by the Society so far as they affect this Province, and I am also to communicate the following remarks.

The main propositions advanced by the Society are—

(i) that the habit of opium-smoking is on the increase;

(ii) that houses licensed for consumption on the premises are causes of great demoralization.

The measures advocated by the Society are the closing of all opium shops, and the absolute prohibition of the sale and possession of opium except for medicinal purposes, or at any rate the closing of all shops licensed for the retail sale of opium to be consumed on the premises.

3. As regards the allegation that the habit of opium-smoking is on the increase, the statement is not made with special reference to this Province. The following table shows the quantity of opium taken out from the treasuries in Lower Burma and the number of shops in each year since the year 1878-79:—

| | Quantity taken out from treasury. | Number of shops. |
|---|---|---|
| | Seers. | |
| 1878-79 | 46,603 | 67 |
| 1879-80 | 47,797 | 67 |
| 1880-81 | 54,265 | 68 |
| 1881-82 | 41,857 | 28 |
| 1882-83 | 41,349 | 18 |
| 1883-84 | 43,291 | 18 |
| 1884-85 | 41,993 | 13 |
| 1885-86 | 38,710 | 17 |
| 1886-87 | 45,983 | 17 |
| 1887-88 | 48,226 | 15 |
| 1888-89 | 51,139 | 16 |
| 1889-90 | 53,348 | 20 |

There is no reason to believe that the increase in consumption during the past four years indicates any serious extension during that period of the practice of opium-eating and smoking among the Burmese, or that it is greatly disproportionate to the growth of the non-Burman population. Some part of it is certainly due to improved checks upon illicit consumption. It will be observed that the issues in 1889-90 were below those in 1880-81. At the same time there is evidence that the consumption of opium by Burmese is in some districts of Lower Burma already very considerable, and there can be no doubt that it is to people of that race an absolute poison, destroying their morals, and degrading them in every way. It cannot, moreover, be assumed that the figures showing the quantity of opium issued by Government to licensed vendors are a correct indication of the total quantity of opium consumed. In spite of the efforts which have been made to put a stop to smuggling much illicit traffic in opium is still carried on. Sir Alexander Mackenzie would be disposed to infer from the reports and evidence before him that the use of opium among the Burmese is increasing, though not as yet to any very serious extent, save in special tracts, such as Arakan, the seaport towns, and the delta of the Irrawaddy.

3. But, even if it is admitted that the consumption of opium is increasing, the question whether the Government can take effectual measures to check the increase remains for consideration. The reduction in the number of retail shops has little effect in Lower Burma on the quantity of opium issued to retail vendors. If the number of shops is reduced, the average quantity of opium sold by each shop increases. In spite of all precautions the licensees arrange to hawk their opium about the country. If all shops were closed, it is certain that illicit trade would be carried on to a great extent, and, so long as the possession of opium in the authorised quantities by Burmans is allowed, the difficulty of checking this traffic is almost insuperable. It has, moreover, been frequently explained that there is in this rovince a Pconsiderable non-Burman population consisting of Shans, Chinese, and others, who are accustomed to the moderate use of opium, and who consume it without ill-effects, or even with beneficial results. The Chief Commissioner is not prepared to advise the absolute prohibition of the possession or sale of opium in Burma by persons of non-Burman descent. Such a step would be an unjustifiable interference with the habits of a large section of the population and would be quite impossible to enforce. As the Financial Commissioner remarks, even the prohibition of the use of ganja cannot be absolutely enforced. Indians who are accustomed to use it will have it and can arrange to get it. The enforcement of a general prohibition of the use of opium would present still greater difficulties, as the classes which consume opium are far more numerous than those which consume ganja. As regards this Province the opium question has been frequently discussed, and the opinions of the most experienced officers have been more than once placed on record. It may be considered as established beyond question that there is a legitimate demand for opium among the foreign residents in Burma, which would exist whether Government countenanced the use of opium or not; that if Governmemt decided to declare the sale or possession of opium generally illegal, the demand would be supplied by illicit means; and that the results of any attempt to enforce absolute prohibition of the use of opium would be the loss of a large amount of revenue without any commensurate benefit.

4. In the case of Upper Burma, where the prohibition of the use of opium by Burmans is well understood and was nominally enforced by the Burmese Government, the sale of opium to Burmans is prohibited by law. In Lower Burma, where for many years the sale of opium to Burmans has been permitted, successive Chief Commissioners have come to the conclusion, though not altogether without hesitation, that a prohibition such as that which exists in Upper Burma could not rightly be issued or enforced. Sir Alexander Mackenzie, with his present limited experience of the country, has some hesitation in expressing an opinion differing from that of his predecessors; but he finds, on perusing the voluminous reports and correspondence on the subject, that the unanimous voice of all respectable Burmans denounces the use of opium by men of their race and temperament as deleterious and harmful in a very special degree. This judgment is confirmed by every European authority in the Province, official and non-official. In view of this consensus of opinion Sir Alexander Mackenzie would himself be willing to see the possession of opium in any quantity by natives of Burma declared illegal, save under medical certificate, both in Lower and Upper Burma. This measure would no doubt diminish the revenue and cause a certain amount of personal suffering and inconvenience to Burmans who had contracted the habit. But it is, in the Chief Commissioner's opinion, the only way of preventing the extension of consumption among the Burman population. Even in Upper Burma, where sale to Burmans is prohibited, a Burman may legally possess 10 tolahs weight of opium and 5 seers of poppy-heads. It would seldom be possible to trace the source from which the drug had been procured. The true and radical remedy is to declare the possession of any quantity illegal.

5. This was the conclusion clearly indicated by the argument in paragraphs 9 to 12 of Sir Charles Aitchison's Minute * on the subject of the 30th April 1880, paragraphs which are reprinted in an annexure to this letter, Sir Charles Aitchison gave two reasons, and only two, for not acting upon that conclusion. One was the existence of a large opium-consuming non-Burman population. The other was that it would be cruel to withdraw the drug suddenly from the large number of Burmans whom we had allowed to take to it. Sir Alexander Mackenzie does not propose to interfere with the supply to foreigners of non-Burman race. As regards opium-eating Burmans, it is only necessary to provide for the case of those men of the present generation who are too old to break themselves of the habit all at once with safety. It might be provided by rule that Burmans of say not less than 40 years of age, who were accustomed to opium, might register themselves as 'foreigners' for the purpose of the Opium Act and Rules, and receive a certificate entitling them to purchase and possess the ordinary legal quantity. The registers once made up would be finally closed, and no such exception would be made hereafter. If the two collections of (further) papers relating to the consumption of opium in Burma, published in 1885 and 1886, be examined, it will be seen that the opinions of many local authorities,† especially of those best acquainted with the Burmese, leant to the side of total prohibition, and, so far as Sir Alexander Mackenzie can see, no new arguments against this were advanced beyond those mentioned above. The chief reason for setting aside the suggestion was, the Chief Commissioner has little doubt, the loss of revenue involved. He is well aware that there would be difficulty in enforcing such a prohibition, but he would not despair of making it more and more effective in its operation as time went on. The law would, to say the least, be a schoolmaster inculcating on the Burmese mind the disfavour with which in their case the Government viewed the use of opium. The Government is at present in this respect in a false position.

6. There remains the question whether shops should be licensed for the sale of opium to be consumed on the premises. The remarks of the Society on this point apply to other Provinces, but it is understood that their recommendation in this matter is of general application, and that, if they cannot obtain the absolute prohibition of the sale of opium, they wish the practice of the consumption of opium on the premises of licensed shops to be generally forbidden. There is in the correspondence already before the Government of India a considerable body of opinion among the local authorities consulted in this Province that one of the measures which might be taken to check the consumption of opium is the prohibition of its possession elsewhere than in a licensed shop. On this point opinions are not indeed unanimous, but the weight of opinion seems to incline in this direction. Sir Charles Aitchison, in his Minute of the 30th April 1880, recommended the adoption of this proposal. On the other hand, in his note forwarded with this office letter No. 8983-3—8, dated the 30th December, 1880, Sir Charles Bernard showed cause against it; but later, as appears from paragraph 7 of this office letter No 188-9 E., dated the 8th December 1886, his view of the proposal seems to have been modified, and he thought it possible that some such arrangement might be desirable hereafter. The view taken by the officers who have advised that opium should be allowed to be consumed only in licensed shops is that Burmans of the more respectable classes will not acquire the habit of opium-eating or smoking if they are unable to take opium to their own homes, and that public opinion eould be more efficiently exercised under an arrangement of this kind. On the other hand, officers whose opinion is entitled to respect have shown cause against this proposal and support the view taken by the Society. If the suggestion above put forward (that the possession of opium in any quantity by natives of Burma should be illegal) found acceptance, there would, in Sir Alexander Mackenzie's opinion, be no need to interfere with the consumption on the premises of the licensed shops, which would be frequented only by Chinese and other opium consuming races. The existence of such places would in a measure facilitate the exercise of check upon the habits of the Burman population. But if the Government of India is not prepared to accept the proposal in question, then Sir Alexander Mackenzie has no hesitation in declaring himself an advocate for the absolute closing of opium taverns to men of Burmese race. As Chief Commissioner of the Central Provinces (where there are no Chinese or other races generally accustomed to drugs,) he ordered the closing of all drug taverns on the ground that it was desirable to put a stop to the temptation afforded by gregariousness in vice, and he sees no reason to doubt that the same principle would apply in Burma. He has no faith in the check supposed to be exercised by "public opinion," which is the main argument relied on by those who advocate the restriction of consumption to licensed premises. Public opinion has failed to check the resort of Burmans to opium shops in Arakan and other places. Only the law and its penalties can prevent the extension of a habit so pernicious to the Burman race, and the Chief Commissioner would, as already indicated, place under the stigma of criminal law the use of opium by any members of that race and, failing this, he would exclude them from all opium shops, and make them consume their poison, if they will have it, in the retirement of their homes.

7. It is indisputable that the Chief Commissioner's proposals would involve some sacrifice of revenue in Lower Burma; but Sir Alexander Mackenzie does not think that this ought to outweigh the moral considerations on the other side; and if it were possible to prohibit the importation of Yunnan and other foreign opium into Upper Burma, and to insist on the general use by foreigners of the Bengal drug, it would probably be found that the loss to Government over the whole Province would be largely made up. The Chief Commissioner is not, however, as yet in a position to say whether the enforcement of such a measure in Upper Burma would be feasible. It is a question which he has asked the Financial Commissioner to consider. The Government of India may, moreover, see some political objection to interfering so directly with the China frontier trade; but, if the loss of revenue should prove to be serious, he believes that Burmese opinion would accept a moderate increase of the land-tax or the rice duty as a small price to pay for the withdrawal of the drug which is ruining so many of their race.

ANNEXURE 1.

No. 372—186 E., dated 17th December 1890.

From—W. H. A. St. J. Leeds, Esq., Secretary to the Financial Commissioner, Burma,
To—The Chief Secretary to the Chief Commissioner, Burma.

In reply to your No. 841-36 E., dated the 24th November 1890, I am directed to submit a note by the Financial Commissioner on the recommendations of the Society for the Suppression of the Opium Trade.

Dated 8th December 1890.

Note by F. W. R. Freyer, Esq., C.S.I., Financial Commissioner, Burma, on the recommendations of the Society for the Suppression of the Opium Trade.

The general questions raised in the memorial of the Society for the Suppression of the Opium Trade, received with the Government of India, Finance and Commerce Department No. 4938, dated the 18th October 1890, so far as they affect Burma, are—

(i) all remaining opium licenses should be withdrawn;

(ii) complete prohibition is the only effective mode of protecting the population of the recently acquired Province of Upper Burma from the evil habit of opium-smoking which has wrought such havoc in Lower Burma:

and it is recommended that opium dens or shops for the retail sale of opium to be consumed on the premises should be at once closed throughout British India.

2. The question of withdrawing all remaining opium licenses has been fully discussed in the Memorandum of Sir Charles Aitchison, dated the 30th April, 1880, and in a Note by Sir Charles Bernard, dated the 23rd December, 1880.

In Sir Charles Aitchison's Memorandum, which the Society quote with approval, the following passages occur :—

"13. But there are considerations of another kind which, in my judgment, make it impossible altogether to prohibit the supply of opium. In the first place we have, for more than half a century in one part of the Province, and more than a quarter of a century in the rest of it, allowed the habit of opium smoking to grow up among certain classes of the Burmese. Having ministered to this taste, we should not be justified in suddenly withdrawing the supply at the risk of the lives of the unhappy consumers if the further spread of the evil can be prevented in any other way. In the next place there are large numbers of the non Burmese community, constituting perhaps the most thriving and industrious section of the population, to whom the drug is a necessary of life and by whom it is rarely abused. It is impossible to say precisely what the numbers* of the Chinese and natives of India are, but they are probably not less than 200,000. The legitimate requirements of these people must necessarily be considered and provided for. Fortunately they are collected in tolerably well defined centres.

* According to the census of 1872, in a population of 2,747,148, there were 13,561 or 0·49 per cent. Chinese and Malays, and 136,048 or 4·97 per cent. natives of India. Applying the same ratio to a population of 3,088,902 in 1878-79, there would be Chinese and Malays 15,135, natives of India 153,518.

"14. We must therefore be content to restrict and regulate a consumption which it is impossible for the present altogether to prevent. The first and most obvious step is to reduce the number of shops for the retail of opium : this is a measure which rests entirely in the hands of the local Administration. Before the next licensing season comes round, the history of every shop in the Province will be enquired into, and the opinions of District Officers and Commissioners will be taken as to the necessity for maintaining them. Such shops as are not declared to be really necessary, or may be situated where effective control cannot be exercised, will be closed. Licenses for new shops in new localities will not in future be granted, except on the strongest evidence that they are needed to meet a bonâ fide demand and in places where the shops can be strictly supervised. A copy of the instructions issued to Commissioners is attached to this memorandum for information."

3. In Sir Charles Bernard's note, in paragraphs 9 and 11, he concurs with Sir Charles Aitchison and writes as follows :—

9. "If it be admitted that the spread of opium shops and opium facilities is working evil among the Burmans and Arakanese, there is still doubt about the most suitable measure for checking the evil. Some officers have proposed that all opium shops in Arakan, if not in the whole of Burma, should be at once closed, and that opium should be made contraband, as was done with ganja a few years ago. Seeing that we have so large a Chinese and Indian population, seeing that some opium is sure to come into the country somehow, seeing that a considerable section of the population has become accustomed to opium for many years past, and seeing that the large revenue of 13 lakhs is involved, I do not think that such an extreme measure is at present required.

* * * * * * * * * *

"11. I think the most practical plan will be to follow the course indicated at paragraph 14 of Mr. Aitchison's Minute, dated the 30th April, to reduce considerably the number of shops, and to enhance the selling price of the drug, all of which is supplied by the State to the vendors under a most strict monopoly. We can hardly expect that there will be no illicit traffic in opium, but at any rate such traffic will become more difficult and costly. Persons already habituated to opium-smoking will probably continue to get opium somehow so long as they can afford to pay a sufficient price. But, at any rate, the spread of the habit among young men will be restricted, and when facilities for obtaining opium are largely reduced, and its price considerably enhanced, young men who have not yet settled down into habitual smoking will gradually forego the luxury. The reports received from the several Divisional and District Officers in reply to Mr. Aitchison's Minute enable us to settle what opium shops may properly be closed. The price of opium from the Government stores can, with the sanction of the Government of India, be raised to such rate as may be possible without inducing smuggling from Bengal or elsewhere. The selling price of opium in Chittagong, where the Bengal Government have recently raised the rate to R26 per seer, will guide us in fixing rates for the issue of Government opium to licensed vendors in Arakan, Pegu, and Tenasserim."

4. In accordance with the policy advocated by the two Chief Commissioners whose opinions I have quoted, the number of shops was gradually reduced from 68 in 1880-81 to 15 1887-88, the number in each division of Lower Burma being in 1887-88—

|---|---|
| Arakan division | 1 |
| Pegu division | 4 |
| Irrawaddy division | 3 |
| Tenasserim division | 7 |
| TOTAL | 15 |

In 1881-82 the price of opium was raised to R28 per seer in the Arakan division and to R32 per seer in all other divisions. The result of these measures was that the sales of opium rose at each of the limited number of shops, and in 1887-88 fifteen shops sold 6,039 seers of opium less than the sales of 1880-81, when there were 68 shops. The sales in 1887-88 were 48,226 seers.

5. In the Resolution on the Excise Report for 1887-88 Sir Charles Crosthwaite remarked in paragraph 2—

" Of the 3½ lakhs of increased revenue obtained from excise in 1887-88 two lakhs have been derived from opium. The opium revenue of Lower Burma is steadily increasing. This the Chief Commissioner regards as a natural consequence of the better regulation of the opium traffic, and when the traffic in Upper Burma is brought under supervision and the smuggling of Yunnan opium into Lower Burma is checked the opium revenue will still further increase. The increase of the opium revenue does not necessarily indicate an increase of the consumption of opium, but only that those who use opium are compelled to procure it only from the licensed dealers. The use of opium is condemned by public opinion in Lower Burma no less than in Upper Burma, and the Chief Commissioner agrees in the opinion that the more the consumption of opium is regulated and the more illicit consumption of opium is repressed the less will persons not already habituated to its use take to it for the first time.

" The reduction of the number of shops and the closing of all shops in districts where it is known that opium is consumed is shown by experience to be futile and, in the Chief Commissioner's opinion, is actively mischievous. A reference to Statement No. 7 in the Appendix will show that districts to which shops are denied supply themselves from other districts The incidence of revenue per head in Akyab, where there is only one shop, is R0-15-10. In Prome it is R-0-14-0, in Bassein R-0-10-4, in Toungoo R-0-12-7, in Rangoon Town R4-1-6, in Moulmein R2-12-0. These figures mean that the districts which are not allowed to have shops supply themselves from the nearest shops. It is certain that the licensed vendor in Prome, for example, sends out hawkers to go round and supply the people in Tharrawaddy and Thayetmyo. The Akyab shop supplies the Arakan division. The Bassein and Rangoon shops supply Thongwa. Besides which the difficulty and cost of getting Government opium from distant shops gives a great stimulus to smuggled foreign opium.

" The Chief Commissioner wishes the Financial Commissioner to consider whether the policy of closing shops has not gone too far. The Chief Commissioner has had a statement prepared which is appended* to this Resolution, which shows the number of shops, the amount of opium issued from the treasury, and the amount of opium issued per shop for each year since 1878-70. In 1878-79, when there were 67 licensed shops in Lower Burma, 46,002 seers of opium were issued from the treasury, or 690 seers per shop. In 1880-81 the number of shops was 68, and 54,265 seers of opium, or 798 seers per shop, were issued. In 1881-82 the number of shops was reduced to 28, and the price of opium was raised by R8 a seer in the Arakan division and by R4 a seer in the rest of Lower Burma. The immediate result was that the opium issued fell to 41,857 seers, or 1,495 seers per shop. In 1882-83 the number of shops was again lowered to 18, but the price of opium issued from the treasury was not enhanced The result was that the opium issued was only 00 seers less than in the previous year, and the issues of opium have been steadily recovering themselves till in 1887-88 the issues have been 50,485 seers with only 15 shops, or only 3,780 seers less than in 1888-89, when there were 68 shops. This shows that the amount of opium consumed in the Province cannot be permanently reduced by the limitation of the number of shops and has a tendency to recover itself.

* Vide Excise Report for 1887-88.

" In the Arakan division the issue of opium from the treasury is authoritatively limited. The result is that when the issue of opium is reduced in the Arakan division it rises in the Chittagong division of Bengal, or vice versa. The total issues for both divisions are generally from 13,000 to 10,000 seers. The figures since 1881-82 are as follows:—

| Year. | Akyab. | Chittagong. | Total. |
|---|---|---|---|
| | Seers. | Seers. | Seers. |
| 1881-82 | 11,[illegible]64 | 2,724 | 13,988 |
| 1882-83 | 7,378 | 3,547 | 10,025 |
| 1883-84 | 6,988 | 5,864 | 12,852 |
| 1884-85 | 4,953 | 6,024 | 10,977 |
| 1885-86 | 4,468 | 4,928 | 9,396 |
| 1886-87 | 6,778 | 3,287 | 10,[illegible]65 |

6. As a consequence of this policy five new opium shops were opened in 1889-90, and in paragraph 5 of his Resolution on the Excise Report for 1888-89 the Chief Commissioner wrote:—

Opium.

" It was shown last year, in paragraph 2 of the Resolution on the Excise Report, that it is not possible to prevent the use of opium in districts where there is a demand for it by refusing to open shops for its sale. On this principle five new shops for the sale of opium were opened in 1889-90, and yet the income obtained from the licenses for the retail sale of opium decreased. This fact is not connected immediately with the report now under review, but it is mentioned to show that an increase in the number of shops does not always mean increased consumption or increased revenue. When people want opium they will get it, and in a country where much of the traffic is carried on by boats plying in out-of-the-way streams and creeks opium can be hawked about for sale with impunity and with greater profit than if it is sold in a licensed shop. The question whether there is a demand requires careful consideration, and the increase in the habit of taking opium must be closely watched. The consumption of opium in the Arakan division fell off greatly in the year under report, and the income from license fees has decreased in 1889-90. The Chief Commissioner believes that this is mainly due to the bad harvest in Arakan in 1888-89, but he will watch with interest the figures of 1889-90 to see whether any indication of a permanent falling-off in consumption can be found. The amount of opium consumed increased in the Prome district. This may be due to the Opium Act having been brought into force in Upper Burma, which has increased the price of Yunnan opium and has rendered it more difficult to smuggle it into Lower Burma. In the Tenasserim division the increase in the consumption of opium is said to be due to increased vigilance against smuggling."

7. In 1889-90 there were 20 opium shops in Lower Burma distributed as follows:—

|---|---|
| Arakan division | 1 |
| Pegu division | 5 |
| Irrawaddy division | 4 |
| Tenasserim division | 10 |

This number of shops will not be increased without the clearest necessity.

8. From the foregoing résumé of what has been done with a view to the repression of the opium traffic in Lower Burma, it will be seen that the traffic in opium has been reduced to the greatest possible extent, and, in my opinion, any attempt to prohibit the traffic in opium altogether would be impossible for the following reasons :—

(1) There exists in Burma a very considerable Chinese and foreign population who are addicted to the use of opium, and who will have it at all hazards. The wants of these people and of those Burmans who have become habituated to the use of opium must be supplied.

(2) The facilities for opium-smuggling are so considerable that it is out of the power of the Government to effectually prevent the use of the drug; and, as it is grown in China and in the Shan and Kachin hills, a supply will always be procurable in Burma, even though Government should cease to manufacture the drug and import it on its own account, and should prohibit its import into Burma.

(3) It is a mistake to suppose that the prohibition of the cultivation, sale, or possession of ganja which has been in force since 1872 is effectual. It was recently reported to me that ganja was being imported by parcel post, and there were 88 prosecutions in the town of Rangoon, in which 101 persons were implicated; in 1889-90 and this year there have been 61 persons prosecuted in 56 cases up to date. In the town of Moulmein there were 16 prosecutions in 1869-90, and this year there have been 11 up to date. I have not had a return compiled for the whole Province, but these two instances are sufficient to show that the traffic in ganja is not stopped in spite of its being prohibited.

(4) The Chinese at Bhamo and also in Mergui assured me that they could not exist in malarious countries, such as those in which the jade and amber mines and the tin mines are situated, without opium. As far as I know, the use of opium is universal amongst the Chinese and hill tribes in feverish tracts. I believe that they seldom abuse the use of the drug, and I have every reason to suppose that its use is beneficial under certain conditions.

10. In this connection I may mention that I have recently returned from the Arakan division, and that I found that in the districts of Kyaukpyu and Sandoway, in which the use of opium is prohibited, the smuggling of opium is very common. The following extract from a letter which I wrote advocating the establishment of an excise preventive establishment in the Arakan division may not be without interest :—

"Besides the methods by which illicit opium can be introduced into the Arakan division, which are mentioned in paragraph 2 of your letter under reply, a considerable amount of opium finds its way into the division across the Yomas by the An pass, and a considerable quantity comes from Bassein by boat. It seems impossible to prevent smuggling by so many routes, as, if Excise Officers were posted on one route, the opium would be passed in by another, and 50 men would not be enough to watch all the routes.

"The general opinion of the local officers is, that the total prohibition of the use of opium in the Kyaukpyu and Sandoway districts, and its great restriction in the Akyab district, has made opium dearer in places where its sale is prohibited, but there are still numbers of people who use opium, and anybody who can pay for it can obtain it. All that Government has succeeded in doing is to raise the price of opium."

11. I come now to the second recommendation of the Society, which is that complete prohibition of opium-smoking is the only effective mode of protecting the population of the recently-acquired Province of Upper Burma from the evil which has wrought such havoc in Lower Burma.

I do not know whether the Society are aware that the use of opium by Burmans in Upper Burma is already prohibited—see Rule 28 :

"No opium shall be sold, either wholesale or retail, to any Burman, and no license or pass shall be given under these rules to any Burman."

The Society say "an attempt was made to restrict the sale to the Chinese and Shan population." This attempt takes the form of complete prohibition of sale to Burmans. I suppose the object of the Society is to prohibit the sale of the drug to Chinese and Shans, so as to prevent temptation from being thrown into the way of the Burmans. This would be a very strong measure, and would be keenly resented by the Chinese, Shans, and other non-Burmans, who would certainly resist any endeavour the Government might make to deprive them of opium. Of course the fact that opium is permitted at all does offer some temptation to Burmans; but in paragraph 5 of the Excise Report for 1889-90, "Upper Burma," it is said that District Officers are generally of opinion that a taste for opium and liquor is not spreading to any appreciable extent among Burmans. I must confess that I do not see what can be done by the Government in Upper Burma with a view to prevent the sale of opium to Burmans in addition to the measures already taken.

12. With regard to the last recommendation of the Society, that shops for the retail sale of opium to be consumed on the premises should at once be closed, I think that this recommendation might be tried. I believe no shops for the consumption of opium on the premises are now allowed in some of the Provinces of India, and I think it not improbable that persons may be found who will refrain from the use of opium if they are driven to use it in private instead of in places of public resort. In any case there is no harm in trying results of this measure, even though it may not do all the good that is hoped from it.

The revenue from opium in 1889-90 was—

| | R |
|---|---|
| In Lower Burma | 18,94,552 |
| In Upper Burma | 1,59,509 |
| TOTAL | 20,54,061 |

If the use of opium could be effectively prohibited, I think the Government of India might well forego this revenue, allowing the use of opium only in feverish localities, in which its use is deemed beneficial by the inhabitants. My opinion, however, is that if Government were to declare the total prohibition of the use of opium, the large income it now derives from the control of the drug would pass to smugglers and illicit dealers, and in certain localities, such as the borders of China and of the Shan, Chin, and Kachin hills, I believe the price of opium would fall, and that its use would become more general than it is now.

ANNEXURE II.

OPINIONS IN FAVOUR OF TOTAL SUPPRESSION OF SALES TO BURMESE.

A.

Extract from papers of 1881 relating to the consumption of opium in British Burma.

Memo. by C. U. AITCHISON, Esq., C.S.I., LL.D., Chief Commissioner of British Burma, on the consumption of opium in British Burma.

* * * * * * * *

9. Probably a variety of causes has contributed to the spread of this vice. Burma is intellectually in a transition state. The people are becoming emancipated from many restrictions of their old creed. The inevitable tendency of the education we give, and of the new sense of personal liberty which our Government creates among an Oriental people, is to weaken the sanctions of religious belief and break down the restraints of social customs. Such results ought neither to surprise nor alarm us. However much the old-fashioned among the population may regret it, or blame us for it, we can as easily put back the shadow on the sun-dial as arrest the disintegration of old world customs.

10. But there are other causes within our control. Of these the principal is the increased and yearly increasing facility with which opium can be obtained. Our professed objects are to supply only so much of the drug as may be needed to meet a bonâ fide demand, to discourage extended consumption, and to realise from restricted consumption as high a revenue as we can without affording inducements to the people to obtain supplies by unlawful means. Theoretically, these principles are sound enough. But there are many drawbacks in their practical application. After some experiments, more or less disastrous in their result, the plan which for years past has been adopted in British Burma is to sell by auction licenses to retail opium in shops established in carefully-selected localities. By this means opium is made as dear as possible, and the Government endeavours to limit the temptation to consumption. The revenue derived from the sale of these licenses amounts to more than the fixed duty on the opium sold.* But although the cost of opium to the consumer is by this means more than doubled, the consumption continues to increase and must necessarily do so under the present system. For it is the interest of the license-holder to tempt people to smoke and to stimulate consumption as much as he can; and so long as the possession of opium outside the shops is permitted, any really effective check on the smuggling of a drug so very costly and so easily conveyed is almost impossible. Consequently the temptation to open new shops and the inducement to substitute licit for illicit consumption become irresistible. For example, the Deputy Commissioner of Shwegyin, in which district there have hitherto been no licensed shops, writes †:—"The conviction has been gradually forcing itself on me that there is no advantage in not having opium shops in this district. There are shops in all the districts round it. The result is that a large illicit traffic in opium is being carried on. The opium which has been seized in two or three cases is, as far as I can judge from the shape and size of the balls, opium which has been supplied to license-holders in other districts. We are thus losing revenue without any compensatory advantage. I think it right therefore to recommend that one shop for the sale of opium be allowed at Shwegyin and one at Kyaikto." This application has for the present been refused, but it furnishes a good illustration of the pressure which tends to force up the number of shops year by year. I find that since 1875 the number has increased‡ one-third. This need create no surprise. Unless some radical change of system be effected, no other result can be looked for than the steady increase of opium shops and the gradual spread of opium-smoking over the rural districts. Already, indeed, there is too much truth in the allegation that we are not merely supplying an existing demand, but artificially creating a taste for the drug. However pure our intentions may be, the results are against us, and we shall not escape serious reproach if we persevere in our present course. Englishmen have a natural antipathy to legislate on questions of morality. But here the question is not one of better or worse morality, but of the salvation of a whole people from a vice which we have introduced among them, and from ruin which it is to a great extent in our power to retard if not prevent. Moreover, the Burmans have been accustomed to be legislated for in this matter. Under the native rule opium-smoking was an offence against the law as well as against the Buddhist religion. Under these circumstances it becomes all the more our duty to take precautions that the new liberty which we bring them is not used for a cloak of licentiousness.

11. No opium may be manufactured in British Burma, and with one insignificant exception, no opium may be imported except by Government. We have therefore the control of the supply entirely in our own hands, subject only to the risk of smuggling. Native opinion is unanimous in favour of stopping the supply altogether, and no measure we could adopt would be so popular with all the respectable and law-abiding classes of the population. Colonel Sladen says the remedy advocated by them in Arakan is "an absolute interdiction of the drug throughout the country and the peremptory closing of all shops." Mr. Hodgkinson adds: "The feeling of the people is strongly in favour of the absolute prohibition of the drug. A similar feeling, I find, also exists in Sandoway. In short the concensus of native opinion is in favour of the absolute prohibition of opium as the only practical remedy to be applied to stem the current of this evil." In the Pegu division, the elders of the town of Pegu consider that neither liquor nor opium should be sold there. Mr. White, Assistant Commissioner in Bassein district, found it impossible to induce the natives to offer any other suggestion than the gradual closing of all opium shops. In Henzada, "respectable Burmans are in favour of the most drastic measures;" and Mr. Weidemann, the Deputy Commissioner, "found it impossible to obtain the suggestion of any half-measures from the elders consulted: to put away the accursed thing entirely was the only advice which appeared to them of any value at all." Mr. Richardson, Extra Assistant Commissioner of Myanaung, reports to the same effect: "I have consulted," he says, "several Burmese of intelligence and education and one and all have the same radical cure to propose—the shutting of the excise shops. Their verdict is not modified by one 'if' or 'but.'" From the natives of Tharrawaddy, Thayetmyo and other districts in the Pegu division, there comes up the same cry. From the Tenasserim division, the Commissioner reports that "native opinion is strongly in favour of reverting to the old Burmese plan of prohibition." While most European officers hold this drastic remedy to be impracticable, there are many of standing and experience who support it more or less strongly. It is advocated by Colonel Sladen, Commissioner of Arakan, Captain Butler, late Deputy Commissioner of Kyaukpyu, Colonel Hildebrand, late Deputy Commissioner of Sandoway, Major Pemberton, Deputy Commissioner of Kyaukpyu, Colonel Davies, Deputy Commissioner, Thayetmyo, and Mr. Richardson, Extra Assistant Commissioner of Myanaung. Mr. Hodgkinson, the Officiating Commissioner of Arakan, writes:—"Justice and fairness to the people at large, in my opinion, rather point to the interdiction of the sale of opium, if effectual interdiction is possible, when their very life's blood has been, and is being, poisoned by a system which, though intended only to supply a want to a few, has resulted in creating a want for many. It may be hard on those addicted to the use of opium that they no longer find their want supplied: some may even die; but when the whole body is suffering from a fatal disease which may be eventually eradicated by the loss of a member, he would be a poor physician who shrank from the amputation, and a dishonest physician if he allowed the disease to run its course for the sake of the fees he would receive from the patient. Things have now got to such a pass that Government will not act fairly by the people, if mere revenue considerations are allowed to stand in the way of the remedy. The interdiction of opium throughout Arakan will no doubt at first lead to a large loss of opium revenue; but this consideration ought not to stand in the way of the interdiction even if no immediate means of replacing that revenue were at hand." The only difficulty he finds in recommending the absolute interdiction of the sale of opium in Arakan is the certainty of systematic law-breaking arising in the shape of smuggling. But in respect to those parts of the division which are suffering most he writes:—"After a full consideration of this very difficult subject, I have determined to recommend that in Kyaukpyu, Cheduba, Sagu and the islands which are to a great extent cut off from the rest of the Province and have for the size a strong staff of officers, the possession and the sale of opium shall be absolutely and entirely interdicted. In these islands things have gone too far for any half-measures; and if there is smuggling, it is better so than that any risk should be run of, by a legalized use of the drug, allowing these islands to continue the downward course in which they have entered. There is no time here for experiments if the people are to be saved."

12 In a matter so intimately affecting the well-being of the community these expressions of opinion, especially those of the native population, are entitled to the greatest respect. When practical questions of this kind arise, it may become a duty to yield to the strong and general desire of the people even when their opinions may appear unreasonable. All the more it may become a duty when the evil complained of is an innovation of our own times and our own Government, and when we have the entire control of the lawful manufacture and supply of the opium As regards smuggling, I do not believe that, even with our open seaboard of a thousand miles and our long and unguarded frontier with Upper Burma, the Shan States, and Siam, there would be a very great increase in illicit traffic, either from Bengal or from China, if the importation of opium were altogether forbidden and the possession of opium were made illegal. Already the price of opium is artificially forced* up to a maximum, presenting the very strongest temptation to the smuggler, while the fact that possession of the drug is not unlawful increases the difficulty of detection. The pecuniary temptation cannot become very much greater than it is if opium were altogether forbidden: the drug wherever found would be contraband without question, and we should have the sympathies of the people with us in the suppression of smuggling. One fact is worth a bushel of argument; we have succeeded in almost stamping out ganja, although the plant from which it is made grows wild in Burma. The difficulties we have in any case to contend with in preventing smuggling are so great that an addition to them would not be a very appreciable burden. Anyhow, smuggling, even on a considerable scale, would never lead to the universal consumption of the drug; and the evasion of the revenue is not to be compared with the gradual demoralisation of the people. The question has altogether passed beyond the stage at which revenue considerations predominate.

13. But there are considerations of another kind which, in my judgment, make it impossible altogether to prohibit the supply of opium. In the first place we have for more than half a century in one part of the Province, and more than a quarter of a century in the rest of it, allowed the habit of opium-smoking to grow up among certain classes of the Burmese. Having ministered to this taste, we should not be justified in suddenly withdrawing the supply at the risk of the lives of the unhappy consumers if the further spread of the evil can be prevented in any other way. In the next place, there are large numbers of the non-Burmese community, constituting perhaps the most thriving and industrious section of the population, to whom the drug is a necessary of life, and by whom it is rarely abused. It is impossible to say precisely what the number† of the Chinese and natives of India are, but they are probably not less than 200,000, The legitimate requirements of these people must necessarily be considered and provided for. Fortunately they are collected in tolerably well-defined centres.

† According to the census of 1872, in a population of 2,747,148, there were 13,561 or 0·49 per cent. Chinese and Malays, and 136,048 or 4·97 per cent. natives of India. Applying the same ratio to a population of 3 088,902 in 1878-79, there would be Chinese and Malays 15,135, natives of India 153,518.

* * * * * * *

6. * * Regarding opium administration, Colonel Sladen was quite convinced that the closure of all opium shops in the Kyaukpyu and Sandoway districts had done great good, and that the consumption of opium in those districts had much decreased. Smuggling, no doubt, went on from Akyab and from Chittagong mainly in the British India Steam Navigation Company's steamers. The employés of those steamers engaged in the illicit traffic. But even if the illicit opium which escaped capture was five or ten times as much as was captured, still the total consumption in those districts was far below what it used to be. This year (1st April 1885) the opium shop at the Naaf had been closed, and only one shop was left in the whole of the Arakan division The monopolist of that shop must be expecting to get a good deal of illicit custom, for he had bid more for the single Akyab shop than used to be paid for all the shops in the Akyab district put together. Colonel Sladen did not consider that a special excise establishment was needed in the Akyab district. The Arakanese do not, he believes, do much in the way of drinking or illicit distillation of spirits. Their bane is opium. He believed that myooks, thugyis, gaungs, and village headmen all knew more or less precisely how and where opium was smuggled into Arakan. If these officials were kept up to their work, they could in a short time reduce opium-smuggling a great deal. He had taken steps for enforcing responsibility in this matter upon officials of all grades, and he hoped that good would result.

7. Colonel Sladen is of the same opinion that he has long held, namely, that opium has done and is doing great harm to the Arakanese and Burmese. The best of all opium reforms would be to prohibit its sale, or possession, or use (save for medical purposes), throughout Burma. He believes that the opinion of all respectable and decent classes of the population would be in favour of such prohibition; that such a measure would do great good to the Province; and that no fatal results would be caused to habitual consumers. Smuggling would no doubt go on, just as illicit consumption of opium goes on to some extent in Upper Burma. Such smuggling, into Arakan at any rate, would be mainly from licensed shops in Bengal. If the Government decided to have no opium shops at all in Burma, the adjoining Province of Bengal might surely help to prevent its people from smuggling opium into Burma. At present extra opium shops have been licensed close to the Arakan border, which drive a roaring trade with smugglers who carried the opium into Arakan. But by careful administration such smuggling would be gradually reduced and kept down; and after some years of such administration opium consumption would become rare, and future generations would be kept from the use of opium.

* * * * * * * * *

11. Colonel Street considered that opium had done and was doing much harm among the Burmese. The respectable people of the country would be glad to see the sale of opium entirely stopped. Colonel Street thought that such stoppage would cause misery, and perhaps even death, to a certain number of habitual consumers. If this opinion was mistaken, and if the sudden stoppage of all opium supplies would not cause pain and death, then Colonel Street would gladly see the sale, possession, and the use of opium (save for medical purposes), absolutely prohibited. At present no doubt there is a great deal of opium carried, kept, and sold illicitly about the country. Most of it is Government opium supplied from the treasury to licensed vendors. These vendors pay at auction enormous prices for the right to sell opium at central shops. They could never possibly make enough profit to cover these prices unless they had numbers of customers or agents who carry the opium about the country and sell it. These transactions are all illicit and they demoralise the people.

* * * * * *

15. Mr. Hodgkinson was and long has been strongly of opinion that opium should be treated as the noxious drug ganja was treated in Burma some nine years ago. The importation, possession, use, or sale of opium, save for medicinal purposes, should be prohibited. We owe this measure to the people, who have for years suffered grievously from our licensed shops, which are supplied with Government opium, and which foster and spread the use and abuse of the drug. He believes that all respectable Burmans would be in favour of such abolition. The recent reduction of shops has, in some districts at any rate, done no good at all. As much Government opium is issued as before in those districts, and a great illicit traffic distributes Government opium and Yunnan (smuggled) opium all over the country. This illicit traffic does great harm in many ways.

Every man I have consulted has been of opinion that—

(a) the habit of the use of opium is the great cause of crime in the country, and of children disobeying and showing disrespect for their parents and guardians;

(b) that the habit is quite curable, and they instance cases of confirmed opium-eaters going to jail coming out quite broken of the habit, but at once recommencing it;

(c) that the only way to prevent opium finding its way into the villages is to prohibit its traffic and consumption altogether;

(d) that such prohibition would, in course of time, entirely eradicate the habit from among the people, but that it would not do so at once.

I am entirely of the same opinion as the Burmans I have consulted, and I think nothing short of absolute prohibition will cure the evil, which I look upon as of the gravest description, and that absolute prohibition will in time do so, except perhaps in the seaport towns.

The first step which should be taken, and without delay, is to remove the temptation and facility of obtaining the drug from the rising generation, and this step is to be gained by prohibiting the use or possession of opium outside scheduled towns by any one, except a Chinaman, under a special pass for a limited quantity equal to his own estimated consumption for one week.

From the beginning of the discussion of the opium question it has seemed to me that the only effectual means of checking the consumption of opium in Burma is to forbid absolutely its introduction into the Province, and I have never yet seen sufficient reason for modifying that view. To prevent the use of opium, it must be treated in the same way as ganja, its importation or possession in any quantity being dealt with as an offence. Practically this is now the condition of affairs in Kyaukpyu and Sandoway, and the consumption of opium in those districts has naturally been restricted in consequence; but so long as opium shops exist at Akyab and on the other side of the Arakanese Yoma, it is of course impossible to stop the illicit supply of the drug. If all the shops in the province were closed a great stimulus would be given to smuggling from Bengal and other places, and it is possible that, for a time at least, repressive measures of a special character would have to be taken. But in the long run, doubtless, the law would prevail, and opium, except in small quantities, would be unprocurable anywhere in Burma.

A certain number of people accustomed to the use of the drug, such as Chinese and Bengalis, would be put to considerable inconvenience by the stoppage of a licit opium-supply, and many of them would, perhaps, try secret expedients for furnishing themselves with their habitual luxury; but they could not long carry on an illegal traffic without detection. They would be finally compelled either to forego the use of opium or to leave a country in which they could not obtain any. The latter alternative would be an undesirable result in many cases; but some price must be paid for the protection of the native population, and by-and-bye their places would be filled by others more willing to conform to the requirements of the situation.

In spite of the large loss of revenue which the total prohibition of opium traffic in the country would entail, and notwithstanding the other drawbacks and inconveniences which would attend the scheme, I consider that it would on the whole be better and more for the advantage of the people and the administration to have recourse to this step than to persist in the course which is now being followed. The present plan is one of inconsistency and can never prove satisfactory. If it is considered necessary or expedient to limit the consumption of opium by the inhabitants of Burma through restrictions on the supply then my voice is in favour of excluding opium from the country altogether and absolutely, forbidding its possession.

9. The entire prohibition of opium will save the present and future generations from threatened ruin. It will push on cultivation, for Arakan has a great part of its land now lying waste, though it has been under the British flag for 61 years, and will result in repaid increase in its population, and thereby in a few years regain the loss of revenue it will sustain at the commencement by entirely prohibiting opium. In this respect we are certain that the Government will not make any mistake. In case the Government finds its inability to realise its lost revenue after, say, five years, the people will be glad and will be in a position to pay an enhanced revenue on land, or anything else which Government may propose, for the purpose of making up the deficiency.

No. 457—64 E., dated 3rd August 1886.

From—F. S COPLESTON, Esq., Commissioner of Excise, Burma,

To—The Secretary to the Chief Commissioner, Burma.

In compliance with your letter, Financial Department No. 485-9 E., dated the 21st June 1886, I have the honour to submit my opinion on the expediency of entirely prohibiting opium traffic or opium consumption in Lower Burma.

2. It is unnecessary to dwell on the evils attendant on the consumption of the drug in this Province. These have been frequently and graphically described, sometimes with considerable exaggeration; and I assume it to be a proved fact that, except medicinally, the use of opium by the Burmese is an unmitigated evil, and that it has no title to be considered a legitimate luxury in the sense in which spirituous and malt liquors are admitted to be luxuries. It is assumed, too, that all respectable persons among the native inhabitants of the Province are opposed to the sale and consumption of opium among members of their race. On the other hand, the use of opium by the Chinese and natives of Madras, who consume a considerable quantity, is not known or believed to work special evil either to individuals or to society, the reason being that these people do not abandon labour and active pursuits in order to eat or smoke opium, and its bad effects are therefore thrown off. The Chinese especially are well nourished, and this fact, too, appears to be an important one. In their case opium may almost be called a legitimate luxury. I am speaking, of course, only of the results of opium-consumption as they appear in this Province.

3. The reasons for desiring the entire prohibition of opium in the Province are these:—

(a) the unquestionable serious evil which it works to the Burmese as individuals and to society;

(b) the wish of the respectable population for such a prohibition.

The reasons against such a measure are—

(c) the loss of revenue which will ensue;

(d) the increase of smuggling and law-breaking;

(e) the possible death of many Burmese owing to deprivation of the drug;

(f) the resulting annoyance and difficulty to Chinese and others to whom opium-eating is not obviously injurious.

It appears to me that the reasons for abolition (a) and (b) are so strong that almost anything possible should be done to give effect to them The consequent loss of revenue (c) cannot, speaking provincially, be regarded as of any sufficient importance to be an obstacle, even if it be regarded as a total loss; but there can be no doubt that a gradual increase of revenue derived from land and capitation taxes and other sources would follow, both directly from the return of idle opium-smokers and eaters to honest labour, and indirectly from increase in the numbers and health of the population. The revenue difficulty is therefore not one which, in my opinion, should be allowed to interfere with prohibition.

The increase of law-breaking, that is, excise law-breaking, is a real evil, both because the practice of evading the law demoralises, and because considerable expense might be required to check the illicit dealings, which would undoubtedly tend to become more numerous. On the other hand, possession being penal it would be far easier to deal with the breakers of the opium law than it is at present; and theft, so constantly the work of opium-smokers, and a worse crime than the breach of an excise law, would certainly diminish. This difficulty then seems to me no sufficient ground for opposing prohibition.

Thirdly, it is said many would die if they could not get opium. I believe that some would do so. Those opium-eaters who would die are, however, men who have already by their excesses ensured an early death; and I do not think the fear of making their decease more speedy is a good reason against prohibition, though I do think it a very strong one against a sudden and unexpected stoppage of supplies. Our hospitals would, no doubt, be crowded with men suffering from the usual results of an interruption of the use of the drug, but this is no great evil. Special temporary measures might become necessary in some parts to provide for the cure of confirmed opium-smokers, and they could be adopted.

I should not anticipate any difficulty on this score, and see no reasonable obstacle under this head to a prohibition, after notice, of the possession of opium.

Lastly, there is the difficulty connected with the Chinese and others. Information as to the extent to which the Chinese consume opium is at present scanty. On the one hand it is stated that nearly every Chinaman takes opium in one way or another, and on the other, that only the labouring and lower classes do so. Probably the truth is that a large number do smoke opium, and it is certain also that a large number of the natives of Madras use the drug; and I do not think that at present it would be politic or desirable to prohibit opium entirely in the large centres of the populations of these classes. If it were essential to a scheme for prohibiting opium among the masses of the Burmese, I should certainly say that we might disregard the wishes of the Chinese and natives of Madras, however important these classes may in some respects be. But such a measure is not essential, and I therefore adhere to the opinion, which I have before expressed, that opium should be prohibited entirely in all parts of the Province except the seaport towns. There are the cases of small classes, such as the Chinese tin-workers of Mergui, for whom special arrangements might possibly be required: but these are minor points.

4. It has been proposed to restrict the consumption of opium to licensed premises, with precautions which it is thought might be sufficient, the number of places of vend being increased. This scheme in no way commends itself to my judgment. I believe that it would be found in a very short time that the attempt to confine the opium within the premises was futile. Nor do I consider the suggestion to employ Government officers to dispense opium as a practicable or politic plan. Such a measure would, it seems to me, lower the Government in the eyes of the people, and would probably fail of the desired result. If the consumption of Government opium were successfully confined to the shops, a free field, within the limits which our preventive system might impose on the circulation of opium of any description, would be left outside them to foreign opium which pays no taxes; and there is no reason for yielding up the field for smuggling to the Yunnan drug. If we can prevent the circulation of the latter, we can also prevent that of Indian opium, and restriction to the premises is unnecessary. I am only repeating what was said in the Excise Report for 1884-85.

5. I am then of opinion that the possession and use of opium can be and should be prohibited entirely outside the limits of the seaport towns, but should be permitted therein, at any rate for the present.

It might, after some experience, be found possible to abolish opium altogether from the Province, but this cannot be done suddenly. The reduction in the number of opium shops has in the last few years checked the growth of the habits of opium-eating and smoking. The measure I advocate would form a fresh stepping-stone from which further progress might hereafter be made.

6. I have not had an opportunity, owing to other pressing work, of consulting in person Burmese gentlemen; but Maung Shwe Go, the Extra Assistant Commissioner of Shwegyin, has favoured me with an expression of the opinion of himself and other Burmans whom he had already consulted in compliance with Mr. Weidemann's instructions. Their opinion is that, while the consumption of opium by the Burmese and Talaings is unnecessary and injurious, and should be prevented as far as possible even by total prohibition, the use of the drug by the Chinese being habitual, and not a cause of crime as in the case of the Burmese, should be permitted.

These gentlemen would, however, only allow the privileges in the seaport towns, where the numbers of the Chinese are large and where effectual supervision can be carried out.

They express agreement with the view set forth in the Excise Report of 1884-85 on this subject.

2. The respectable Arakanese in this district are, I believe, unanimous in favour of a total suppression of the opium traffic, if it can be effected. The arguments stated in paragraph 11 of the Society's memorial forwarded with your letter appear to me to be unanswerable. I have consulted several native gentlemen on the subject. The opinion of Maung Saw Hla Pru, Myook of Ramree, who is a well-educated Arakanese gentleman and has great influence in his sub-division is of value. I have often discussed measures of our policy with him, which he has criticised in an intelligent way. He states that the general opinion is that the action of the British Government in licensing the sale of opium is almost the only portion of their policy which the better class of natives unreservedly condemn.

This officer has reported a very marked improvement in his sub-division since the closing of the opium shop at Kyaukpyu in 1882. I think there can be no doubt that the closing of the opium shop here has diminished the consumption of the drug.

3. * * * * * *

The total suppression of the traffic might not affect this district immediately; but the discredit it would bring on the practice and the moral effect it would have outweighs all minor considerations.

4. Mr. (now Sir Charles) Bernard, in his note of the 23rd December 1880, alludes to the universal wish of the more respectable natives to suppress the traffic altogether, though he believed the evils of the opium-smoking to be much exaggerated. I think it would be more in consonance with the extended powers given to natives as members of municipalities and rural boards to meet their wishes on this subject. If they believe, rightly or wrongly, that opium-smoking is a harmful and degrading practice, I think we incur a grave responsibility in forcing it upon them.

2. The opinion of Burmese gentlemen regarding the total prohibition of the traffic appears to be somewhat decided. Some are in favour of abolishing the traffic altogether, while others are in favour of limiting and restricting the traffic as far as possible. That opium-consumption has had a very pernicious and demoralising effect upon the inhabitants of the country generally admits of no question. The consensus of opinion, not only of European Government officers connected with the administration of the country, but of all native officials and respectable native gentlemen, is that the introduction and traffic in opium in Lower Burma by the Government has been attended with lamentable results, and that from every point of view it is most desirable that speedy measures be taken either to entirely abolish the traffic or to restrict it within harmless limits, if such can be done.

With reference to your letter No. 651—9 P., dated the 26th July 1886, asking for my opinion as to the expediency of entirely prohibiting the use of opium in this Province, I have the honour to inform you that the general opinion appears to be that to prohibit entirely the use of opium, if such a prohibition could be effectively carried out, would be very desirable; but to suddenly prohibit its use would have the effect of causing numbers of those who are addicted to it to die.

I think that, if we are justified in interfering with the liberty of the people at all, we are justified in interfering to prohibit the consumption of opium. I further think that nothing short of total abolition, whether sudden or gradual, will meet the necessities of the case so far as regards the Burmese.

* * * * * * * *

If it be a question between gradual and sweeping measures, I should, notwithstanding the present state of the finances, be inclined to advocate the latter. Half remedies have been tried and have failed, and it will, I think, be easier to organise the excise establishment, which will in all probability be necessary if opium is contraband whenever and wherever found. An exception might be made in the case of foreign residents who have become habituated to the drug; but for them I would establish a special Government agency in order to conduct sales very much as it has lately been suggested that the sale of ammunition should be brought more completely than at present under official control. That complete, or almost complete, prohibition is possible can, I think, be proved by the comparatively small way yet made by ganja, a plant which has the advantage over the poppy, that it is of native growth and easily cultivable in remote clearings.

2. Deputy Commissioners have consulted trustworthy and influential members of Burman society, and there is a unanimity of opinion in favour of the total prohibition of the sale of opium. The District Officers also entirely agree in the views expressed by the Burmese elders.

3. That the answer of the Burmese to the question would be what it is was never for a moment in doubt. They have for the last 20 years or so answered this question in the same way, and the more experience is gained of the baneful effects of opium the more rooted has become Burmese public opinion in favour of total abolition of its sale.

4. The Burmese are not remarkable for steadfastness in opinions, but on this one question they have never wavered.

* * * * * *

Regarding the opium question in the Irrawaddy division I cannot do better than refer to the masterly and exhaustive "Note on opium in Burma," by Mr. G J. S. Hodgkinson, dated the 5th February 1885. I have attached a copy to this paper for reference.

The results of the partial measures adopted for checking the opium traffic described in the 2nd and 3rd paragraphs of the above are true of this division to-day. In the 8th paragraph the writer says:—"If it be objected that the evils of opium amongst the Burmese are here exaggerated, I can only express my conviction that this is not the case, and that the evils, so far as they affect the administration of the country are more apparent now than they were five years ago; and I appeal with confidence to anybody of representative lugyis to support this opinion" This was written in 1885; and I have now to add that my own limited experience of this division shows that the evils are still rapidly growing The writer advocated the entire abolition of opium shops, and as an alternative proposition the following:—

(i) the establishment of shops for consumption of opium on the premises only in certain centres;

(ii) that the possession of any quantity of opium outside be prohibited and rendered penal.

The latter propositions were on other occasions put forward by a large body of officials, myself amongst the number.

Dated 24th September, 1886.

Memo. by G. J. S. Hodgkinson, Esq., Commissioner on special duty, Rangoon.

These papers show a remarkable consensus of opinion in favour of the total prohibition of opium either at once or after a time, though in several cases an exception is made of seaport towns, where the number of Chinamen and others who are accustomed to use the drug, and use it for the most part without deleterious effects from excessive indulgences, is very large.

My own views have been set out at length in my memorandum of the 5th February 1885.* My recommendations are as follow:—

(a) that the possession of opium should be absolutely interdicted and all shops for the sale of opium closed throughout the country; or, if this measure is thought too drastic;

(b) (i) that shops be licensed for the sale or consumption of opium, or the possession only in places where there is a considerable population of Chinamen and natives of India, namely, at—

| Akyab | 1 |

(ii) that the possession of opium in any quantity, no matter how much, outside these shops, be prohibited and rendered penal.

No. 371 C., dated 22nd February 1891.

From—Colonel G. H. Trevor, Chief Commissioner, Ajmere-Merwara,

To—The Secretary to the Government of India, Finance and Commerce Department.

In reply to your letter, No. 4938, dated the 18th of October 1890, forwarding a copy of the memorial of the Society for the Suppression of the Opium Trade, and asking for an expression of my opinion and for any remarks I may have to offer thereon, I have the honour to submit a copy of a letter, No. 418 R., dated the 12th of February 1891, from the Commissioner of Ajmere-Merwara on the subject, with the following remarks from myself.

2. The view expressed by Colonel Biddulph that the closing of the opium and chandu shops in Ajmere and Merwara "would not cause any decrease in the use of the drug, while on the other hand it is far preferable to have these shops under strict supervision and open to inspection at any time than to have smoking-dens which could not be controlled in the same way," is that under which the existence of the shops has hitherto been justified and is not without force. But I have always felt a doubt as to whether Government should indirectly lend its sanction to the establishment by contractors of what are rightly called "dens" where opium and chandu are smoked on the premises.

3. So far as Ajmere and Merwara are concerned, these dens are not largely frequented, and those who attend them are the dregs of the population, who are not repelled by their unsavoury surroundings and customers, or by the fact that they are constantly visited by the Police, to whom they are often convenient as furnishing a ready means for the apprehension of bad characters who are "wanted" They can hardly be said to attract any but the lowest class, and rarely perhaps to inoculate customers who have not previously imbibed the habit of smoking opium and chandu. To close these dens might result in more comfortable, and in the long run more pernicious, ones being secretly established by private persons; but there is no safeguard at present against such a contingency, and on the whole I am inclined to think that a contractor who farms revenue from Government should not be allowed to establish shops for the consumption of opium and chandu on the premises, because, rightly or wrongly, such action on his part encourages the idea that Government does not do all it may legitimately be expected to do for the suppression of such consumption, and it is certain that the control it exercises over these shops does not extend to regulating the amount or quality of the drug consumed at them by any individual.

Should the closing of these shops lead to others being opened by private persons, which it would be more difficult to control without more interference than is at present thought expedient, then I am disposed to think that to resort to such interference as may be required would be the lesser evil of the two.

4. It may fairly be asked—'How does the case of shops in which opium and chandu are smoked on the premises differ in principle from that of shops in which liquor is drunk on the premises, and why should one be differently treated from the other?' I would reply:—

(1) In the one case the baneful effects of non-interference on the part of the Government are, I believe, much greater than in the other; in respect to the decoctions consumed; in respect to the habit engendered and encouraged; in respect to the vitality, physical and moral, impaired.

A man who frequents a liquor shop is not so likely to become a confirmed drunkard as one who pays even a few visits to an opium den is likely to develop into a confirmed opium-eater or smoker; it is to the interest of a vintner not to let him get intoxicated on the premises, for fear the license should be revoked, and for the same reason not to encourage drinking that makes men disorderly. The liquor having issued from a Government distillery its quality has been tested, and, as a rule, it does not pay the vintner to change the quality except by dilution which is common enough. These conditions do not, I believe, apply to the case of the opium den, at any rate in equal degree. There no attempt is made, or if made, it is more difficult, to check excess; and though excess may not lead to crime in the same way as liquor does, it produces a more lasting effect upon the individual, and through him or her on future generations.

(2) The community that would be affected by the suppression of opium dens in India is very much smaller than that which would be affected by the suppression o shops where liquor may be drunk on the premises. In some parts it is possible that the number of those who take a little opium is not much less than the number who drink a little liquor, but an infinitesimal fraction of the former resorts to opium dens, and my present remarks do not contemplate fresh interfer nce with shops at which opium sold is not consumed on the premises.

No. 418 R., dated 10th February 1891.

From—The Commissioner of Ajmere-Merwara,

To—The Chief Commissioner, Ajmere-Merwara.

With reference to your office memorandum No. 1200, dated the 3rd November last, giving cover to Government of India, Finance and Commerce Department, No. 4938, dated 18th October 1890, forwarding, for opinion, printed copies of a letter and memorial from the Chairman of the Society for the Suppression of the Opium Trade, I have the honour to state as follows.

2. The Society assert that the use of opium is on the increase in India, and recommend that the Government of India should close the shops for the retail sale of opium to be consumed both in and off the premises, and more particularly the former. They also give in their memorial a comparative statement showing the increasing number of shops in certain parts of the country for the 10 years up to 1888-89.

3. I beg to subjoin a table showing the number of licensed shops in the districts of Ajmere-Merwara during the past five years:—

| Year. | Ajmere. | | Merwara. | |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| | Opium shops. | Chandu shops. | Opium shops. | Chandu shops. |
| 1885-86 | 8 | 4 | 1 | 1 |
| 1886-87 | 8 | 4 | 1 | 1 |
| 1887-88 | 9 | 4 | 1 | 1 |
| 1888-89 | 9 | 4 | 1 | 1 |
| 1889-90 | 9 | 4 | 1 | 1 |

The number given above is in no way excessive.

4. In the districts of Ajmere and Merwara, Part I, Chapter II, of the Opium Rules (cultivation, manufacture, possession, and sale) applies only to the municipal limits of Ajmere, Beawar, and Kekri, and the cantonment limits of Nusseerabad, while in the other parts of the two districts the cultivation of the poppy and the manufacture, possession, and sale of opium and poppy-heads in any quantity are permitted absolutely under section 16 of the said rules. If, then, the shops for the retail sale of opium be closed, people who are addicted to the use of the drug will most assuredly buy it outside the limits of the defined areas, where they will be able to purchase it at a less cost than they at present pay in the towns. As it is, the contractor complains bitterly of the people of Beawar buying their opium to a large extent from dealers outside the municipal limits. It is also practically certain that opium would be smuggled into the defined areas.

With reference to the suggested closing of the chandu shops, I am of opinion that it would result in the opening of private smoking dens which should in all probability be far more comfortable than the present establishments and tend rather to attract than to repel new smokers. I am of decided opinion that the closing of the opium and chandu shops would not cause any decrease in the use of the drug, while, on the other hand, it is far preferable to have these shops under strict supervision and open to inspection at any time than to have smoking dens which could not be controlled in the same way.

5. With regard to paragraph 9 of the memorial, which alone applies to Ajmere, I have nothing to add to what I have stated in paragraph 3 of this letter.

No. 221, dated 19th March 1891.

From—C. A. Galton, Esq., Secretary to the Government of Madras, Revenue Department,

To—The Secretary to the Government of India, Finance and Commerce Department.

In reply to your letter No. 4938, dated 18th October 1890, forwarding, for the remarks of His Excellency the Governor in Council, a memorial presented to the Right Honourable the Secretary of State by the Society for the Suppression of the Opium Trade, I am directed to forward the marginally-noted Proceedings of the Board of Revenue, and to offer the following remarks.

Dated 17th February 1891, No. 65.

2. So far as this Presidency is concerned, the facts adduced by the memorialists are contained in paragraph 15 of the memorial. In that paragraph the memorialists institute a comparison between the revenue receipts of 1888-89 and those of 1879-80; but no inference of any value can be drawn from this comparison, as one large source of revenue, consisting of the fees levied for licenses for the sale of opium and for the manufacture and vend of intoxicating drugs, was absent in 1879-80, the rules in this respect having been put into force for the first time only in July 1880. Since the introduction of these rules the statistics in regard to opium and other intoxicating drugs have been as shown in the margin, and these figures clearly show that, so far as this Presidency is concerned, there is no ground for the apprehension expressed in paragraph 4 of the memorial that local officers may regard the revenue as their first consideration and the limitation of consumption as quite secondary.

| Years. | Quantity of opium consumed. | Number of places of vend for opium and other intoxicating drugs. | Revenue. |
| | lb | | R |
| 1880-81 | 53,942 | 1,208 | 6,33,751 |
| 1881-82 | 99,520 | 1,021 | 4,03,519 |
| 1882-83 | 77,182 | 1,091 | 5,61,501 |
| 1883-84 | 76,578 | 1,107 | 5,96,615 |
| 1884-85 | 74,605 | 1,089 | 6,12,885 |
| 1885-86 | 62,806 | 1,062 | 7,11,150 |
| 1886-87 | 68,178 | 1,163 | 6,21,780 |
| 1887-88 | 66,824 | 1,157 | 5,96,155 |
| 1888-89 | 67,042 | 1,172 | 6,32,041 |
| 1889-90 | 67,224 | 1,052 | 5,93,967 |

3. The memorialists next refer to the evidence given by Sir T. Pycroft and Mr. E. F. Harrison before the Select Committee in 1871 and 1872, to the effect that there was practically no consumption of opium in this Presidency. In regard to this, I am to observe that a similar opinion was long entertained* by this Government as the result of special enquiries made on the subject about the year 1855,† but that this opinion was abandoned twenty years later when a careful further enquiry showed that it did not represent the actual facts,‡ but that on the other hand there was a large consumption of opium in the four northern districts of Ganjam, Vizagapatam, Godavari, and Kistna.

4. The memorialists next comment upon the statements contained in the progress and condition reports for 1884-85 and 1887-88 relative to the free grant of licenses in some of the hill tracts and the supply of opium to the people in the hill tracts of the northern districts of the Presidency at a lower price than elsewhere. The memorialists have not correctly apprehended the policy of Government in this matter. A perusal of the appendix attached to the Board's Proceedings forwarded herewith will show that this Government has been endeavouring to reduce the consumption of opium in these tracts as much as possible, and that if any leniency was shown in the matter at first, it was only out of deference to the consideration that a sudden change might be productive of more harm than good among a population addicted by long habit to the use of the drug.

5. As regards the proposal made in paragraph 18 of the memorial, I am to state that His Excellency in Council agrees with the Board of Revenue in thinking that opium dens, such as those described in the appendices to the memorial, do not exist in this Presidency, and that, so far as there do exist shops where opium is bought and consumed on the premises, the provisions always inserted in the licenses for the vend of opium and for the manufacture and sale of intoxicating drugs, with a view to secure decency and good order in the place of vend, have been found to be quite sufficient to prevent the occurrence of scenes such as those to which the memorialists refer.

Proceedings of the Board of Revenue, No. 65 (Separate Revenue), dated 17th February 1891.

Read the following:—

No. 4938, dated 18th October 1890.

From—J. F. Finlay, Esq., Deputy Secretary to the Government of India, Finance and Commerce Department,

To—All Local Governments and Administrations.

I am directed to forward copies of a letter from the Chairman of the Society for the Suppression of the Opium Trade, enclosing copy of the Resolutions adopted by that Society on the 3rd June 1890, and of a memorial addressed to Her Majesty's Secretary of State by the same Society, together with a reprint of the passages to which references are made in the appendix to the memorial.

2. I am directed to request that you will submit, for the consideration of the Government of India, any remarks which His Excellency the Governor in Council may desire to make on these papers. The general questions raised in the memorial should be discussed so far as they affect the Madras Presidency, and the suggestion made in paragraph 18 of the memorial regarding the grant of licenses for the retail sale of opium to be consumed on the premises should be specially considered. Your reply should also notice any particular statements regarding Madras contained either in the memorial or in the extracts referred to in the appendix.

No. 7046 R., dated 18th November 1890.

Endorsed by the Government of Madras.

Referred to the Commissioner of Salt, Abkari and Separate Revenue for early report.

Resolution.—The only portion of the memorial which has special application to Madras is paragraph 15.

2. With reference to the remarks regarding increase of opium revenue in this Province, the Board begs to point out that in 1879-80, the year selected by the memorialists for comparison with the present figures, no rules had yet been framed under the Opium Act (1 of 1878—India), and the only opium revenue realised was a duty on import and export—and the export was of course practically nil. Since the rules framed under the present Act came into force in July 1880, revenue is derived from the following sources :—

(a) a pass duty (R 5 per lb) on opium imported into the Presidency ;
(b) the sale by auction of the right to sell opium, and to manufacture and vend intoxicating drugs prepared from the poppy ;
(c) fees levied on licenses for the sale of poppy-heads.

Collections according to the Demand, Collection and Balance Statement.

| | Pass duty. | Other receipts. | Total. |

| 1889-90 | 3,36,700 | 2,57,269 | 5,93,969 |

NOTE.—In the Finance and Revenue Accounts of the Government of India, the opium receipts of this Presidency prior to 1880-81 are shown as nil. The realisations from the duty referred to above would come under "Customs," but there is no separate sub-heading, and the Board does not know whence the memorialists obtained their figure for 1879-80.

Deducting the pass duty realised on opium supplied to the Native States of Travancore and Cochin, the amount realised in each year since 1880-81, the first in which the present system was in force, was as shown in the margin. It will be observed that, taking one year with another, there has been no material increase ; and that the receipts for 1889-90 are lower than in any year since 1882-83 :—

3. The following statement shows the number of licenses issued for the sale of opium and intoxicating drugs during the same period :—

| | Opium. | Intoxicating drugs. | Total. |
|---|---|---|---|
| 1880-81 | 1,041 | 167 | 1,208 |
| 1881-82 | 878 | 143 | 1,[illegible]21 |
| 1882-83 | 946 | 145 | 1,091 |
| 1883-84 | 986 | 121 | 1,107 |
| 1884-85 | 982 | 107 | 1,089 |
| 1885-86 | 960 | 102 | 1,062 |
| 1886-87 | 1,045 | 118 | 1,163 |
| 1887-88 | 1,157 | | 1,157 |
| 1888-89 | 1,172 | | 1,172 |
| 1889-90 | 1,052 | | 1,052 |

It will be observed that though there was, as pointed out by the memorialists, a trifling increase in 1888-89 as compared with the year preceding, there was a considerable reduction in 1889-90, and that the number of shops in that year was less than in any period since 1881-82.

4. The Board is unable to understand the statement quoted by the memorialists that "there is practically no consumption of opium in the province." It is well known that opium has always been largely consumed in the Northern Circars, and more especially in the Hill Tracts, though not, speaking generally, to any deleterious extent, as is proved by the generally fine physique of the opium-smoking classes.

5. The memorandum appended to these Proceedings gives a history of the special measures adopted to obviate a too sudden enhancement of price in the Agency tracts of Ganjam, Vizagapatam, and Godavari. It will be seen that the measures adopted were necessary to prevent serious discontent and distress among the Hill people to whom opium had become almost a necessary of life ; that the system of issuing free licenses for retail vend is at present in force only in the Ganjam Maliahs and in portions of the Vizagapatam Agency tracts ; and that the retail price has been gradually raised from 5 tolahs per rupee to from 3½ to 2½ tolahs.

The Government is aware that the opium traffic is carefully watched by the Agents and their assistants, and that, so far from "teaching the people to rely on opium as a febrifuge," we are doing all we can to gradually wean them from their hereditary habit of using it on all occasions.

6. With reference to paragraph 18 of the memorial it must be observed that whatever the truth of the highly coloured accounts of "opium dens" furnished in the memorialists' appendix, they do not in the least apply to this Presidency. The Board's Assistant Secretary recently, at the desire of the Commissioner, visited most of the places in the Madras town where, if anywhere, "opium" dens would exist, and reports thereon as follows :—

(1) "Most of the smoking dens were visited, and in each from 10 to 20 smokers were seen. They were of all ages—from 20 to 60 years of age—and comprised both Muhammadans and Hindus. Several professions were represented—jutka drivers, native doctors, musicians, professional beggars, butchers, sweetmeat sellers, and petty shop-keepers. Some were smokers of a few months, some of 20 and 30 years' standing.

(2) "In most cases the smokers left immediately after they had finished their smoke. They purchased 8 pies to 2 annas and 6 pies worth each. Each smoker usually brought some sweetmeats or sugarcane with him and ate or chewed it while smoking. This, it was said, was done as the opium produced a bitter taste in the mouth.

(3) "To see any smoker more affected than a man who had taken his usual glass of liquor was very rare, and in such cases it was said that the man had either taken his smoke out of time or had smoked more than he was used to.

(4) "No women or children were seen in the dens, and it was stated that they do not frequent them.

(5) "Cases of emaciation from the effects of opium-smoking were not seen. Many of the old smokers seen were, on the contrary, very robust and well-conditioned; notably among these might be mentioned the keeper of one of the dens, a Chinaman who is reported to have smoked for over 30 years and who is now over 50 years of age; a vendor of country spirits, a smoker for over 20 years; and a Muhammadan Hakim of about 45, who has smoked for over 10 years.

(6) "Most of those spoken to admitted that the habit once contracted was difficult to give up, but they said that it did them no more harm than the workman's glass of liquor did, if they did not exceed their usual quantity.

(7) "Several complaints were made that the opium was now so dear that what a few years ago cost three or four pies could not be purchased for one anna."

7. The licenses for retail shops for the sale of opium or of intoxicating drugs made from the poppy always stipulate that the shop shall be closed and no person harboured therein at night time; that no gaming or disorderly conduct shall be permitted; and that persons of notoriously bad character shall not be permitted to resort thereto. The exchange of opium, &c., &c., for anything but coin is also prohibited—vide forms III to VI attached to the Opium Rules sanctioned in G. O., dated 17th June 1880, No. 685 (Revenue).

8. The Board considers that these precautions are ample, and that to forbid consumption on the premises altogether as desired by the memorialists would be an unjustifiable restriction on the tastes and liberty of an orderly and respectable section of the population. Moreover, it seems hardly open to question that it would be a step of more than doubtful propriety to transfer the indulgence in the vicious habit denounced by the memorialists from such establishments to the homes and family circles of its victims.

APPENDIX.

Administration of opium revenue in the Hill Tracts of the Ganjam, Vizagapatam, and Godavari districts.

The Opium Act of 1878 was extended to this Presidency only in 1880, and the rules passed thereunder for the control of the opium traffic came into force only on the 1st July of that year. The restriction imposed by these rules led to a marked rise in the price in the Hill Tracts of Vizagapatam from five or six tolahs per rupee to two tolahs, and in some parts opium was not procurable at all. This produced serious discontentment and distress among the people, who consume opium largely, the drug being almost a necessary of life in those parts, and it was therefore found necessary to take steps to make it available in sufficient quantities at a reasonable price. The Collectors of Ganjam and Godavari were also requested to state whether the rise in the price of opium consequent on the levy of a pass duty was giving rise to distress or discontentment in the Hill Tracts of their districts, and whether any special measures were necessary.

2. The measures finally adopted for the Agency tracts in the three districts are noticed below.

3. Vizagapatam.—Mr. Garstin, the then Collector, suggested that the opium required for consumption in the Hill Tracts might be imported by Government and stored in depôts centrally situated for sale to the retailers at cost price. It was proposed that some of the Hill mittadars and heads of villages should receive free licenses as retail vendors; that the inferior kinds of opium should be sold by Government at five tolahs a rupee; and that the price of superior qualities should be gradually raised, the retail price being fixed at four tolahs per rupee at first and subsequently at 3½ tolahs. The system of selling opium to the vendors on behalf of Government was introduced on 1st April 1881. The opium imported by Government was sold only in the Hill Tracts above the Ghats at 4⅝ or 4½* tolahs per rupee to the vendors (irrespective of quality) who sold it to the people at not less than 4 tolahs; while in the Agency tracts below the Ghats the opium was supplied by native enterprise.

* Collector's report in Board's Proceedings, No. 257, dated 25th January 1882.

4. In March 1882, the Government approved† of the Collector's suggestion to sell the first two sorts of opium to licensed vendors at 4 tolahs per rupee, and the third sort at 4½ tolahs. The retail price of the first and second sorts rose from 4 to 3½ tolahs per rupee. The third sort was sold to the vendors at 4½ tolahs and they retailed it at 4 tolahs. The fourth and fifth sorts were sold to the vendors at 6 tolahs, and they sold it to the people at 5½ tolahs. Under this arrangement a portion of the duty had to be foregone; but as opium is to some extent a necessary of life in these feverish tracts, the Board did not think it advisable to enhance the price considerably until more experience was gained.

† Board's Proceedings, No. 257, dated 25th January 1882, and G. O., dated 23rd February 1882, No. 22.

5 In its Proceedings, No. 350, dated 2nd February 1884, the Board recommended that the supply of opium to the Hill Tracts might be safely left to private enterprise from 1884-85. A contractor agreed to bind himself to supply the shop-keepers licensed by Government at 3½ tolahs per rupee, and the retail price rose to 3 tolahs per rupee, while the price in the ordinary tracts was 2 to 2½ tolahs. In 1885-86, 1886-87, and 1887-88, the supply monopoly was disposed of by tenders and the retail price underwent no alteration. As this system was not, however, found to work satisfactorily, the Board approved of the Collector's proposal to revert to the old amani (Government management) system from 1888-89, the monopoly of vend being sold in auction in selected localities, and the retail price of opium being restricted to 3 tolahs per rupee as formerly. This was sanctioned as a temporary measure for one year, but as there was only one bidder in 1889-90, whose terms were unreasonable, the amani system was continued in 1889-90. The privilege of retail vend in shops was sold by auction in selected localities, fixed fees were paid for shops in some portions, and free licenses were issued only for shops whose average annual consumption was less than 1,000 tolahs. The retail selling price was enhanced to 2½ tolahs per rupee, except in the Gudem hills and in the Paderu and Malkenjeri taluks, where it was fixed at 3 tolahs. During the current year the amani management has been discontinued, and the retail price in the excepted tracts above mentioned enhanced to 2¾ tolahs per rupee.

6. Godavari.—The Board proposed that the Agency tracts in the Godavari district should be treated in the same way as the Vizagapatam Maliah tracts, and that a remission of the pass duty should be granted; but the Government thought it unnecessary to undertake the supply under the amani system, as no distress or discontentment had been felt in the Hill Tracts on account of the rise in the price of opium. The agents of the mittas and heads of villages and such other persons as the Collector deemed fit were granted free licenses. It must, however, be observed that the issue of free licenses did not cheapen the price of opium, which remained as high as 2½ or 3 tolahs per rupee.

7. In its Proceedings, No. 1699, dated 19th May 1884, the Board approved of the Collector's proposal to put up to sale by auction the right of vend in certain villages; while as regards the rest it was directed that free licenses for new shops should not be issued except with the Board's special sanction. In August 1889, the Board recommended that the privilege should be sold by auction throughout the Agency tracts on the following conditions:—

(i) that the opium sold shall be of good quality;
(ii) that not less than 3½ tolahs shall be sold for a rupee;
(iii) that the maximum quantity to be sold to a single individual should be restricted to 6 tolahs; and
(iv) that free licenses should be issued only when a shop does not find a purchaser.

This was approved * by Government, and has been brought into effect during the current year.

* G. O., dated 18th October 1889, No. 848.

8. Ganjam.—From the Collector's reply to Board's Proceedings, No. 51, dated 17th January 1881, it was evident that there was no regular traffic in opium in the Hill Tracts of this district, and the Government consequently approved of the Board's proposal to grant free licenses in localities in which there was any demand.

9. From the above it will be evident that the system of issuing free licenses for the retail vend of opium is at present in force only in the Ganjam Maliahs and in portions of the Vizagapatam and Godavari Agency tracts in localities in which there is very little traffic in the drug, and where, owing to difficulty of communication and other causes, it would be felt as a hardship to deprive the people of the opportunities of obtaining this drug when necessary.

Order thereon by the Government of Madras.

Ordered that the following letter be despatched to the Government of India.

No. 89, dated 20th March 1891.

From—J. A. CRAWFORD, Esq., Secretary for Berar to the Resident, Hyderabad,

To—The Secretary to the Government of India, FINANCE AND COMMERCE DEPARTMENT.

I am directed to acknowledge the receipt of your letter No. 4938, dated 18th October last, calling for remarks on certain papers received from England regarding the sale of opium and other intoxicating drugs, and to state as follows.

2. It is true, as stated in those papers, that the number of licensed shops in the Hyderabad Assigned Districts had, between the years 1879-80 and 1888-89, increased from 532 to 604, and except in so far as it may be accounted for by the increase of the population and of wealth, Sir Dennis Fitzpatrick cannot find that there was any reason for the increase. From the 1st of April 1890, however, the number of shops was reduced to 587, and the Commissioner has now been directed to reduce it by at least 50 more, following the principles recently laid down for his guidance in the case of liquor shops, and to report how much further it can be reduced.

3. As regards the matter of consumption on the premises, there is at present no direct prohibition of consumption there, it having been thought sufficient to provide under a penalty that no intoxication shall be permitted on the premises, and indeed it would be obviously impossible to prevent a purchaser swallowing before he leaves the premises, the very minute dose of opium which he buys. As a matter of fact, it is believed that drugs which are swallowed are as a rule not consumed on the premises, but madak, in which form opium is smoked, though only to a limited extent, in the Hyderabad Assigned Districts, is commonly smoked on the premises. The Resident, however, has now directed that a clause shall be inserted in all future licenses for the retail sale both of drugs and liquor providing under a penalty that no persons shall be allowed to collect or loiter on the premises, and in the case of drug licenses that no smoking of drugs shall be permitted on the premises. He has further directed that the police shall be specially instructed to insist upon the enforcement of this condition, and that the manner in which it is enforced shall be noticed in the annual excise reports.

4. As for the suggestion made by the Society for the Suppression of the Opium Trade "that the Government of India should be directed to use the absolute discretion conferred on it by the Indian Opium Act of 1878 * * * by the adoption of measures having for their object to limit the sales of opium to that which is necessary for medical use," Sir Dennis Fitzpatrick will not go so far as to say that this would be impossible in a territory isolated from opium producing tracts and in which the use of opium had been previously little, if at all, known; but in the various parts of India in which he has served the practice of eating or smoking opium has come down from a period anterior to our rule. Opium, if not got in one way, can be got in another, and any proposal absolutely to prohibit the use of it now would in his opinion be so completely beyond the range of practical politics as to be scarcely worth discussing.

5. There seems to be no doubt that there are, or until the other day have been, places in India where, owing to a want of proper supervision and control, abuses have prevailed like those described in these papers, and which at least strike one with greater horror than any corresponding abuses in countries where people are demoralized by drink; but the Resident would affirm, without fear of contradiction, that, speaking generally, the evils arising from indulgence in drink in England are vastly greater than those arising from indulgence in opium in those parts of India with which he is acquainted, and yet he presumes no responsible person would think of suggesting that the sale of intoxicating liquor in England except for medicinal purposes should be absolutely prohibited by law.

6. That persons are found to suggest such a prohibition in regard to opium in the most general terms for the whole of British India is, he suspects, due, apart from the appalling but remediable abuses now brought to light in particular places, to two causes, viz.: first, that while the drinking of alcohol seems to those persons the most natural thing in the world, the eating or smoking of opium even in moderation presents itself to them as a strange, wild and unnatural sort of indulgence, deserving of no consideration whatsoever; and, secondly, that they imagine that the Government of India, as a despotic Government, can do anything not naturally impossible. Hence they feel no hesitation in recommending the universal prohibition of the sale of opium except for medicinal purposes, and they suppose that such a measure could be easily carried out by the exercise of the "absolute discretion" conferred by the Indian Opium Act.

7. Now upon this it may be observed, to begin with, that, though the Indian Opium Act of 1878, like some other Acts passed about the same time, confers upon the executive authorities a latitude of discretion which, from a constitutional point of view, Sir Dennis Fitzpatrick has always regarded as excessive, it will nevertheless be perfectly clear to any one who studies that Act and bears in mind the state of things under which it was passed, that it was never intended to confer upon the executive authorities power to do anything of the sort now proposed, and that to attempt to do under it anything of that sort would be a very gross abuse of the powers which it confers.

8. Further, supposing this difficulty to be got over, the question would remain whether it would be justifiable or expedient to take such action, and the Resident is decidedly of opinion that it would not. In the first place he is of opinion, though doubtless some persons will differ from him on this point, that it would involve an interference with individual liberty far in excess of what is justified by the nature and extent of the evils which necessarily result from the use of opium, that is to say, of the evils which do not admit of being checked by a stricter system of supervision and control; and in the second place, supposing considerations of this sort, which even the most despotic Government cannot venture to disregard, could be set aside, he is convinced that such a measure would be practically unworkable, and would lead to vastly more mischief than it would succeed in preventing.

9. Every one who has had experience of the working of the opium law knows that opium, owing to its extremely small bulk and the facility with which it can be stowed away, presents facilities for smuggling and clandestine sale immensely surpassing those presented by any other commodity in ordinary use.

As it is, our officers are driven to their wits' ends to suppress the limited and not very highly organised system of illicit traffic which has been evoked by our severe duties on opium, and, if we were to make it impossible for those addicted to the use of opium to get anything but contraband opium, a system of illicit traffic would inevitably be started on such a scale and with such an organisation that we should be utterly powerless to cope with it. Speaking generally, 10 grains would be an ordinary daily allowance to an opium-eater, 20 grains would be a very full daily allowance. A seer of opium contains 1,440 times ten grains and would be quite a stock-in-trade, and yet it is a very small thing, for opium is a heavy substance. Let any one picture to himself the difficulty of detecting the smuggling and surreptitious sale over an immense extent of territory, and for the supply of many millions of consumers, of such a commodity, and let any one who knows this country picture to himself what the attempt to suppress it here would mean. The imagination, at least the imagination of an ordinary practical man, refuses to conceive the establishments that would be required for such a purpose, and to any one who knows the class of persons who would have to be employed for such a purpose here, the prospect of oppression, corruption, and extortion which the suggestion opens out, is truly appalling. No doubt if we covered the whole face of the country with a net-work of preventive establishments, and resorted to an extreme of severity whenever we got a conviction, we should succeed in diminishing to some material extent the consumption of opium; but the advantage thus gained would be as nothing compared with the evils to be set against it.

10. For these reasons the Resident is of opinion, with all deference to those who have put forward this proposal, that, subject to a possible exception in the case of districts which are isolated from opium-producing tracts and in which the use of opium has not yet become established, the idea of prohibiting the sale of opium except for medicinal purposes may be at once put aside as wholly impracticable.

There are, in his opinion, only two ways in which we can check the evils which form the subject of this correspondence. The first is by putting on duties so severe as to raise the price of opium to the highest figure to which it can be raised without unduly stimulating illicit trade and thereby defeating our object. We have already, I am to say, carried this so far in the Hyderabad Assigned Districts that opium there sells to the small retail purchaser for its weight in silver. The other way is by a strict system of control and supervision. We have not as yet, it is true, done all that can be done in this direction, but we are endeavouring to do it, and we shall always be glad to receive suggestions from outside as to how it should be done.

No. 57, dated 20th March 1891.

From—R. SMEATON, Esq., Secretary to the Government, N.-W. Provinces and Oudh,

To—The Secretary to the Government of India, FINANCE AND COMMERCE DEPARTMENT.

I am directed to acknowledge your letter No. 4938, dated the 18th October 1890, with which were forwarded, for any remarks the Lieutenant Governor and Chief Commissioner might desire to make, papers received from the Chairman of the Society for the Suppression of the Opium Trade.

2. The exaggerated and inaccurate nature of the statements on which the memorial addressed by the Society to Her Majesty's Secretary of State for India is mainly founded was explained in paragraph 2 of my letter No. 433, dated the 28th November 1889, to your address. Mr. Caine's account of the "opium den" in Lucknow has already formed the subject of inquiry and correspondence. The account given by the Special Commissioner of the Bombay Guardian of the similar place at Allahabad consists mainly of a report of a conversation purporting to have been held between the Special Commissioner and the frequenters of the den. This gentleman was obliged to utilise the services of an interpreter, who appears to have explained matters, as guides are apt to do, in a manner which he thought would be gratifying to the Commissioner. But he was abusing even the most blind credulity when he informed the Special Commissioner that the opium-eaters before him were asserting that a memorial for the prohibition of the drug would probably be signed by every opium consumer in Allahabad. It is hardly conceivable that he could have expected to be believed when he made it appear that habitual opium-smokers were expressing themselves to a stranger as desirous of foregoing the use of the drug for the sake of public reform.

3. In this connection I am to point out that if every shop licensed for the sale of opium were at once abolished the drug would unquestionably be consumed by those who indulge in it at their own homes; and that if the Government levied no excise on opium the consumption of the drug would without doubt be enormously increased. The poppy is very extensively grown in the North-Western Provinces and Oudh; and very great facilities for its illicit sale and consumption necessarily exist even under the present restrictions. Any relaxation of Government interference would result in greater opportunities for illicit consumption and in a large increase in the number of opium consumers.

I am to refer to paragraph 21 of the Resolution of this Government, No. 222—XIII-38, dated 4th August 1890, to show that the restriction engages its attention.

4. With reference to paragraph 3 of the memorial, I am to remark that whatever the rise in the number of opium shops since 1879-80 may have been, there are now fewer shops of this kind in the North-Western Provinces and Oudh than in any other Province of India except Burma and Assam. Shops for the sale of ganja, hemp, &c., are more numerous in comparison, because it is in these Provinces, and especially in the eastern districts, that these drugs are mostly grown and used. In this case, too, the effect of removing the excise would in all probability be to increase the consumption of these drugs. The sale being under Government control, any tendency to increase the number of these shops unnecessarily has always been closely watched by Government, as the figures given in the memorial and reproduced below will show:—

| Year. | Number of shops for the sale of drugs. |
|---|---|
| 1883-84 | 4 799 |
| 1884-85 | 4 807 |
| 1885-86 | 4,785 |
| 1886-87 | 3,757 |
| 1887-88 | 3,857 |
| 1888-89 | 3,878 |

5. As regards paragraphs 4 and 7 of the memorial, I am to say that the figures given are substantially correct. The question of the consumption of hemp drugs, opium, madak and chandu was fully discussed in the Resolution above quoted. I am to invite attention to that portion of paragraph 20 of the Resolution which deals with opium shops, as evidencing the feeling and action of this Government in the matter. The Lieutenant-Governor and Chief Commissioner is of opinion that the policy of opening new shops for the sale of opium is questionable. The number of shops has no doubt risen from 792 in 1879 to 1,084 in 1888 (to quote the figures given); but this has been mainly due to the necessity of choice between two evils, viz, increased illicit use of opium on the one hand, or increased numner of places where licit opium may be bought on the other. The Government prefers to choose the latter, and lesser of these evils.

6. I am also to invite attention to paragraph 18 of the Resolution quoted above, which deals with hemp drugs. The number of shops in 1888-89 was only one to every 11,300 persons

7. As regards paragraph 18 of the memorial, I am to invite a reference to paragraph 21 of the Resolution (No. 223, dated 4th August 1890) on the last Provincial Excise Report. It was there shown that there had been from year to year a continuous decrease in the number of the so-called "opium dens." At the close of the excise year ending 30th September 1889 there were only 54 madak and chandu shops (that is, shops for the consumption of opium on the premises) in the 49 districts of the North-Western Provinces and Oudh—with their population of about 48 millions—as compared with 324 shops at the close of 1883-84. During the current excise year this number has been still further reduced to 26, as shown in the margin; and in 31 districts out of 49 there are now none of these shops in existence.

| Districts. | Number of shops. | Districts. | Number of shops. |
|---|---|---|---|
| Dehra Dun | 1 | Allahabad | 2 |
| Meerut | 1 | Jaunpur | 1 |
| Aligarh | 2 | Azamgarh | 1 |
| Agra | 2 | Mirzapur | 2 |
| Farukhabad | 2 | Benares | 2 |
| Moradabad | 1 | Jhansi | 1 |
| Budaun | 1 | Lucknow | 2 |
| Bareilly | 1 | Fyzabad | 2 |
| Pilibhit | 1 | | |
| Cawnpur | 1 | | 26 |

8. Turning to the appendix to the memorial, I am to observe that Mr. Caine (page 2) writes: "In the city of Lucknow there are thirty distilleries of native spirits, 201 liquor shops, 24 opium shops, and 92 for bhang and other intoxicating drugs." The assertion is cf characteristic inaccuracy and hardihood. In the whole Lucknow "district"—an area of about 1,000 square miles, with a population of nearly 700,000—there were during 1888-89 one distillery, 136 shops for the retail vend of country spirits, 86 drug shops, 3 madak and chandu shops (the so-called "opium dens"), and 27 opium shops not licensed for consumption on the premises. There seems to the Lieutenant-Governor and Chief Commissioner to be little practical usefulness in engaging in a never-ending discussion on the merits or demerits of the Indian excise system with critics who have shown themselves quite incapable of understanding the uses of accuracy, whose object is not to prove their contentions, but to impress the general public, and to that end to declaim and to denounce, and who cannot therefore be expected to forego their methods of controversy before the most cogent reasoning or the most unanswerable statistics.

9. I am to point out that Mr. Caine is equally wrong (page 3 of the appendix) in confusing "doubled revenue" with "doubled consumption." Inquiry shows conclusively that the increased revenue is very largely due to increased stringency on the part of Government, and to the persistent suppression of illicit traffic.

10. As regards the temperance movement to which Mr. Caine refers, I am to invite attention to paragraph 7 of the Resolution (No. 223, dated 4th August 1890) on the Excise Report referred to above, where the Lieutenant-Governor and Chief Commissioner alluded to the growth of a temperance movement in these Provinces. The Government will always be glad to welcome such movements on the part of the people.

No. 642, dated the 24th March 1891.

From—R. G. THOMSON, Esq., Officiating Revenue Secretary to the Government of the Punjab,

To—The Secretary to the Government of India, FINANCE AND COMMERCE DEPARTMENT.

I am directed to acknowledge the receipt of your letter No. 4938, dated 18th October 1890, forwarding copies of a letter from the Chairman of the Society for the Suppression of the Opium Trade and of a memorial addressed to Her Majesty's Secretary of State by the same Society, and asking that any remarks which His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor may desire to make on these papers may be submitted for the consideration of the Government of India.

2. In reply I am directed to forward a copy of a letter No. 66, dated 30th January 1891, from the Financial Commissioner, Punjab, with its enclosure, in which the facts and statistics in regard to the consumption of opium and drugs in the Punjab are clearly set forth and the statements concerning this Province contained in the papers forwarded with your letter under acknowledgment are discussed. Briefly, the facts in regard to the Punjab may be summarised as follows:—

Opium-smoking shops are now prohibited in the Punjab.

The figures regarding the increase of opium and drug shops in this Province, referred to in the enclosures of your letter under reply, are erroneous and misleading. The increase indicated by the figures is explained by the fact that since 1887 the returns show the number of shops, and not merely the number of licenses, as was previously the practice when one license frequently covered several shops

The consumption of opium has been restricted of late years through Government's action in—

(1) checking the smuggling of Malwa and Nepal opium;
(2) rendering it penal for cultivators to consume opium grown by themselves.

The ratio of consumption of opium to population is not so high as to be a cause of anxiety in regard to the health and morals of the people. In the few tracts where the habit may be said to be general among certain classes of the population it is of old standing, and does not seem to do so much harm as might be expected. The people, on the contrary, assert that they find it a protection against fever.

Of hemp-drugs, ganja is not consumed in the Punjab. The consumption of bhang and charas increases at a very slow rate. The revenue derived from the taxation of these drugs is unimportant. The question of further taxation is about to be considered by Government.

3. Six copies of maps showing the consumption of opium, charas and bhang in the Punjab are enclosed herewith. These maps will be found published with the Punjab Excise Report of the year 1889-90.

No. 66, dated 30th January 1891.

From—D. C. Johnstone, Esq., Junior Secretary to the Financial Commissioner, Punjab,
To—The Officiating Revenue Secretary to the Government of the Punjab.

G. R. Elsmie, Esq., C.S. Sub-Head 501. File No. 182.

With reference to your No. 2133 of 1st November 1890 to the address of the Commissioner of Excise, I am directed to forward copy of Mr. Dane's No. 239 of 24th December 1890, and to address you as follows on the subject of the consumption of opium and intoxicating drugs in the Punjab.

The Resolutions of the Society for the Suppression of the Opium Trade.

2. In the papers forwarded with your letter under reply "the alarming spread of the opium vice" in India generally is made the subject of remark, and in two Resolutions the Society for the Suppression of the Opium Trade calls upon the Indian Government to close the licensed "opium dens" and to put an end to the Bengal opium excise system. Against the Punjab in particular it is urged that there has been in recent years a large increase in the facilities afforded to the public for the purchase of opium and drugs, while the closing of the Lahore "opium dens" is acknowledged. The Financial Commissioner, I am to say, proposes to show in the following paragraphs that the Punjab system does not necessarily encourage real increase of consumption of drugs and opium throughout the Province, and that the figures taken from past Annual Reports have been misunderstood by the Society.

The annual figures of licenses for sale of opium explained.

3. In 1879-80 the Punjab Annual Excise Report showed a total of 1,164 retail opium licenses, and 986 such licenses for the sale of hemp-drugs. In 1889-90 the numbers were 1,888 and 1,824, respectively. These latter figures, however, hardly admit of comparison with the former figures. The number of licenses (as shown in annual returns) for retail sale of opium remained nearly stationary during the years 1880-81 to 1886-87 inclusive. In 1887-88 the figures rose from 1,439 to 1,717, and the explanation of this is to be found in the following extract from paragraph 2 of the Excise Report for the year in question:—

"2. The first important change is in the entry of numbers of retail licenses. In past years there has been a want of uniformity in this matter, some Deputy Commissioners showing number of leases and others number of shops. A glance at the prefatory note submitted herewith will show that shops, whether for sale of country spirits, rum, opium, or hemp-drugs, may be put up to auction singly or in groups. It follows that there may be in one year three leases, say, in a district and in the next ten leases, the number of shops remaining precisely the same; and Mr. Elsmie thinks it would be misleading to show the figures three and ten in such a case. An effort has therefore been made this year to ascertain the exact number of shops in which during 1887-88 exciseable articles were sold."

It was not found possible in 1887-88 to effect with complete accuracy this alteration in the mode of recording licenses; and when the Report for 1888-89 came to be written it was found that there were really 156 opium shops in the Amritsar district and not only 29, as shown in the returns for 1887-88. This correction, with one or two minor alterations, accounts for the increase to 1,849 in the Report for 1888-89; and the increase upon this figure in 1889-90 is slight.

The annual figures of licenses for the sale of hemp-drugs explained.

4. The apparent increase from 1,107 to 1,783 in the licenses for retail sale of hemp-drugs in the year 1887-88 is to be similarly explained. The figure for 1889-90 is 1,824.

Facilities for purchase of opium and hemp-drugs in the Punjab not excessive.

5. Neither in the case of opium nor in that of hemp-drugs is it believed that any important increase has occurred in the last eleven years in the real facilities afforded to the public for purchasing these articles. It may be possible here and there, the Financial Commissioner remarks, to reduce the number of shops, and the Excise Commissioner is understood to be paying attention to the matter; but, taking the Province as a whole, the number of shops does not seem to the Financial Commissioner very excessive. Of the 1,824 shops in which hemp-drugs are sold 1,553 are also opium shops; so that the total number of shops for the retail sale of opium and hemp-drugs is only 2,159 for a population which stood at 18,818,220 in 1881, and which is now probably much greater. This gives one shop per 8,693 souls.

Consumption of opium and hemp-drugs in the years 1879-80 to 1889-90.

6. The following table shows the figures in maunds of consumption of opium and hemp-drugs in the Punjab during the eleven years 1879-80 to 1889-90 inclusive. These figures are not very reliable as they are obtained from the retailers themselves; but, such as they are, they certainly do not bear out the view that the Punjab Government has by its policy fostered the consumption of these intoxicants:—

| Years. | Opium. | Hemp-drugs. | | | | Amount per head per annum in tolahs. | |

Three maps are appended showing the distribution of the opium and drug-consuming population in the year 1889-90.

Slow growth of the revenue from opium and hemp-drugs.

7. Another test of the matter is the comparatively slow growth of the revenue from opium and drugs in the Province during the last decade. If the facilities for purchasing drugs had been really increased by two-thirds during the ten years, from 1879 to 1889, as supposed, the revenue from drugs, Mr. Elsmie remarks, might have largely increased; but, as already pointed out by Mr. Elsmie in this office No. 216 of 11th August 1888, the revenue from opium and drugs has increased very slightly indeed.

The years 1879-80 and 1889-90 may be thus compared:—

| | 1879-80. R | 1889-90. R |
|---|---|---|
| Average duty . . . . . . . . . . . . | 34,390 | 36,806 |
| Licenses to sell opium . . . . . . . . . | 2,80,137 | 3,24,284 |
| Licenses to sell hemp-drugs . . . . . . . . | 1,39,577 | 1,54,885 |
| Total . | 4,54,104 | 5,15,975 |

The increase amounts only to R61,871, which represents a rate of 1·2 per cent. per annum on the figure for the earliest year. This, the Financial Commissioner observes, is a rate of increase probably slower than that of the increase of the population generally, and is certainly very gradual compared with the rapid increase of the material prosperity of the people, and is probably attributable not to a real increase of consumption but to improved administration.

Opium-smoking: closure of madak and chandu shops contemplated.

8. The opium dens mentioned in the printed papers received are shops for the smoking of the preparation of opium—madak and chandu. These, I am to say, have been wholly prohibited in the Punjab. The question of closing these shops seems to have been first discussed in the Excise Report for 1881-82, paragraphs 23 and 24; and in March 1883, by a Circular Memorandum No. 2181, copy whereof is attached for easy reference, Commissioners were asked to consider the matter of repression. In his No. 476 of 17th May 1884 the Financial Commissioner (Colonel Davies) reported to Government in favour of stopping the public sale of madak and chandu by giving no more special licenses for opium-smoking shops and by prohibiting the ordinary retail vendors from manufacturing and selling these preparations. In its reply (Punjab Government No. 250 of 5th November 1884) Government admitted the evils of opium-smoking, and expressed itself ready to sacrifice revenue should a reform of the kind proposed be practicable; but Sir Charles Aitchison thought that the experiment should first be tried in a few places and experience of its working gained before the introduction of a sweeping measure applicable to the whole Province. Accordingly, with effect from 1st April 1885, measures were to be taken for the suppression of opium-smoking at Peshawar, Delhi, and Lahore, and elsewhere the existing shops were to be strictly supervised and no new shops were to be licensed,—vide Financial Commissioner's Circular Memorandum No. 8582 of 22nd November 1884, copy of which is attached. This order was not carried out in Peshawar, because it was found that the opium contract there had been given for a term of years not yet expired. In Lahore the closure of madak and chandu shops caused a loss of revenue amounting to about R6,000 in 1885-86; but the results both in Lahore and Delhi were otherwise favourable. In 1886-87 it was reported that the results were good in Delhi; but the Excise Officer of Lahore, an official of great local experience, stated that there had been in Lahore city simply a loss of revenue with no appreciable decrease in opium-smoking. In paragraphs 24 and 25 of the Annual Excise Report for 1887-88 the state of the madak and chandu trade was briefly sketched as follows:—

"The result of the closure in Delhi has been favourable as has been already intimated to Government in this office No. 110 of 16th February 1888, and the number of chandu-smokers is steadily diminishing. That letter also shows that the closure in Lahore was not so successful; but now the Deputy Commissioner admits that, though smoking clubs frequented by old hands are common, the new regulations certainly tend to discourage further recruitment of the ranks of the smokers. As to Peshawar, a special report has been received from Mr. Merk. Opium-smoking began there in 1865; and in 1887, when the shops were closed, there were 300 to 400 regular frequenters. After one year's closure the number of habitual smokers is reported to have fallen to 50 or 60; and native public opinion is strongly in favour of the new policy. The returns now submitted show that Government certainly loses revenue by the closure of the shops and must expect to lose revenue for some years. The following are the figures for special madak and chandu licenses in recent years:—In Peshawar, viz., 1882-83, R7,236; 1883-84, R8,088; 1884-85, R8,688; 1885-86, R8,688; 1886-87, R7,080. In 1887-88 no such licenses have been granted.

As stated in this office No. 110 of 16th February, in nine districts there is no appreciable amount of opium-smoking, and it is believed there are no special shops in eight others. Special shops are licensed only in Umballa, Ferozepore, Mooltan, Amritsar, Sialkot, Gujranwala, Rawalpindi, Hazara, Kohat, Bannu, and Dera Ghazi Khan. In Umballa there is one shop in the Cantonment and one in the City, and the consumption amounted to 4 maunds 3 seers, the value of which is about R6,500. In Ferozepore there is only one shop, the sales of which amounted to 1 maund in 1887-88. In the Mooltan Cantonment are two shops and in the City one, and the sales are said not to be great. In the three shops of Amritsar City the consumption is said to have slightly increased. In Sialkot, where there are two shops, opium-smoking is said to be confined to the lowest classes. In Gujrat no chandu is smoked, and only five or six men smoke madak. In Gujranwala there are two madak shops, and chandu is little known. From Jhelum it is reported that chandu is unknown and madak smoking is decreasing. The Deputy Commissioner of Rawalpindi says: 'There is a general outcry against the existence of the shops in the city, as it is said that many young men of good family ruin health and character in them.' In Hazara only a little madak is smoked; and in Kohat, where there is one shop, the contractor has agreed to allow no new smokers into the shop, of which at present there are 38 customers. In Bannu a little chandu is smoked and no madak; but from Dera Ghazi Khan the report is that chandu is much indulged in by young men of the educated classes. The number of shops has, however, been reduced from ten to three."

Closure of madak and chandu shops effected.

9. Towards the end of 1887 Government asked for a special report on the whole question of opium-smoking; and, in his Secretary's No. 119 of 16th February 1888, Mr. Elsmie advocated the extension to the whole Province of the measures experimentally adopted in Peshawar, Lahore, and Delhi. Government in reply expressed a wish that the whole case should be considered by the Excise Commissioner to be shortly appointed, and the Excise Commissioner's report was forwarded to Government with Financial Commissioner's No. 733 of 23rd October 1889, Mr. Elsmie adhering to his views already expressed, with the result that Government ordered the closure of all madak and chandu shops with effect from 1st April 1890.

Apparent increase in consumption of opium in 1889-90 due to substitution of licit for illicit consumption.

* 1. Correspondence ending with Punjab Government No. 456 of 14th September 1888.
2. Punjab Government (Foreign) Proceedings, Nos. 5—14 of May 1887.
3. Financial Commissioner's No. 459 of 20th June 1889, to Punjab Government.
4. Paragraph 19 of Financial Commissioner's No. 139 C. of 15th July 1890, to Punjab Government.
5. Paragraph 32, Excise Report for 1889-90.

10. In the table in paragraph 6 of this letter it will be seen that an increased consumption of opium is shown to have taken place in 1889-90 as compared with the preceding years. This increase is, no doubt, partly the result of better record of sales, but it is also, in the Financial Commissioner's opinion, partly due to the substitution of licit for illicit consumption. In connection with this matter I am to refer you to the papers noted in the margin,* from which it will be seen that smuggling of Malwa and Nepal opium was and is very common, and that efforts are being made to suppress this contraband trade. Prosecutions have increased of late years, and it is natural to suppose that, if the standing attempt to suppress illicit traffic in drugs were not kept up, the evil would be much worse than it is at present. The curtailment of the illicit supply of the drug must naturally lead to increased demand for opium that has paid the proper duty. Further, I am to refer you to the new Opium Rules, published in Punjab Government Notification No. 653 A. of 1st April 1889. In these rules two changes were introduced which undoubtedly tend to check illicit consumption of opium. Before the revision of the rules it had been held by the Chief Court that it was not an offence for a licensed cultivator of the poppy to consume his own crop, but home consumption is now forbidden by the new Rule 9 (a). Again, it had been found that in certain districts containing large areas under poppy hardly any opium was reported as manufactured, the inference being that a large amount of locally grown opium was consumed in those districts without passing through the shops of the retail vendors, and that much of the produce was consumed in the form of post, the produce in neither case paying Government any revenue beyond the very low acreage duty of R2 per acre. The existence of this unlicensed consumption was found to be interfering with the value of the retail vendors' contracts, and thus to be causing loss to Government without any real advantage to the people. The new Opium Rules therefore provided that the Local Government might enhance the acreage duty up to any rate not exceeding R2 per quarter acre or fraction thereof; and under this power the Local Government has doubled the duty in nine districts of the Punjab, in which it was seen that a large area was annually cultivated with poppy, but a disproportionately small amount of opium was reported as manufactured. The Excise Commissioner is now considering whether further enhancements should not be made.

Proposal to levy an import duty on charas; and to improve the system of excise on hemp-drugs generally.

11. The use of charas is, Mr. Elsmie remarks, probably more harmful than that of opium. The price of the drug is low, and the idea of imposing an import duty in addition to the ordinary license fees has been under consideration for some time. In his No. 199 of 17th March 1888 to Government, Mr. Elsmie expressed himself in favour of the levy of an import duty; and in his No. 691 of 25th September 1888 he gave it as his opinion that Government should not attempt to levy a duty at a higher rate than R40 per maund. In replying to this letter His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor said he thought the whole subject required further consideration, especially with reference to the probable effect of the proposed duty upon the Central Asian trade generally. The Excise Commissioner has now reported fully on the whole case, and has also submitted draft rules of an improved kind regarding the administration of the excise on hemp-drugs generally. The report and the draft rules are now under consideration, and the Financial Commissioner hopes very shortly to be able to send up matured proposals for the approval of Government, the objects in view being the raising of the retail price of hemp-drugs and the introduction of a stricter supervision over their import and transport and consumption.

12. The proposals in question will also deal with bhang, a locally-produced hemp-drug. The hemp plant, as Government is aware, grows wild in several districts of the Province, and bhang is consequently very cheap. This circumstance, and the fact that hemp is used for other purposes than that of the manufacture of bhang, makes restriction of the use of the drug a matter of difficulty, and experience only can show how far the difficulty can be surmounted.

Conclusion.

13. In conclusion, I am to say that the Financial Commissioner desires to express his general concurrence in the views stated by the Commissioner of Excise in his report herewith submitted.

No. 239, dated 24th December 1890.

From—R. M. DANE, Esq., Commissioner of Excise, Punjab,

To—The Junior Secretary to Financial Commissioner, Punjab.

As directed in Punjab Government endorsement No. 2133, dated 1st November 1890, I have the honour to submit the following remarks upon the accompanying copies (1) of a letter from the Chairman of the Society for the Suppression of the Opium Trade to His Excellency the Viceroy, enclosing copies of Resolutions adopted by the Society at a meeting held on June 3rd, 1890; and (2) of a memorial presented to Her Majesty's Secretary of State for India by a deputation of the same Society on 30th July 1890.

2. The Resolutions are more strongly worded than the memorial; but both in the Resolutions and in the memorial the Government of India is urged to prohibit the sale of opium in India except for medicinal purposes, and the principle of a maximum revenue with a minimum consumption is declared in the memorial to be unsatisfactory; while in the Resolutions the arrangements made to safeguard the opium revenue by licensing the cultivation of the poppy and by auctioning the right of retail vend of opium are declared to be contrary to the elementary principles of morality and to be inconsistent with the Gospel of Christ. The memorial further draws attention to the increase in the facilities for opium vend in the Punjab and other Provinces apparent from the return furnished by Sir J. Gorst to Mr. M Stewart, M.P., during the last ten years, and concludes with a request that steps may be taken throughout British India to close opium shops for the consumption of opium on the premises

3. The Government of India requests that the general questions raised may be discussed as far as they affect the Punjab, and in replying to the Government of India it should, I think, be forcibly pointed out that, apart from financial considerations, any attempt to prohibit the sale of opium except for medicinal purposes would in this Province be most unpopular, and consequently politically inexpedient; while if the poppy were grown without restriction and the sale of opium were allowed free, the consumption of opium and its preparations would inevitably increase. Sikhs, Hindus, and Muhammadans alike eat opium, and at present the residents in the Phulkian States are the largest consumers.

The memorialists themselves admit that in malarious tracts opium is useful as a prophylactic, and I think that the opportunity afforded by the presentation of this memorial should be taken to state clearly that the poppy has been cultivated and opium eaten in the Punjab from the period antecedent to British rule; that the drug when taken in this form in moderation is not believed to be necessarily prejudicial; and that although indulgence in the habit may legitimately be restricted by taxation, and thereby made a source of revenue to the State, prohibition and unrestricted consumption are alike out of the question. Opium-smoking is another matter. Unlike opium-eating, the practice appears to have been of comparatively recent growth in this Province, and its evils have already been recognised, and all licenses for the sale of chandu and madak withdrawn.

4. The particular allegation regarding the Punjab contained in the memorial is that the number of shops for the vend of opium and other drugs has risen from 1,164 in 1879-80 to 1,849 in 1888-89. The memorialists appear to think that Lucknow is in the Punjab and Lahore is in the North-Western Provinces; but the figures above given require some explanation.

In paragraph 29 of the Provincial Excise Report for 1889-90 I observed that the number of licenses for the retail vend of opium in the Punjab appeared to be unduly large, and in paragraph 34 I made a similar statement regarding the number of shops for the retail vend of intoxicating drugs. The figures quoted by the memorialists, however, do not, at any rate in the earlier years, represent the number of licensed shops in the Province; but the number of licenses, and in some districts leases, were in former years shown in the returns as licenses. Thus in 1879-80 I find that in the opium-eating district of Ludhiana the excise returns show one license, and for other districts there are similar entries: viz., for Bannu, 5 for Kangra, 7 for Rawalpindi, 4 for Jhelum, 3 for Shahpur, &c. The entry in the more recent returns of the number of shops, whether licensed direct by Government or by lessees or farmers, has naturally caused a large increase in the number of licenses, and the memorialists have been misled by this circumstance. At the same time I may repeat that in my opinion the number of existing shops for retail vend both of opium and hemp-drugs, but especially the latter, admits of some reduction, and I have for some time been collecting statistics with the intention of addressing Deputy Commissioners on the subject.

5. The request for the closure of shops for the retail sale of opium for consumption on the premises, by which I understand shops for smoking opium and its preparations, does not concern this Province, because, as already stated, all licenses for the retail vend of madak and chandu have been withdrawn in the Punjab. The licensed shops at Delhi and Lahore were first closed with effect from April 1885; then at Peshawar from April 1887: and in other districts with effect from April 1889 and April 1890. The publication as a printed selection of the correspondence on this subject would be useful as an illustration of the principles which have actuated and governed excise policy in this Province.

The only reference to the Punjab in the extracts referred to in the Appendix to the memorial is in Mr. Frederick Sessions' speech published in July 1890 in the Friend of China, where he refers briefly to the increased number of licenses granted for opium vend, and this subject has already been sufficiently noticed.

No. 2043, dated 21st April 1891.

From—H. J. S. COTTON, Esq., Secretary to the Government of Bengal, Financial Department,
To—The Secretary to the Government of India, FINANCE AND COMMERCE DEPARTMENT.

I am directed to acknowledge receipt of the orders of the Government of India, No 1938, dated 18th October 1890, forwarding for report a copy of a memorial addressed to Her Majesty's Secretary of State by the Society for the Suppression of the Opium Trade and of resolutions adopted by that Society on the 3rd June 1890. In reply I am to submit a copy of a report* from the Board of Revenue on the subject, with its enclosure from the Commissioner of Excise, and to add the following observations which have been recorded by the Lieutenant-Governor.

* No. 193 B., dated the 21st March 1891.

2. The enclosures now submitted appear to satisfactorily meet most of the considerations put forth in the memorial so far as the Bengal Province is concerned. It is not affirmed that the consumption of opium is on the increase in these Provinces. The consumption of opium and the net duty realised thereon during the past ten years is as follows:—

| | Maunds of 82 lb. avoirdupois. | Net duty. |
|---|---|---|
| | | R |
| 1880-81 | 1,763 | 13,95,083 |
| 1881-82 | 1,723 | 14,47,324 |
| 1882-83 | 1,802 | 15,04,097 |
| 1883-84 | 1,918 | 15,92,416 |
| 1884-85 | 1,876 | 15,60,261 |
| 1885-86 | 1,841 | 15,35,107 |
| 1886-87 | 1,887 | 15,69,842 |
| 1887-88 | 1,939 | 16,08,239 |
| 1888-89 | 1,925 | 15,98,455 |
| 1889-90 | 1,905 | 15,76,121 |

This shows, as the Board point out, that during the past three years consumption has actually declined, while the total increase in the consumption since 1880 is only 142 maunds, or 8 per cent., which does not more than exceed the general increase in population in the districts where opium is chiefly consumed. The memorial of the Society also alludes to the fact that the number of licenses for the sale of opium and other narcotics has been largely reduced in Bengal. The Lieutenant-Governor will therefore follow the Board of Revenue in confining his remarks in this report to the proposal of the memorialists to enforce the closure of all opium saloons, or dens as they are called.

3. On this point I am first to explain that it is not the case, as the memorialists would seem to suppose, that licensed shops for the sale of opium are places where opium is consumed on the premises. On the contrary, the 1,872 shops which are now licensed are places of vend only, and there is no reason for speaking of them as opium dens. The only places to which that expression can be held to apply are the madak and chandu shops, of which 346 and 89, respectively, are licensed at present. In these shops opium in its manufactured form is smoked on the premises, and, as Mr. Westmacott observes, scenes of intoxication may be witnessed. That in some cases evil results are produced by these shops is freely admitted; but the Lieutenant-Governor is not satisfied that the results are evil in all cases, or that the worst cases are so numerous as to require that a civilised Government should make a crusade against this class of shops. Even if it be granted that the evil is not exaggerated, still the question remains whether it can be obviated by any remedy which will not be worse than the disease. The Society for the Prevention of the Opium Trade put forward a proposal to prohibit all licensed shops The answer to this proposal is forcibly stated by the Commissioner of Police, the Commissioner of Excise, and the Board of Revenue. If prohibition were enforced the smokers of opium, instead of meeting in licensed saloons, would resort to unlicensed dens where it would be impossible to convict them of any offence unless it could be proved that they had obtained their supplies from an unlicensed vendor. The habit of smoking in unlicensed dens, which is now combated with such difficulty, would soon become unrestricted. The Lieutenant-Governor accepts the view that it would be worse than useless to refuse all licenses for madak and chandu shops.

4. As to the proposal to limit the possession of opium to one tolah instead of five, its effect on the ordinary consumer of opium would be undesirable. A quarter of a tolah is a common, perhaps the commonest, dose taken daily by those who are addicted to the use of opium, and it is within Sir Charles Elliott's personal knowledge and experience that this quantity is taken by innumerable persons in all parts of India, from Rajputana and the Punjab to Assam, without any injury or physical deterioration; that heavy tasks are easily performed under the stimulus it supplies; and that the prevalent belief is that the stimulus is wholesome, even in a dry climate, and is especially beneficial in moist and marshy countries like Eastern Bengal. The consumer of such a dose can now procure his supply for 20 days by one visit to an opium shop; if the limit were reduced to one tolah, he would require to visit the shop every four days—an annoyance which there is no reason for imposing upon him, and the imposition of which would lead to increased smuggling and to breaches of the law.

5. For the rest the Lieutenant-Governor considers it unnecessary to follow the Board in their observations on the proposed prohibition of the retail vend of opium except for medicinal purposes. Such a proposal does not deserve serious consideration. The policy of Government is to discourage and restrict the consumption of intoxicants as far as possible; not to make foolish and impossible attempts to prohibit their consumption altogether Mr. Westmacott observes: "It is my experience that the only way to prevent the illici.

and comparatively unrestricted consumption of intoxicating drugs is to control the trade by the issue of a carefully restricted number of licenses, raising the price of the drug artificially by means of duty and license fees as high as is practicable without driving the consumers into smuggling, and making it the interest of every licensed dealer to prevent illicit practices." These principles are followed by the Government of Bengal, and the statistics already quoted in this letter attest the success which has attended their application in regard to excise opium.

No. 193 B., dated 21st March 1891.

From—K. G. GUPTA, Esq., Secretary to the Board of Revenue, Lower Provinces,

To—The Secretary to the Government of Bengal, Financial Department.

With advertence to Government Order No. E 1-0—8-2, dated 28th November 1890, and enclosures, forwarding for report a memorial from the Society for the Suppression of the Opium Trade, recommending the closing of licensed opium dens throughout India, and limiting the sale of opium to what is required for medicinal purposes only, I am directed to submit herewith copy of a report No. 5896, dated 19th ultimo, from the Commissioner of Excise on the subject, with the following observations.

2. The Society's memorial is taken up entirely with the question of excise opium in India; but of the two resolutions passed at their Annual Meeting, the second refers to the cultivation of provision opium for export to China and other foreign countries, while the first summarises the recommendations of the Society made in the memorial in regard to excise opium.

3. In paragraph 2 of the Government of India's letter No 4938, dated 18th October 1890, the Local Government is asked to submit remarks on all the papers (including apparently the resolutions); but further on in the same paragraph it is said "that the general questions raised in the memorial should be discussed so far as they affect Bengal." It may be presumed, therefore, that the Government does not desire that the Board should take up again the large and often-discussed subject of the opium manufacture for export to China and the Straits, but that what is required is that the contents of the memorial, so far as they specially affect or refer excise opium in Bengal, should be noticed.

4. The memorial, it will be observed, has little or nothing to say against the general administration of the Excise Department in Bengal. In paragraph 2 it is observed that the habit of opium-smoking is on the increase in India. In paragraph 3 the number of licensed shops for the sale of opium and other drugs in the different Provinces is given for the ten years 1879—89. The figures show, as is admitted in paragraph 5 of the memorial, that the number has been largely reduced in these Provinces. The practice has therefore been in conformity with the accepted principle that the duty should be continually raised and thereby consumption be discouraged so far as is consistent with the prevention of illicit manufacture. The figures given in paragraph 4 of the Excise Commissioner's letter show that, in the ten years 1880—90, the consumption of opium has increased by 142 maunds only, or 8 per cent., which is approximately equal to the general increase of population, if anything rather less than the increase disclosed by the last census in the population of the districts which are the chief consumers of opium; while the receipts from duty have risen by R1 81,038, or very nearly 13 per cent., showing that the duty has been perceptibly enhanced during this period. It is also noteworthy that the consumption has actually declined since 1887-88. It appears therefore that, as far as Bengal is concerned, the report of the Board may be restricted to the specific recommendation with which the memorial concludes, viz., that licensed opium dens should be closed everywhere.

5. As regards this point the Excise Commissioner's letter goes into the question fully, and very little remains to be said. It appears that the memorialists would include in the term opium dens both madak and chandu shops, of the former of which there are, according to the Excise Report of 1889-90 346, and of the latter 89 licensed in the whole of the territories under the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal. Chandu shops, as the extracts annexed to the memorial correctly show, are distinctly places for producing temporary intoxication. The preparation of opium which is called chandu is of Chinese importation. It is smoked in order to bring about a brief period of intoxication, after sleeping off which the consumer usually leaves the shop and goes back to his work. Smoking madak does not necessarily, or even as a rule, lead to intoxication. Of the chandu shops, 16 are in the Mymensing district, 10 in Gya, and 11 in Calcutta, though the Board are assured that the chandu shops in Calcutta, being now in the hands of single licensee, only four are actually open at the present time. Of the madak shops, 31 are in Calcutta, 40 in the 24-Pergunnahs, 29 in Hooghly, and 28 in Maldah, where there is not a single chandu shop. The income derived from these shops was in 1889-90 (as shown by the Excise Commissioner in his letter) R35,216 from chandu and R82,825 from madak shops, besides of course the duty on the opium consumed in these shops. If it may be assumed that the opium would not be smoked elsewhere if these shops were shut, the closure would, perhaps, entail a loss of revenue of 3 lakhs per annum in all Bengal.

6. Seeing the degradation which results from the consumption of these preparations of opium, especially from chandu, it is very natural that the question should be asked whether it would not be far better to close such shops altogether, and the Board are quite prepared to admit that if the evil would be remedied by refusing any chandu or madak licenses it ought to be done. But though it is very easy to describe in effective language the great demoralisation which obtains in the most degraded stratum of society in all large cities, a stratum which, where gin is the prevailing stimulant, is to be found congregated round gin-palaces, where absinthe, round the absinthe shops, where chandu, round the chandu shops, the responsible Government is bound to be satisfied that the anticipated benefits will actually result before the existing machinery is dislocated. These opium dens exist almost exclusively in large centres of population, and whatever may be true of rural tracts, it is certainly not true to fact to represent that in large cities the Government creates the taste for intoxicants by introducing licensed shops. Already the excise administration only stops one stage short of prohibition. The vend of chandu and madak is prohibited everywhere throughout India, save in a few scattered excepted spots, and even there its consumption is deterred by the imposition of a very heavy duty. It is hardly fair to describe the Government as responsible, in the ordinary sense of the word, for the existence of an evil which it places under such heavy disabilities. But the question is whether, if Government went further, if instead of merely penalising very heavily this practice, it were altogether to prohibit indulgence in it, the result would be successful. The Board will consider this first from the more practical point of view, that is, on the assumption that the general opium excise policy were allowed to remain unaltered, but no chandu or madak licenses were to be granted. Secondly, on the more radical assumption that the vend and possession of opium were also prohibited except for medicinal purposes.

7. At present, opium can only be purchased from licensed vendors, and, save under very exceptional circumstances, no one may possess more than 5 tolahs, even if obtained from a licensed vendor. Now what would happen, say, in Calcutta if all the chandu and madak shops were closed? There is no difficulty whatever in drawing the necessary conclusion, because it can safely be inferred from what already goes on. From 5 to 20 opium-smokers would meet together in out-of-the-way and retired rooms, where madak or chandu would be sold to them and smoked by them as at present. If discovered, they would declare that it was their own opium which they had purchased for the occasion. The Magistrate would refuse to convict unless evidence could be adduced that the opium or its preparation had been purchased. Such evidence could only be obtained through spies and informers. Now, at the present moment, there are scores of illicit opium dens in Calcutta (in spite of the existence of the licensed shops) that are maintained in this very way, against which war is waged incessantly by the police and excise establishments, but with very indifferent success, for the reason above described. It it is now found difficult to convict the owners of these illicit dens, and impossible to extirpate them when the administration is aided by the vigilance of the licensed vendors ever ready to co-operate by every means in their power, as well as by the establishment for detective purposes maintained out of the excise revenue, which can use the licensed shops as their best sources of information. What would the result be if these aids and supports were withdrawn and the licensed vend of chandu and madak stopped? It is in no way exaggerating the case to say that probably the unlicensed shops would so thrive, increase, and multiply that there would be more opium-smoking in Calcutta after the prohibition than there is now. The police would be discouraged by the difficulty in procuring convictions, while the auxiliary forces which now form their best allies would no longer exist.

Not merely would there be no diminution of the evil habit, but by the very necessities of the case, the dens being removed from all supervision, would be more unwholesome, more closed to light and air, less well looked after than they are now. The hold which the police have over the criminal classes would be seriously relaxed. The licensed madak shop is to the Indian detective what the pawn-broker's establishment is to the English detective, the place where he often gets the first clue to the discovery of a dacoity or other grave offence which would otherwise remain undetected. Is it not after all a very appreciable advantage to the community that by the existence of these licensed shops which heavily penalise, but stop short of absolutely prohibiting opium-smoking, the criminal classes and inevitable scum of large towns, which would otherwise shun police observation, should to so large an extent be focussed and brought under their direct notice? And would not this advantage be completely lost (probably without any counter-balancing advantage) if the system of licensing chandu and madak shops were given up?

8. It will be seen, however, that the limit of possession of opium might be fixed at one tolah instead of five, and the private manufacture of chandu and madak might be prohibited. The Excise Commissioner recommends these modifications, and is supported by the Commissioner of Police. This is, perhaps, not the proper occasion to re-open these questions, as what the memorialists ask for is the closing of licensed shops, while the introduction of these proposals would rather serve as valuable aids in disminishing the number of illicit shops. But the Board may remark that in 1885, when the present opium rules were drafted, they wished to make the limit of possession of intoxicating drugs one tolah, but the Government of India disapproved of the suggestion, while in 1886 the Board suggested that the private manufacture of madak and chandu should be altogether prohibited, a proposal which the Bengal Government disapproved of in reporting on the subject to the Government of India. The Board did not propose to lower the limit of the possession of opium below 5 tolahs, and the Government

G. O. No. 3594, dated 21st October 1885.

Bengal Government No. 1885 of 12th August 1886.

argued that if the opium was allowed the use that might be made of it ought not to be restricted. Should the Government see its way to prohibit the unlicensed manufacture of chandu and madak, this would materially assist in the repression of unlicensed dens, and indirectly therefore lead to a reduction of the number of licensed shops.

9. In the second place, what would happen if the Government were to prohibit the retail vend of opium throughout British India except for medicinal purposes, or its possession, save for the same object, or, as the memorialists would probably prefer, were to prohibit the cultivation of the poppy altogether, save within the narrowest limits and its importation into British India. Mr. Westmacott refers to this alternative in paragraph 5 of his excellent report, and the Board have little to add to what he there says. What the Government does endeavour to do is to make opium (which can naturally be produced at R5 to R6 per seer for the best quality) unobtainable save at prices varying from R20 to R35 a seer, and to effect this it has to make all dealing in other than its own excise opium illicit, and to exclude, as far as possible, foreign opium. What difficulties it meets with are too well known to need many words. Nepal and all other surrounding territories are centres of illicit trade. Every railway, every river, every main artery of traffic is utilised for the transport of illicit opium. Seizures are frequent, but the profits of the trade are such as to minimize their deterrent effect. What then would be the result of total prohibition? Is a very expensive preventive agency to be still maintained from the general taxation of the country? If not, illicit traffic would reign supreme. Japan and Corea, part of Java and the Phillippine Islands are no fair parallel to such a continent as India. After the treaty of Tilsit, all the resources at the command of Napoleon failed to exclude English manufactures from the Continent of Europe, and what probability is there that a drug so easily concealed as opium could be excluded from British India with its almost limitless land and water frontiers.

10. It must also be remembered that the English system of administration, which is largely engrafted into India, is essentially non-inquisitorial. Hardly any other administration in the world is so handicapped in a policy of prohibition as an administration conducted on English principles. The Board are confident that if the policy advocated by the memorialists were seriously tried it would result in conspicuous failure.

11. The present policy of discouragement, as contrasted with total prohibition, is, the Board are convinced, the right one, and this is quite consistent with an honest endeavour to improve matters in any particular district or city in which there appears to be room for amendment. The number of chandu or madak shops in such districts as Maldah, Mymensing, Gya, and some others cannot but arrest attention, and it seems quite possible that something may be done with advantage to reduce their number. The Board are satisfied that the Excise Commissioner is fully alive to his duty in this respect, and will do all in his power to minimise the existing evils, even though no radical change of system may be considered feasible.

12. Sir H. Harrison is reluctant to refer to the revenue now raised from excise, lest it be retorted that this shows that, say what the Government may, it values income more than morality. But still no practical administrator can afford to ignore the question how the 100 lakhs now raised by excise in the Lower Provinces would be raised if prohibition were substituted for discouragement? It is fair to take the entire sum of 100 lakhs, because the attacks on the spirit revenue and ganja revenue are as persistent and based on at least as strong grounds of reason and morality as the attacks on the opium revenue The excise revenue is now readily attacked by many respectable opponents in India, because they feel no sense of responsibility as to how it would have to be replaced; but if the question were put in a definite form, whether the trebling of the income-tax would be accepted as a substitute, how many persons would venture to advise this measure? Or, again, take Calcutta as an example. The excise revenue in Calcutta—not including the customs revenue on wine and spirits, still less the revenue derived from the sale of provision opium—exceeds 20 lakhs—much more than is realised from the house-tax at 10 per cent. It is needless to say how heavily the house-rate is felt by the owners of house property in Calcutta. Would it be considered a welcome or even a fair proposal to substitute total prohibition of the consumption of spirits, ganja, and opium in Calcutta for the present system of licensing, and to raise the house-rate to 20 per cent. in order to make up the revenue sacrificed. The question can only be viewed in its true light by asking in what less objectionable manner 100 lakhs could be raised in Bengal if the excise were given up, and it is difficult to see how any satisfactory answer could be given to this question.

No. 5896, dated 19th February 1891.

From—E. V. WESTMACOTT, Esq., Commissioner of Excise, Bengal,

To—The Secretary to the Board of Revenue, Lower Provinces.

With reference to your No. 1828-B. of the 9th December last, and its enclosures, as per margin, I have the honour to submit, for the consideration of the Board, the following remarks.

No. E. 1-02—8, dated 28th November 1890, from the Government of Bengal.

No. 4938, dated 18th October 1890, from the Government of India, and its enclosures.

2. The Society for the Suppression of the Opium Trade have addressed the Viceroy on the subject of closing the licensed opium-dens throughout India, and limiting the sale of opium to that which is necessary for medical use. My report for the year 1889-90 shows that the greatest number of licenses in force in these Provinces during any part of the year for the retail sale of opium was 3,394, while in 1888-89 it had been only 2 374, and during the five years from 1884 to 1889 had averaged 2,415. The increase is due to the issue of an increased number of licenses to druggists for the sale of opium for medical purposes, the number of such licenses in 1889-90 being 1,522 against 453 in 1888-89. Omitting these licenses the number in 1889-90 was only 1,872 against 1,921 in 1888-89. Any proposal to increase the number in any district is carefully scrutinised by me, and the Collectors limit them to what is necessary to prevent unlicensed dealing. To the best of my knowledge and belief no opium is consumed on the premises of any of these 1,872 licensed shops, and there is no reason for speaking of them as opium-dens. The places really referred to by the Society are shops licensed for the sale of the preparations of opium known as chandu and madak for smoking—chandu in the Chinese and madak in the Bengali fashion. In these shops the drug is smoked on the premises, and it is true that sometimes scenes of intoxication may be witnessed. The number of licenses in these Provinces for the sale of chandu was 89 in 1888-89 and 88 in 1889-90. For madak the number was, in 1887-88, 367 ; in 1888-89, 366 ; and in 1889-90, 346.

3. People are now allowed to manufacture madak for home consumption without license up to a limit of 5 tolahs, a privilege which covers much unlicensed trade, and, while it may reduce the scenes of intoxication in licensed shops, has, in my opinion, led to considerable increase of madak-smoking. I am not aware of the reasons which led to this concession to madak-smokers, but I think that the results of it have been distinctly mischievous. The greatest number of licensed chandu shops open in Calcutta and the suburbs, including the towns of Howrah and Bally, was, in 1889-90, 11, and of licensed madak shops 31. The number actually open at this present writing is—

Chandu . . . . 4 Madak 4 . . . . 27

With reference to the feasibility of closing any of these shops, Mr. Lambert, C.I.E., the Commissioner of Police, whom I have consulted upon the subject, writes as follows :—

"I am of opinion that, so long as opium is cultivated and sold, and so long as the possession of opium up to 5 tolahs weight by private individuals for domestic use is permitted by the law, the existence of chandu and madak shops is a necessary evil.

"That they are an evil admits to my mind of no doubt, and a visit to the opium-dens in this city would show to the inexperienced very forcibly in what way these places exercise a pernicious influence over those who resort them.

"Still, if the licensed shops were closed, a much larger number of people would be led astray by being tempted to resort to private dens, which would at once spring up in large numbers. This would open out a new field of mischief. New temptations would be offered to officials, and the supply of the drug would still be equal to the demand, and the evil would be in no way abated.

"The question asked by you, whether the present number of shops in Calcutta might with advantage be decreased or not, may I think be best answered as follows : -

"Unless the vendors are required to provide more airy and spacious premises, I see no object to be gained by diminishing the number of shops; but if the shops and courtyards were properly constructed and reasonably spacious so as to admit air and light, I think the number of chandu and madak shops might be diminished by one-half."

I agree with Mr. Lambert at present in thinking that the closure of the licensed shops would lead to an increase in the number of private dens. I do not think there would be any decrease in opium-smoking, and there would certainly be a large outcome of all the evils invariably attendant on an illicit trade. The subject of requiring licensees to provide airy and spacious premises is receiving my attention. The idea of promoting tea shops as a counter-attraction for opium-smokers does not require serious consideration. I am at present of opinion that the vice of opium-smoking would be fostered, rather than checked, by closing licensed shops and driving smokers to secret places to satisfy their terrible craving. Were it otherwise, and could opium-smoking be stopped by refusing to issue licenses for chandu, and madak shops, I do not think that considerations of revenue should induce us to hesitate. I believe that even in London it has not been found practicable to close the establishments for smoking preparations of opium, and it would certainly be more difficult in Indian towns, where the number of persons who are victims to the habit is, if I am not mistaken, very much larger. Under police regulations in Calcutta licensed chandu and madak shops are closed at 6 in the evening. The consequence of this is that after that hour there is much smoking in unlicensed places, with which my officers are unable to deal in consequence of the concession which allows any person to possess without a license 5 tolahs weight of the drug. An excise officer enters an unlicensed shop, the dealings of which are notorious, and finds 20 or 30 persons smoking. Each of these persons professes to have purchased his drug less than 5 tolahs from a licensed vendor, and unless a trap is laid it cannot be proved that the keeper of the shop has made a sale. In the rare cases in which a conviction for unlicensed sale is obtained the fine imposed by the Magistrate is generally much below the fee which would be levied on a license, and consequently unlicensed dealing is found much more profitable than dealing under a license. I do not think it necessary or desirable to close the licensed shops ; on the contrary, I think they should be kept open longer than they are : but I think that a more stringent law is required to enable us to suppress unlicensed shops and also more vigorous action on the part of Magistrates in dealing with convicted offenders. I have more than once brought to the notice of Government the inadequacy of the punishments inflicted. Besides these difficulties in our way, I must observe that our excise and police establishments are not strong in numbers, or in energy or integrity, and it is my experience that the only way to prevent the illicit and comparatively unrestricted consumption of intoxicating drugs is to control the trade by the issue of a carefully restricted number of licenses, raising the price of the drug artificially by means of duty and license fees as high as is practicable without driving the consumers into smuggling, and making it the interest of every licensed dealer to prevent illicit practices. While, however, it is my opinion at present that worse evils would follow if we did not license places for opium-smoking, I shall not cease to consider the matter, and shall be careful to license no more shops than are absolutely necessary to prevent the existence of illicit establishments. It is true that while these places are licensed by Government we leave it open to those who indulge in sensational and irresponsible declamation to accuse the Government of protecting and encouraging them for purposes of revenue; but I have no fear that this accusation will be endorsed by any one who will patiently and dispassionately examine the facts. So far as these Provinces are concerned, it is not the case that the limitation of consumption has been subordinated to the consideration of revenue. I feel confident that by reducing the taxation on opium or any other intoxicating drug, and by increasing the number of licenses for retail sale, I could increase the revenue to an enormous extent; whereas the policy which I am carrying out, in accordance with the wishes of the Bengal Government, is the very opposite of this. We do not reduce taxation, nor do we issue new licenses, except where we are convinced that we cannot otherwise check illicit practices, and the number of licenses issued is steadily decreasing, while the average of fees on licenses is increasing.

4. To speak of the unrestrained consumption of opium and other intoxicating drugs in these Provinces under the present system is misleading in the extreme. Taking the case of opium, we find that the cultivator receives at the Opium Agency 5 rupees for every seer of his opium of a certain consistency, and every endeavour is made, though doubtless with only partial success, to prevent his disposing of any portion of his crop except to Government. The opium which he does dispose illicitly is known to be of very inferior quality. The good opium issued from the Opium Agency is sold to licensed retail vendors at fixed prices in each district, ranging from R16 to R32, according to the distance from the growing districts in which smuggling is comparatively easy. The quantity so sold, omitting fractions of a maund and the net duty realised in the aforesaid fixed prices, has been as follows:—

| | Maunds of 82lb avoirdupois. | Net duty. R |
|---|---|---|
| 1880-81 | 1,763 | 13,95,083 |
| 1881-82 | 1,723 | 14,47,324 |
| 1882-83 | 1,802 | 15,04,097 |
| 1883-84 | 1,918 | 15,92,416 |
| 1884-85 | 1,876 | 15,00,261 |
| 1885-86 | 1,841 | 15,35,107 |
| 1886-87 | 1,887 | 15,69,842 |
| 1887-88 | 1,939 | 16,08,239 |
| 1888-89 | 1,945 | 15,98,455 |
| 1889-90 | 1,905 | 15,76,121 |

In the year 1889-90 the fees on licenses for the retail sale of opium and of chandu and madak amounted to—

| | R |
|---|---|
| Opium | 3,83,365 |
| Chandu | 35,216 |
| Madak | 82,825 |
| TOTAL | 5,01,406 |

Rupees 5,01,406 in license-fees and R15,76,121 give a total taxation on excise opium in Bengal in 1889-90 of R20,76,527, which on 1,905 maunds 22 seers amounts to an average of more than R27 per seer; and if I were to omit the more lightly-taxed districts in which the plant is grown, but in which the licit consumption of opium is much smaller than elsewhere, the taxation per seer would be shown to be very much heavier. I think these figures are sufficient to show that the consumption of opium is by no means unrestricted.

5. It has been suggested that the supply of opium might be cut off altogether by prohibiting the cultivation of the poppy. That the cultivation in British India could be prevented I believe. Mr. W. Kemble, the Opium Agent of Behar, says—

"As regards your second question, I am of opinion that the cultivation of poppy could be prevented with the greatest ease. The crop is so easily distinguishable that it can be seen from a great distance. A system of rewards to informers would soon bring illicit cultivation to the notice of the Magistrate.

"The sale and consumption of the drug could not be so easily prevented. If cultivation were stopped in British India, the smuggling from Nepal and other independent States would largely increase, and would result in more demoralisation than the consumption of the drug."

Some opium is now smuggled from Nepal, though less than those interested in screening the illicit practices of our own cultivators would lead us to believe, and we know that the plant is cultivated in Independent Tipperah, while there are numerous tracts in India over which we could not prevent the cultivation. The closing of our own Agency would lead to the use of smuggled opium of an inferior quality, and we must consider what the effect would be upon our own cultivators. The closing of silk filatures, and consequent cessation of cultivation of mulberry in Midnapore has been that the "Tootiyas," hereditary cultivators of mulberry (toot), have become the most troublesome class of professional criminals in that district. They have not taken to other departments of honest agriculture. It is not unreasonable to suppose that our opium-cultivators might be similarly affected by the suppression of their industry. We have also to consider the consumers of opium in the malarious alluvial tracts which form a great proportion of the area of these Provinces. The use of opium by these people is not so much a vice as a necessity. Their vegetable diet would not keep them alive without stimulants, and I doubt whether it would be for their benefit to stop their opium and drive them to ganja or spirits. On the comparatively dry laterite soil the people are spirit-drinkers. On the alluvial mud they either use opium or the far more deleterious ganja. I do not believe that the prevention of the cultivation of the poppy in British India would cut off the supply of a drug which bears so high a value as opium, which the people believe to be so necessary to them, and which, from its small bulk, is, if the smell is disguised, very easily smuggled. I also doubt whether there is any equally efficient febrifuge within the reach of the people and whether their health would not suffer greatly if they could not procure opium. It does not appear to produce such insanity as ganja does, and, where people are as well fed as the Mahomedan ryots of Eastern Bengal, I am informed that opium-smoking does not injure them. It is said to be opium-smoking on insufficient food that affects the health.

6. In conclusion, I may say that I believe there has been much exaggeration as to the scene of intoxication to be witnessed in the chandu and madak shops. As I have already said, there is none in the retail opium shops. I have visited shops in which more than a score of persons have been smoking chandu or madak without seeing any person lying intoxicated or unable to answer my questions intelligently. I have also, however, seen persons in other shops lying asleep, and presumably intoxicated, but not many. It is, I believe, usual for the smokers of chandu, the Chinese preparation of opium, to sleep, presumably intoxicated, before leaving the premises; but in the madak shops this is by no means always the case, and I have seen many get up and go away quietly from the shop after smoking the drug. They have told me that they have no desire to sleep after it.

No. 4911, dated 18th July 1891.

From—T. D. MACKENZIE, Esq., Chief Secretary to the Govt. of Bombay, Revenue Department,

To—The Secretary to the Government of India, FINANCE AND COMMERCE DEPARTMENT.

I am directed to acknowledge the receipt of your letter No. 4938, dated 18th October 1890, forwarding copies of a letter from the Chairman of the Society for the Suppression of the Opium Trade, enclosing copy of the resolutions adopted by that Society on the 3rd June 1890, and of a memorial addressed to Her Majesty's Secretary of State by the same Society, together with a reprint of the passages to which references are made in the appendix to the memorial. In paragraph 2 of the same letter this Government is requested to submit its remarks upon these papers, and to discuss the general questions raised in the memorial so far as they affect the Bombay Presidency, and especially the suggestion in paragraph 18 of the memorial regarding the grant of licenses for the retail sale of opium to be consumed on the premises.

2. In reply, I am directed to forward copies of the reports on the subject by the officers named in the margin, and to submit, for the consideration of the Government of India, the following remarks.

Letter No. 899, dated 28th February 1891, from the Commissioner, Northern Division.
Letter No. 658, dated 21st February 1891, from the Collector of Ahmedabad, with appendices.
Letter No. 1094, dated 9th March 1891, from the Commissioner of Customs, Salt, Opium and Abkari, with appendices.
Letter No. 1130, dated 14th February 1891, from the Collector of Khandesh.
Letter No. C.—950, dated 4th February 1891, from the Collector of Land Revenue, Customs and Opium, Bombay, with appendices.
Letter No. 1825, dated 24th April 1891, from the Commissioner of Customs, Salt, Opium, and Abkari.
Letter No. 1677, dated 21st May 1891, from the Commissioner in Sind.

3. The points in the memorial with which this Presidency is concerned are those raised in paragraphs 14 and 18. With reference to the former, in which it is stated that "the revenue returns show that in Bombay the duty on opium consumed in the Province, which amounted to R59,497 in 1879-80, had risen to R1,25,518 in 1888-89, having more than doubled in a period of nine years," I am to invite attention to the statistics in paragraph 5 of the report by the Opium Commissioner and in the accompaniments thereto. The quantity of licit opium passed into consumption has risen from 63,028lb in 1879-80 to 148,295lb in 1888-89, while shops have increased as follows:—

|---|---|---|
| Dry opium | 892 | 1,175 |
| Chandul and madat | 70 | 130 |
| Bhang, ganja, &c. | 678 | 603 |

The increase in the licit opium sales is due, I am to observe, entirely to the measures taken to check opium-smuggling, and to substitute licit opium for the contraband opium which formerly fed the bulk of the consumption. Those measures have extended not only to British territory, but the whole of the Native States within the Presidency have been gradually included within their scope, and the general result is that the retail selling price of opium has been doubled everywhere within the last fourteen years, while the clandestine importations of opium from Central India and Rajputana have been materially reduced. The measures referred to were introduced for the first time in a few districts only in 1877-78, and by degrees their operation has been extended to the whole Presidency, including Sind. The progressive growth of licit consumption indicated in the statement attached to Mr. Spence's report is thus accounted for.

The increase in the number of shops licensed for the sale of dry opium results from the same causes, inasmuch as it was necessary to open shops in places where there was a demand for opium which had previously been met from illicit sources, while the increase in the number of shops licensed for the sale of chandul and madat is in part due to the circumstance that in some districts chamdul and madat were sold in 1879-80, and for some years afterwards in the same shops as dry opium, whereas of late the sales have everywhere been separated, and in part to an actual increase in the number of shops in certain localities.

4. So far as opium-eating in this Presidency is concerned, the Governor in Council believes that the habit is steadily declining especially among the trading and well-to-do classes, who are still the chief consumers of the drug in the cities and throughout Gujarat and Kathiawar. The practice of giving opium to infants and young children to keep them quiet while their mothers are at work is common throughout the Presidency, and quantities of opium, considerable in the aggregate, are purchased for that purpose. The tendency of the whole action of Government has been in the direction of confining the consumption of opium to licit importations, and of raising the retail selling price. Opium-eating is probably less injurious on the whole than liquor-drinking, and if the price of opium were raised too high, or if it were placed out of the easy reach of people wanting it, there would be a great risk of inducing opium-smuggling or of driving people to the liquor shops.

5. As regards the smoking of chandul and madat referred to in paragraph 18 of the memorial, it must be admitted that the habit is on the increase among the Musalmans and the lower classes of Hindus in several parts of the Presidency. Preparations of opium are smoked in private houses and clubs as well as in licensed shops. It is not, in the opinion of this Government, improbable that the increased resort to chandul and madat shops, which are frequented only by the lower classes,—the practice of opium-smoking not being reputable according to the ideas of Indian Society—is in a measure the consequence of the general raising of the prices of liquor, which has of late years taken place. Whatever pleasurable feelings there may be in intoxication or in semi-intoxication can be induced more cheaply now in many localities in a chandul than in a liquor shop.

6. In connexion with the smoking of chandul and madat I am to invite the special attention of the Government of India to the able and careful report of Mr. James Campbell, Collector of Bombay. It will be seen that there is a marked divergence of opinion between him and Mr. James, the Commissioner, Northern Division, and it appears to the Governor in Council that the views of the former are the more to be relied upon, in that he adduces facts to prove his argument that the smoking of opium has not necessarily the vicious results attributed to it by Mr. James. Mr. Campbell proves by figures that in Bombay City at least a large majority of the frequenters of the chandul and madat shops is neither criminal nor unemployed, and having regard to this and the reports of the other officers consulted, it is, in the opinion of the Governor in Council difficult to accept Mr. James' sweeping assertion 'that 99 out of 100 who practise it (opium-smoking) are degraded and worthless, perhaps criminal persons." As regards the charge made on page 8 of the "reprint of passages referred to in the appendix to the memorial" that the dens are made so attractive as to tempt persons who would not otherwise visit them, it is clear that, so far as this Presidency is concerned, the charge is without foundation.

7. As regards the closing of opium-smoking dens, although there is some reason to fear that one effect of the step will be to encourage the establishment of opium-smoking clubs, which will not be open to police supervision, as are the 'dens,' His Excellency in Council proposes to try the experiment of closure in some places and diminution in others.

8. The object of this Government, apart from the moral duty which rests on it to endeavour to encourage the people to detest intemperance, is to prevent the illicit consumption to opium, and any measures compatible with that object, which can be shown to be effectual in decreasing the consumption, or checking the spread of the consumption of opium, will most readily be adopted.

9. I am further to mention that the Governor in Council cannot accept the opinions expressed by Mr. Frost, the Acting Collector of Ahmedabad, in paragraph 5 of his report. He was new to the district and had had no practical experience of the subject when he wrote his report, while the Deputy Collector in charge of Opium at Ahmedabad has also held that appointment for but a short period. There is no reason to suppose that farmers generally have sold opium for export into foreign territory, and indeed it is difficult to understand how they could make a profit on such traffic in duty-paid opium. In the specific instance mentioned by Mr Frost, there was reason to believe that the farmer had been guilty of mal-practices, and his license was therefore revoked.

No. 899, dated 28th February 1891.

From—H. E. M. JAMES, Esq., Commissioner, Northern Division, Bombay,

To—The Under-Secretary to the Government of Bombay, Revenue Department.

Referring to your No 8069, dated 15th November 1890, I thought it desirable to ask the Collector of Ahmedabad for a plain account of the opium traffic in that district which is almost surrounded by Native States, with a large population of Rajputs and Mahomedans, both classes addicted to opium, and the town of Ahmedabad is also unusually populous.

2. I enclose the Collector's report and enclosures in original.

3. You will perceive that, in the opinion of those best qualified to judge, the vice of opium-smoking is increasing in the large city of Ahmedabad (130,000 inhabitants), but the revenue from it has fallen from nearly R3,600 in 1884-85 to R730 in 1890-91, the number of licensed shops having also been reduced from 4 to 2 The apparent anomaly is easily explained Under the existing opium rules, no persons can be prosecuted for being in possession of a "preparation of opium" unless it exceeds 10 tolas in weight. Ten tolas of chandul afford smoking for 50 persons. Thus private smoking amongst respectable classes is spreading. Formerly a man could keep only sufficient chandul for his private wants. Now he can invite large parties, who of course secretly pay him, to his private house, where the vice is indulged in, so that only the lowest persons need go to the public shops.

4. Were the Society for the suppression of opium well advised, they would press upon Government an alteration of the rule so as to render the possession of small quantities of prepared opium illegal. Then these private parties would be suppressed, for the givers thereof would be liable to prosecution. Some respectable persons might continue to smoke privately by themselves, while the lowest and most degraded would, as now, frequent the shops; but a part of the respectable smokers would stop, or at any rate the extension of their numbers would be repressed.

5. In any case the figures which I have given show that Government is not only not making revenue, but losing it by opium-smoking under the present rules; also that people cannot smoke to intoxication in the Ahmedabad shops owing to the diluted stuff that is offered to them. I should therefore advise, myself, a return to the former rule so as to force all opium-smoking to be under control. Opium-smoking in India is not, as in 99 cases out of 100 in China, a harmless habit, like cigar-smoking amongst Europeans. (I can testify to this from my own observations when travelling in the north of China.) In India it is a degrading vice, the mark of a debauchee, and 99 out of 100 who practise it are degraded and worthless, perhaps criminal, persons. In the ports no doubt respectable hard-working lascars and others are to be found who indulge in it; but, as a rule, an opium-smoking native of India, of whatever rank of life he be, is vicious and without any sense of self-respect. The reverse is the case in China.

6. Opium-eating and opium-drinking are on quite a different footing. The consumption of 'kusumba,' or liquid opium, is common, especially with Rajputs, and is sometimes carried to excess. Opium-eating is a healthy practice, especially in feverish districts and in the cold weather, and its abuse is comparatively rare. The revenue from this source has increased in the Ahmedabad district, along with a reduction in the number of shops from 205 to 191, from R98,000 to R1,45,000 in the last ten years. This is almost entirely owing to special measures taken for the repression of smuggling from Native States over the border. The profit to Government in the opium consumed is R5 a pound or R700 a chest, which doubles the cost-price of the drug, and opium is so portable that smuggling is both easy and profitable. Any increase therefore in the excise rate would only stimulate smuggling. It would not diminish consumption. Part of the increased consumption in this district is undoubtedly due to the spread of teetotalism or abstinence from spiritious liquors consequent on the spread of the tenets of the Swami Narayan sect. Classes who once drank now take opium on the sly, though that is equally prohibited by the sect.

7. Smoking of ganja or Indian hemp is almost entirely (I can only recollect meeting one or two instances to the contrary) practised by Sadus, or religious ascetics, the naked so-called fakirs with matted locks and nude bodies covered with ashes, amongst whom it is almost universal. In the Ahmedabad district thousands of them pass and repass annually on their way to the sacred shrines of Dwarka or Dakor. Practising the vice from childhood, a fakir can at middle age smoke 8 or 10 pipes a day without inconvenience. Private persons who became addicted to it generally end their days as lunatics. Bhang, which in Gujarat is a potable preparation of hemp, is not nearly so deleterious. The most respectable merchants in Ahmedabad take it regularly in the hot weather as a refrigerant. The persons incorrectly spoken of in Indian histories and tales as "bhangad" are really persons who have smoked, not drunk the hemp. The shops for the sale of the drug in the Ahmedabad district are 51 in number, being an increase of 4 in ten years. Ganja-smoking shops do not exist like chandul shops. The drug is smoked at home. The amount of the farm rose from about R3,000 to R5,000 in 1882-83, and has been almost stationary since, though in 1889-90 it rose to nearly R6,000. This increase was, as well as I recollect, due to enmity between two rival competitors for the shop.

8. I do not think that it would be an advantage to suppress all chandul shops. They exist in London, in America, in large numbers, and the ostrich-like policy of ignoring the vice would not, in my humble opinion, answer. I would rather suppress the private opium-dens and force persons who do not smoke privately at home to resort to the shops. I would reduce the amount of licit chandul to be retained by an individual to one tola, and I would hold the master, owner, tenant or occupant of any house responsible for any gathering of two or more persons for indulgence in the vice. So far from the "legality and publicity of the opium shops making it easier for the respectable classes to enter them," it is precisely that which keeps them out of the shops in India. A time might of course come when chandul-smoking might spread to respectable classes, and comfortable divais such as exist in China might take the place of the squalid dens now licensed. Even then I suspect Government would be helpless. But sufficient unto the day is the evil thereof. I have no fear myself that the natural self-respect of natives of India will ever be so far lost as to permit any general extension of the vice amongst respectable classes so long as it is kept in the open. Our present policy tends to encourage it in the dark, and that is, as I have said, doing harm.

No. 658, dated 21st February 1891.

From—C. E. FROST, Esq., Collector of Ahmedabad,

To—The Commissioner, Northern Division, Bombay.

With reference to your No. 4873, dated 17th November last, I have the honour to submit my report on the subject of repressing the opium trade.

2. I append the following statements :—

A.—Showing the number of opium-smoking or chandul shops, and the realisations from license-fees from 1878-79 to 1890-91.

B.—Showing the number of opium shops, the quantity of opium sold, and the duty realised during the past ten years.

C.—Showing the number of ganja and intoxicating drug shops, and the realisations during the past ten years.

Chandul shops.

3. Chandul-smoking appears to be the most pernicious of all uses to which opium is put, and I regret to say the habit is not less prevalent with the lower classes in Ahmedabad than elsewhere. Before the passing of Act I of 1878 the sale of chandul was not farmed, but on its introduction and the promulgation of rules under the Act the manufacture of chandul without a license was prohibited. From Statement A it will be perceived that there are licensed chandul shops in the Ahmedabad City only. The number established in 1878 was four, and this number continued unchanged, till this year (1890-91) they have been reduced to two. The farm started with a revenue of R1,326 in 1878-79, which rose to R3,600 in 1884-85; in 1885-86 the farm fetched R2,795-13-4, which dwindled down to R566-10-8 in 1888-89; in the next following year the receipts were R830.

This year (1890-91) they have fallen to R730, the number of shops being two.

4. The general opinion seems to be that private smoking is on the increase, and with this there is absolutely no means of interfering. The two remaining shops in Ahmedabad might well be closed now. The loss of revenue would be small, and it would make no difference in the amount of smoking, but it would please the so-called philanthropists in England who meddle with these matters.

I attach the opinions of Rao Bahadur Munsukhram Mulji, City Police Inspector, and Rao Saheb Ajitrai Shivdas, Opium Inspector, on the subject of the vice of opium-smoking increasing as a vice. (Appendices D and E.) Both agree that it is, and they are officers of vast experience in the matter. I asked Messrs. Green and Bahmanji Edalji Modi to visit the chandul shops at an hour when they are most frequented by smokers, and I attach their descriptions of what they saw. (Appendices F and G.) Apparently the Ahmedabad smokers do not go to the length of their confreres of Northern India and Burma; but the evil is a great one nevertheless, though I see no remedy for it.

Statement B attached furnishes talukwar statistics of the number of shops, the quantity of opium sold, and the amount realised during the past ten years. I have also added the minimum guaranteed vend for each year. Prior to 1880 opium was sold through licensed vendors, who paid certain sums for the privilege of selling it, obtaining the duty-paid opium from Government. The farm system was introduced in 1880. Under the former system the shopkeepers used to sell large quantities of smuggled opium brought in clandestinely from Native States; but under the present system the farmer guarantees to sell a fixed minimum quantity or to make up the duty on that quantity. From the statement it will be seen that up to 1884-85 the quantities sold were less than the guaranteed minimum, but even these figures must be accepted with caution, as it is suspected that much of the opium shown as sold was really exported into foreign territory. From 1885-86 the sales are larger than the quantities guaranteed, with the exception of 1887-88, and it seems to me that clandestine exportation to Native States accounts for the higher rate of consumption. The 'minimum vend' is year by year raised, and the farmer finds it hard to work honestly up to it, so he manipulates his so-called sales in such a way that he will not suffer exporting at cheaper rates into foreign territory all his surplus stock. There is reason to believe that the system by which the farmers effect this clandestine export is being perfected. The Kaira farmer, for the past year, to save himself from the fine for not selling what he undertook to sell, attempted to dispose of his surplus by sending it in three gunny bags to foreign territory. While passing through this district the carriers were detected, but instantly threw down their burdens and made good their escape. There was every reason to believe that the farmer was the miscreant, but it could not be judicially proved. His license has, however, been revoked.

The number of shops has been reduced in the ten years from 201 to 195.

With the increase in "sales" of course rose the receipts. In 1880-81 the revenue was R88,050, in 1889-90 it has expanded to R1,45,841-7-0 for this district. This does not, however, seem to me an index of real increased consumption to any great extent. The Deputy Collector in charge Opium attributes it to the following causes:—

1st.—Opium farmers who have bound themselves to pay a certain sum to Government show larger sales at their shops, but in reality pass on the excess opium stealthily into adjoining territory.

2nd.—Better organisation of the opium preventive establishment and increased vigilance in the repression of opium-smuggling from foreign territory compelling our people to use the farmer's opium.

On the other hand, it is said that the spread of the Swami Narayan sect has tended to increased consumption of opium owing to their total abstinence from liquor. The eating of opium is undoubtedly a vice; but it appears to be less baneful in its influence over the constitution and the purse than that of drinking.

I can think of no way of checking it except by raising the prices to the highest point it will bear. This has been long the policy of Government, but it makes smuggling a profitable pursuit. We are at present unable to cope successfully with smuggling, although every effort is made to do so. The suppression of the local opium trade, as desired by several well-meaning people in England, would lead at once to an enormous increase in consumption, as the price now is an artificial one. Also the people here will have their opium.

Ganja, bhang, &c., shops.

The Statement (C) attached furnishes particulars of the increase or decrease in the number of licensed shops and the realisations effected. In the city there has been a decrease of seven shops as compared with the year 1880, and in the Daskroi taluka an increase of seven, in Dhandhuka of four, and in Dholka of one, while in Sanand the number of shops has fallen from four to two. The realisations, it will be seen, swelled from R3,053-13-8 in 1880 to R5,935 in 1889-90, which is the largest income on record.

The habit of smoking ganja appears to be confined chiefly to Sadhus, Gosais, and other religious mendicants, large numbers of whom pass through this district on their way to Dwarka in Kathiawar and consume by far the greater part of the ganja sold here. Bhang is needed by Brahmins and others chiefly during the hot season. It does not seem to be so injurious as ganja-smoking. The use of neither of these drugs appears to have increased to any great extent, and at all events our present system of farming does not induce consumption of them.

The system of farming appears to have been introduced as a prelude to other sterner measures adopted for preventing, as far as possible, the illicit traffic in opium. A double staff of excise officers was thus available, the farmers and the Government employes both working in different interests but to the same common end. Smuggling, however, though kept down to a certain extent, yet continues. Several large seizures have been made, and large numbers of offences are annually detected and successfully prosecuted. To concentrate the responsibility for the detection of opium and abkari cases this Department was separated from the police in 1881, and the following establishments were sanctioned since that date in this district:—

1 Opium Inspector, R35.—Government Resolution No. 2863, dated 6th August 1881.

8 Constables.—Government Resolution No. 2063, dated 2nd June 1883.

The following Abkari establishment which assist in preventing opium-smuggling was also sanctioned :—

1 Inspector, R75 + R15 horse allowance.

1 Sub-Inspector, R40 + R10 do. }
2 Head Constables, R12 } Government Resolution No. 4195, dated 20th July 1881.

APPENDIX D.

Opinion of Rao Bahadur Munsukram Mulji, Inspector of Police, Ahmedabad City.

The vice of smoking opium as a vice is extending in the City of Ahmedabad, while that of smoking ganja and drugs is not on the increase. It is true that the number of licensed shops of smoking opium was formerly four, and it has now been reduced to two; but from this it is not to be understood that the number of persons smoking opium is reduced, but on the contrary it has been increased, as each person is permitted to have 10 tolas in his possession at a time without any legal restriction, and, consequently, smoking opium in private houses other than the licensed ones is largely on the increase. From my experience of about more than four years of the City of Ahmedabad, and from my personal occasional visits to the chandul shops in the city, I am led to believe that the vice of smoking opium is extending, and is the worst of all the other vices, namely, eating and drinking opium and smoking other drugs, as it does not give much strength at all, but on the contrary it makes the smoker weak and pale. The persons who have got this habit generally belong to the lower classes of the community, and most of them live upon gambling and other offences, such as petty thefts, cheating, &c.

APPENDIX E.

Opinion of Rao Saheb Ajitrai Shivdas, Opium Inspector, Ahmedabad.

Since the sale of chandul has been farmed out the number of chandal-smokers has been on the increase. There is no doubt about it. According to my experience, extending over nine or ten years, more chandul smokers are seen now than before, and among them there are many who smoke privately, because the law allows it, persons smoking privately not being treated as offenders. This has led to the increase in the number of private gatherings of chandul-smokers. I think there must be about 1 000 chandul-smokers now in the whole city. Such is my surmise. Of these, hardly four or five hundred persons might be smoking at the izardar's chandul shops. The reasons are —

1. As the izardar has to make his profit to meet the expenses on account of servants, &c., and to pay the amount contracted for, he sells the chandul dear and makes it thin. It therefore does not suit the smokers. Hence all the smokers do not patronise the izardar, but go to other places where chandul is prepared privately and given for smoke.

2. Persons who give chandul secretly for smoke make their chandul rather thick, and as they have no other expense to bear they sell it cheap. Hence smokers are tempted to go to them because they cannot thereby be offenders against the law, and consequently there is no means of preventing them from doing so.

3. There are only two ways of bringing the persons who give chandul secretly within the clutches of the law. They can be convicted on two grounds, viz., selling chandul without a license and possessing chandul in excess of 10 tolas. But both these infractions are not such as can come to the knowledge of Government servants or of persons who do not smoke, because persons who sell chandul secretly are not under the necessity of keeping more than 10 tolas in their possession. If they make half a pound of it from quarter of a pound of opium they may keep half of the preparation at the smoking haunt and the rest at some other place, whence they can draw upon when required. Thus no offence is committed until more than a quarter of a pound is kept in possession. Besides, the smokers are the customers of these people, and therefore they would not say, when giving their evidence, that chandul was sold to them, for fear of being refused admittance into the shops afterwards, whereby they would be compelled to smoke the dear and greatly diluted chandul of the izardar. It is therefore difficult that they can come within the other offence (selling opium).

4. I think that to smoke chandul is the worst habit. The places where it is smoked are likely to cause sickness to a person who visits them when smokers are imbibing, still those who are addicted to it cannot do without it. The habit of smoking chandul can be dropped by eating opium, and also, perforce, if there is no one to give chandul to smoke. Therefore, if the making and giving of chandul for smoke were prohibited by law, people would be saved from ruin and, I think, there will be no decrease in opium revenue. Chandul-smokers become sluggish, weak, haggard and lazy, and great miscreants. Many cunning chandul-smokers, after their conviction for making, smoking, and giving chandul for smoke at their own houses because of their not getting good and cheap chandul from the izardar, are carrying on the trade of selling chandul secretly for smoke in such a manner as not to come within the law, but there being no means available for catching them, such offences are left undetected. I think so.

APPENDIX F.

Description by E. F. GREEN, Esq., Superintendent of Police, Ahmedabad, of his visit to the chandul shops in Ahmedabad City.

Formerly there were four chandul shops in Ahmedabad City, viz., at Khasbazar, Pir Mahomedshah, Duriapur, and Panchkuva. The latter two have lately been closed at the request of the chandul contractor. The two shops at present licensed open at sunrise and shut at 9 P M. The daily attendance varies between 75 to 100 at Pir Mahomedshah and 100 to 150 at Khasbazar, the daily taking in the former shop being R4-8 to R5, and in the latter R5-8 to R7. I visited Husenmia Baker's, the licensed vendor of chandul at Pir Mahomedshah, about 7 P.M. on the 20th November, and found a couple of small dirty rooms, to get into which I had to climb a steep and narrow flight of steps, occupied by about 12 persons of the lowest and worst class, two of them being prostitutes. The two rooms together could only accommodate 20 to 25 people at one time. The vendor had been about 4½ years in the shop, and he informed me that between 9 and 11 A.M. and 7 and 9 P.M. the attendance was fair, but that the whole business was dwindling away owing to private smoking parties. Turning my attention to the smokers, I found none of them at all intoxicated, and should think they could never get so for two reasons, firstly, on account of the poorness of the chandul; secondly, the want of money to procure a sufficient quantity at one time. One and all of the smokers complained of the poorness of the stuff they got and inveighed against the private smoking parties. The vendor's excuse for preparing weak chandul was that he had to make good R730 for license fee, besides house-rent, &c., per annum.

2 I visited this shop again next evening a little later, and found about the same number of persons, one or two persons being the same as seen by me the previous evening. Both evenings I also visited Ramjan Nathu's shop, which resembles a very dirty coach-house with a dirty stable yard, with big doors leading out into the Khasbazar. This man had been in business about 7½ years. The information obtained from the vendor and smokers was the same as above. The first evening there were about 22 persons and the second 27, two or three prostitutes each evening. If the whole yard were occupied, probably 50 people might be accommodated at one time. Both shops are frequented by Mahomedans, Hindus, Lodhas, dyers, goldsmiths, and Marwari prostitutes.

APPENDIX G.

Description by Khan Bahadur B. E. Modi, District Deputy Collector, Ahmedabad, of the chandul shops in Ahmedabad City visited by him.

I visited the two shops in the City at eight o'clock in the night. In the shop near the Hope Market I found 26 persons, one of whom was a woman. They were mostly Mahomedans, but there was a fair number of low caste Hindus. One was a Shravak Wania. None of them were in anything like complete stupor, but they all lay too close to each other. One dose consists of a quarter tolah of chandul, that is, opium mixed with water, and costs one anna and four pies. The people complained that, owing to the larger quantity of water, they could not obtain sufficient intoxication. The farmer makes about two tolahs of liquid chandul from one tolah of opium. The price of one tolah of opium is about 5 annas, and for every 5 annas spent on opium the farmer gets 10 annas 8 pies. He pays out of these profits the sum for which the farm is given to him. About 100 persons, speaking roughly, smoke daily at this shop and about 75 at the other shop. At this other shop, when I visited, there were 16 persons. One was a Bania mukadam of a cotton mill; he had been induced by a Mahomedan mill-hand to taste the pleasures of opium.

There was a bad smell in the first house owing to the presence of a urinal and on account of the spittings of the people; in the other shop it was not so bad. The atmosphere in both the places was rather heavy on account of the smoking. There are one or two sweetmeat-sellers, sometimes sugarcane-sellers, in these chandul shops, for people must eat something after the smoke.

No. 1094, dated 9th March 1891.

From—J. K. Spence, Esq., Acting Commissioner of Customs, Salt, Opium, and Abkari, Bombay,

To—The Chief Secretary to the Government of Bombay, Revenue Department.

I have the honour to offer the following remarks with reference to the papers forwarded with Government endorsement No. 8070, dated 15th November last. I have taken the liberty of retaining the papers, as copies are probably available in the Secretariat. If not, the papers will be returned on application being made for them.

2. The general questions raised in the papers are the following:—

(1) That it is an established fact that the opium vice is spreading throughout India.
(2) That licensed opium-dens should be closed.
(3) That the sale of opium should be limited to that necessary for medical purposes.
(4) That serious hindrance is caused to missionary work by the connection of Government with the opium trade, which is immoral and contrary to the Gospel of Christ.
(5) That officials are liable to be careless in acting up to the principle of obtaining the maximum of duty with the minimum of consumption.

3. The points that more especially affect Bombay are—

(1) That the figures regarding the number of shops licensed for the sale of opium and other intoxicating drugs are not available to show whether the number of such licenses has increased or otherwise, but that the increase in revenue bears out the view that it has increased.
(2) The description of the shops for the sale of opium, chandul, and madat in the Cities of Bombay and Poona.

4. If the Society for the Suppression of the Opium Trade has made up its mind that the spread of the opium vice is an established fact, I fear that there is no use in resorting to any arguments regarding the matter. The first point that arises is whether the taking of opium in moderation in any shape is a vice. If that question is begged, and the increase in the number of shops and the amount of licit opium consumed is taken as incontrovertible evidence that the actual consumption has increased, then there is nothing further to be said in the matter. I append statements showing the number of shops for the sale of opium in its various forms and of other intoxicating drugs during the last ten years in each district in the Presidency. The statement also shows the number of pounds of licit opium that passed into consumption in each year in each district. No accurate statistics are available of the amount of intoxicating drugs other than opium that passed into consumption.

5. The statements show the following facts. The number of shops for the sale of opium has increased from 872 in 1879-80 to 1,175 in 1888-89. In the same way the number of shops for the sale of chandul and madat has varied from 67 in 1880-81 to 131 in 1887-88. The number of shops for the sale of intoxicating drugs other than opium shows a very small variation from 614 in 1883-84 to 663 in 1888-89. These shops supplied a total population of 16,454,414, so that in 1888-89 there was one opium shop to about 14,000 people, in 1887-88 there was one chandul or madat shop to 125,606 people, and in 1888-89 there was one shop for intoxicating drugs to 24,818 people. The consumption of licit opium for the whole Presidency has risen from 63,028lb in 1879-80 to 150,435lb in 1886-87. The consumption in the latter year was less than 15 oz. per head of population for the whole Presidency. In the Ahmedabad district, where the consumption was higher than anywhere else, the consumption per head of population in 1888-89 was less than ·54 oz. It must be remembered that this was for opium in every shape or form, and the Census figures are those for 1881, so that nothing has been allowed for increase in population. I hardly dare to hope that even yet the figures show anything like the amount actually consumed

6. Regarding the point whether opium taken in moderation in certain shapes is an unmixed evil, there is certainly diversity of opinion, but the point is one that must be fought out by medical experts with a knowledge of Indian conditions and the form and amount in which opium is generally taken by habitual consumers. To show that there is one eminent authority in favour of the moderate consumption of opium, I need only point to Sir W. J. Moore, K.C.I.E., late Surgeon General with the Government of Bombay, who has lately written an article in praise of opium.

7. As to whether the consumption of opium in any form is increasing, I can only say that my own experience as a district officer of many years' service does not bear out the supposition, and in this I am generally borne out by the opinion of the present Collectors. I hope it is hardly necessary for me to put down all the common-place arguments that could be brought forward against the principles enunciated by the Society. I will therefore content myself with giving extracts from the reports of officers who have to practically administer the country.

The Collector of Broach writes :—

"The consumption of opium in the ordinary manner is pretty general throughout this district, but the taking of it in excess is the exception, not the rule. I think it far more probable than not that in a low-lying country like this with creeks and margins to creeks running in all directions and continually alternating between wet and damp, the taking of opium in moderation is conducive to the maintenance of health, and that the rate of mortality would increase were the drug prohibited. I think that to those who are exposed to the malarious vapours that exist here over a very large portion of the area of the district for about half the year, the use of either opium or alcohol in some form is desirable, and the use is far more likely to turn into abuse in the case of alcohol than in that of opium.

"The opium consumed in the ordinary way is not usually consumed in the shops where it is sold, but taken away and consumed gradually as required, and to take away from a large portion of the population a drug which they use in moderation and believe to be a necessity of life would be a serious step."

The Collector of Kaira writes :—

"It is true that the number of shops licensed for retail sale of opium has increased during the last ten years; but I think they do no more than afford a reasonable facility to the public for purchasing the drug, and in no way tend to increase the aggregate sale or to attract additional customers.

"I have no reason to suppose that the consumption of the drug is in any portion of the district on the increase, although I was here twenty years ago; and, if Government sells more itself, this is because the public find it more difficult to obtain illicit or smuggled opium.

"My own opinion is that the policy of Government in this district, if anything, checks the consumption of opium.

"There are no shops licensed for the sale of chandul or madat or any other preparation of opium for consumption on the premises only."

The Collector of Nasik writes :—

"The important question at issue is whether the sale of opium should be forbidden except for medical purposes, and on this point I cannot express my opinion too clearly or too plainly. It would be in the last degree impolitic to stop the opium trade as it exists now, and any wholesale measure which had this end in view would have the most cruel and the most oppressive consequences. It could no more be justified than could an Act to stop the liquor trade in England.

"I do not think that it is necessary that I should criticise the reprint further. My own opinion is—and it is formed after twenty-three years' service actually among the people and in nearly every part of the Bombay Presidency and of the Mysore Province—

"(1) that opium-smoking or eating, as practised by the vast majority of people who use the drug, is not carried to excess;

"(2) that the moderate consumption of opium is no more harmful than the moderate consumption of liquor, and in many cases, like the moderate consumption of liquor, is distinctly beneficial;

"(3) that the increased revenue from opium is due (a) to the more effectul steps taken to prevent smuggling, (b) to the increasing population, and (c) to the increasing prosperity of the people which gives them more money to spend on luxuries;

"(4) that the 'opium sot' is a much less harmful person to his family and his neighbours and the community generally than the drunkard; and

(5) that Government, even if it tried, could no more prevent the consumption of opium than the consumption of drink. It would be useless to attempt to achieve either end: it would be worse than useless. It would, in my opinion, be a blunder, for I can see no weight in the reasoning that would prevent the vast bulk of the population indulging moderately in the opium luxury, simply because a very small minority harm themselves by indulging in it to excess.

"As regards those parts of India which I know well, and those alone, it is a gratuitous assumption that opium-smoking causes 'widespread misery and demoralisation,' and so also is it that 'the British connection with the opium trade' is a 'serious hindrance to missionary work.' Apart from the fact that the Government of India has nothing to do with missionary work, I have never once in twenty-three years heard a single missionary—and I have met dozens—specifically refer to or quote the opium trade as interfering with his endeavours. The proposition is true in the abstract no doubt, but in the same manner that the abstract proposition is true that the existence of public houses in the slums of London interferes with Christian effort there."

The Collector of Surat writes :—

"Opium in its raw state for eating or drinking is not consumed on the premises at which it is bought, but carried away in small quantities for use at home. It is comparatively productive of little harm, and the remarks of the Chairman of the Society appear to be directed not so much against it as against the preparations for smoking, which are, as I have shown above, becoming less popular. Even such as it is, its use is certainly not increasing. The number of shops in the district stands at the same figure as ten years ago, viz., 20. On the whole, there is nothing in this district to justify the strictures which have been passed on the policy of Government."

The Collector of Khandesh has written so temperate and sensible a report that I append it in extenso.

8. Although the Society seems to be opposed to the recognition of opium consumption in any form whatever, its arguments are more specifically directed against the chandul shops, the demoralisation and deterioration arising from which are graphically described. Regarding these shops, including those for the sale of madat and other intoxicating drugs, I again quote from the reports of the Collectors.

The Collector of Broach writes :—

"Whether the habit of opium-smoking and ganja-smoking is increasing in this district I am not able to say with certainty, but I think it is not improbable. In 1888-89 the imports of ganja were 59 Bengal maunds, while in 1889-90 they were 77. The habit is without any doubt injurious, and though I have no desire to be thought to sympathise with the hysterical sentiments of Exeter Hall or to accept its very general deductions from a few facts sensationally represented, I should be glad to have the sale of ganja gradually but rapidly abolished and also the sales of chandul, madat, and other preparations of opium used for smoking. Those who now smoke opium would prepare it in their own houses, but the habit would not spread to other people, at any rate to the extent that it would now. Ganja-smokers might be registered, and in taluka towns supplied only from a Government office, and none but registered persons would be allowed to purchase, and those only enough for their own consumption. As they died off the sale would be absolutely stopped.

"It would be necessary to forbid by law the use of any room or place for smoking ganja or opium except by the owner or occupier of the premises, or the shop keeper might hire a separate room for the purpose near his shop.

"I see no reason why it should not be forbidden to have opium consumed on the premises at shops where it is sold."

The Collector of Sholapur writes :—

"I can hardly conceive any one seriously advocating the continuance of license to sell opium to be consumed on the premises. Such dens are, I believe, happily unknown in the mofussil.

"I am not aware what the provisions of the Pharmacy Act are, but I think that opium should only be sold as a medicine and by medical practitioners with licenses. It should be prohibited in its various forms as an intoxicant. It is chiefly used here by very young children, to whom it is given partly as soporific and partly on the, surely erroneous, presumption that it is good for them.

"As to ganja, its growth and sale as an intoxicant should be prohibited."

The Collector of Poona forwards the following report from the City Magistrate, the Collector being of opinion that the experiment of refusing licenses for chandul and madat shops might be tried :—

"There are three chandul and four madat shops in the City of Poona. They are kept open daily from 6 A.M. to 9-30 P.M., and are frequented by both men and women of bad character at all hours of the day, where they smoke preparations of opium that are prepared for them by the keepers of the shops. The City Magistrate personally inspected some of these shops without previous notice on the morning of the 19th ultimo, and found men and boys, including some high caste, but fallen men smoking to intoxication. These shops, though situated in houses, the operations are generally carried on in the innermost and darkest portions thereof, and are dens for bad characters. The smoking of these preparations greatly demoralises and debilitates persons addicted to the habit. The City Magistrate would strongly recommend that no licenses be granted in future for chandul and madat shops in Poona City."

The Collector of Satara writes :—

"So far as my experience goes the shops licensed for the retail sale of opium are conducted in a proper way, and the opium sold is used chiefly for medical purposes. Native mothers are much addicted to administering opium pills to their children when they are fretful, and when it is necessary for the mothers to leave the children behind when they go to their work, but it would be very difficult to interfere with such a practice, although we know it to be deleterious. When the mothers are better educated they will see the danger of the habit, and meanwhile any one who administers opium to a child in such a way as to endanger its life can be punished for doing a rash and negligent act.

"As regards the suggestion made in paragraph 18 of the memorial to close the opium-dens or shops for the retail sale of opium to be consumed on the premises, I must state that until I read these papers I was unaware that such opium-dens existed in Bombay. I certainly have not heard of them in any district in which I have served. I am respectfully of opinion that licenses should not be issued for the retail sale of opium to be consumed on the premises. The vice of opium-smoking evidently possesses a fearful fascination when once it is acquired, and its effects are deadly, depriving the victim of all moral resolution. With these facts made palpable, it is a serious thing for Government to offer any facility for acquiring the vice by licensing a shop, where any one is at liberty to make a trial.

"In the Satara District no license for the sale of chandul and madat has been issued for two years."

The Collector of Nasik writes :—

"Chandul, madat, and majum are used by a very small class only, and I do not think any real hardship would be inflicted if the sale of them were forbidden.

"Bhang and ganja are much more widely consumed, and I am not prepared, on the evidence before me, to recommend that all bhang and ganja shops should be closed."

The Collector of Surat writes :—

"The use of chandul and madat is confined in this district to the City of Surat. They were first introduced there seventeen or eighteen years ago, the former by some Chinese settlers and the latter by a fakir from the Nizam's dominions. At first the shops were kept secret and were under no sort of Government supervision, consequently the use, specially of chandul, increased rapidly. At the same time when the attention of the Collector was first drawn to the practice, as many as 200 persons had become confirmed smokers of this preparation. Since it has been confined to recognised shops, or, in other words, dragged into the open light of day, the number of devotees has decidedly diminished, and the vice seems in a fair way of being stamped out altogether. The number of chandul shops was five in 1879-80. In 1881-82 it dropped to four, in 1883-84 to three, and in 1885-86 to two, at which it for the present remains. These figures represent a decrease in the actual consumption, as the license still holds good for seven, but the farmer does not find it worth his while to open them. The madat shops have numbered two all along. Having personally visited one shop of each class at the most frequented time in the evening, I can testify to their not being overcrowded. About a dozen customers were in each. A still more certain test would be the quantities of opium issued to chandul and madat shops. If they can be procured for the last ten years they shall be sent hereafter, but at present I am only able to give the figures for two years. They are—

| In 1889-90 . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . | 28 |

"All these facts suggest a fair inference that the publicity of recognised shops tends to deter from the practice all except those who are already too far gone to care for public opinion, while the supposed secrecy of an illicit trade tends to attract many less callous customers."

9. The Collector of Bombay has written so full a report regarding the city that I forward it in original, and will only supplement Mr. Campbell's remarks with the results of my own experience. Without notice I visited one shop for the sale of dry opium, two shops where chandul was smoked on the premises, and one where madat was the intoxicant. There is no doubt the sale at the dry opium shop was very brisk, but the opium was purchased in very small quantities, a great many of the purchasers being women, who openly avowed that the drug was for the purpose of quieting their children. It is well known that this practice is most common, and though there can be little doubt that it is deleterious, I do not see how it can be interfered with. If it led to the results indicated by the Society that children dosed in this way were bound to become confirmed opium-consumers in after-life, there would hardly be an adult in India that would be free from the habit. The practice is given up when children are able to take care of themselves, and the experience of most officers will tell them at how early an age the native infant among the poorer classes can be left to itself. The chandul shops may not have been in full blast when I saw them about 6 P.M., but I saw about 50 persons in each shop. There were no women and no children. I saw no immodest behaviour and nothing to attract customers. Everything was quiet and business-like, but sordid and grimy. There was no mental or physical demoralisation or deterioration that I could see. Two or three men were evidently sleeping off the effects of the drug, but were easily aroused and answered questions. In both establishments I was asked and advised to close such places, showing that the inmates had clear perceptions that mischief was caused. I had one example to show that the habit is not so strong that it cannot be shaken off. One middle-aged Mahomedan told me that he had been a smoker for twenty years. He showed no signs of deterioration in any way, and was a clean, respectable, well-fed man. It appeared that his avocations called him away from Bombay for some months of every year at long intervals. When he thus went away he missed his chandul for some days, but found no difficulty in doing without it, though he always took to it again on his return. Now any one can get dry opium anywhere and can easily learn to make it into chandul, and if a confirmed smoker was too lazy or too indifferent to supply himself, the habit can hardly have the fatal and ineradicable fascination described by the Society. On the whole, I should say that a chandul-den in the worst quarter of Bombay was a far more respectable and unalluring place than a gin palace in the East End of London. The madat shop struck me as having nothing particular to be said against it.

10. I will therefore sum up the conclusions I have arrived at from my own experience and from the reports I have received as follows :—

(1) It has not been shown that the consumption of dry opium in moderation is deleterious and we should have no more right to interfere with the liberty of the subject and stop its consumption than we should have to stop the consumption of liquor or tobacco.

(2) There is nothing to show that the consumption of opium is spreading; more licit opium is consumed owing to better arrangements for the prevention of the use of illicit opium, to increase of population, and to improvement in the prosperity of the people.

(3) The use of chandul and madat is confined to such a small proportion of the population that it is a question whether it is worth while to keep up licensed shops for the sale and consumption of these preparations on the premises. If, however, the shops were abolished, there would be no diminution in the consumption of the drugs, as they would be resorted to in private or in organised clubs, and it would be better that such shops should be under Government supervision and control. If they are released from control, a large preventive establishment will be necessary, and there will be an increased number of prosecutions causing discontent and dissatisfaction at interference with private rights.

(4) The same remarks apply to intoxicating drugs other than those prepared from opium. The revenue derived from the sale of such drugs is hardly worth consideration, but a certain number of people will use them, and it is better that the use should be under supervision and control.

(5) The religious question should not be introduced into any discussion of this kind.

(6) It has not been shown that officials in any part of the Presidency have been fostering the sale and consumption of opium in any shape or form with a view of increasing the revenue. There can be little doubt that, in spite of all efforts, illicit opium is still largely consumed, and the Government returns show nothing like the actual consumption, nor does Government realise the full revenue that it ought to.

J. K. SPENCE,

Acting Commissioner of Customs, Salt, Opium, and Abkari.

No. 1130, dated 14th February 1891.

From—W. W. Loch, Esq., Collector of Khandesh,

To—The Commissioner of Customs, Salt, Opium, and Abkari, Bombay.

With reference to your memorandum No. 7040 of the 8th December last, forwarding for report a correspondence on the subject of the increased use of opium and intoxicating drugs in this country, I have the honour to state that it is very difficult for an official to ascertain whether the use of these things is really on the increase. I know that the number of opium and chandul shops has increased, and that the amount of opium licitly sold is much larger than it was; but I also know that much more attention has been paid of late years to the repression of opium-smuggling than was the case formerly, and I have no means of gauging how far the difference in licit consumption is due to these precautions and how far to opium being really more freely used. Again, I am aware that the opium-smuggling trade is by no means stopped but I have naturally no way of ascertaining how much opium is smuggled into the district.

2. That the consumption of opium is having any bad effects on the people of agricultural districts like this I do not believe. I have served for more than six years in Khandesh, and it is more than 19 years since I first came to the district, and I think that if the habit of taking opium was largely on the increase I must have noticed it. I have mixed with people of every caste from every part of the district, and I do not think opium-eaters, that is, persons who take opium to excess, will be found in any numbers except among the Musalmans and a few of the north country castes.

3. I have asked several of the native officers who know Khandesh well and several private gentlemen for their opinions (1) as to the increase in the use of opium, and (2) as to its being more frequently given to children, and (3) as to its increased use as chandul and madat. The general result of their views on the first point is that there is an increased use of opium among the Musalmans and Wanjaras and two or three castes from North India. Some of those asked, however, do not consider that the use has increased.

4. On the second point there is rather more difference of opinion, some gentlemen considering that opium is not more frequently given to infants than before. The majority, however, think that it is more frequently given, especially among the Kunbis, and one answer attributes this fact to the greater number of women employed all day away from home at cotton-ginning factories. I think that it is probable that the employment of women at factories may tend to increase the habit of giving opium to infants whom their mothers wish to keep quiet while they are away or are at work.

5. As to the third point it appears to be universally believed that chandul and madat-smoking has become more common among Musalmans and some of the lower castes.

6. The returns prepared in my office show that in the ten years preceding the introduction of the minimum guaranteed vend system, i.e., between 1879-80 and 1888-89, the number of opium shops rose from 65 to 71 and the amounts bid for the right to sell from R14,423 to R46,526. I cannot give the amounts of opium issued to the shops. There are now 103 opium shops, the number having recently been increased in order to try and check smuggling at the weekly bazars. The contractor has bound himself to sell 16,872℔ a year, but he does not sell so much.

7. As to madat and chandul shops the number in the past eleven years has varied between 25 and 37 and the sums bid have varied from R2,761 in 1880-81 to R9,620 in 1888-89. I think that these figures will show that the practice of chandul and madat-smoking has not got a serious hold of this district.

8. The number of bhang and ganja shops has varied in the last five years from 101 to 104, the former being the number in 1889-90. The sums bid have risen from R4,275 to R5,944 notwithstanding the decrease in the number of shops. There were also 14 majum shops last year for which R227 were bid.

9. It is with some hesitation that I turn to the question of the possibility of making alterations in our excise system to check the use of opium and intoxicating drugs. Reading the extracts printed in the Selections forwarded by the Government of India, it strikes me that the gentlemen who penned the highly-coloured accounts of opium-dens must have been shown the worst haunts in large towns, and that they and those who think with them inveigh against the use of opium much as teetotallers at home attack the use of spirits and beer and wine because of the evils of the gin palaces of our great cities. I am not prepared to admit that the use of opium in moderation is more harmful than the use of whisky. Every one who has served in Gujarat must have seen many sturdy Rajputs who took thei opium regularly and were none the worst for it. That opium taken in excess is injurious, I am willing to admit, but unless it can be shown that the abuse of opium is increasing, I do not see that Government are called on to take any steps in the matter; besides the question is a very difficult one. Thousands of people in Malwa and other parts of India look to the opium crop for their support, and the cultivation of the poppy cannot be stopped without causing very serious distress. As long as it is cultivated it will be used. Allowing that Government can give up its opium revenue, the only result of the remission of the duty and the withdrawal of Government supervision would be a great increase in the consumption which would not benefit the people nor, I presume, satisfy the Anti-Opium Society. Again, if Government increase the duty on opium and diminish the number of licensed shops, the illicit sale will no doubt decrease, but illicit sale would become more vigorous, and no one who has not seen something of the methods of smuggling can have any idea how hard it is to check.

10. I do not think that there is anything to be said in favour of chandul ahd madat-smoking, or the use of bhang and ganja. As I have already stated I do not think that the former habit has a serious hold of this district; the income derived from the shops is not large, and if they were all closed no great inconvenience would be caused. There would of course be the chance of illicit shops being set up, but the number of these would not be great, nor would they be largely attended.

11. Ganja is grown in this district, and I believe in other Deccan districts, and if Government consider that its use should be stopped, the cultivation of the plant would have to be forbidden by law, and the shops could then be closed. Small quantities would no doubt be smuggled from Native States, but the consumption would not be large, for bhang is a rather bulky article, and not so easy to carry as opium.

No. C.—950, dated 4th February 1891.

From—J. M. CAMPBELL, Esq., C.I.E., Acting Collector of Land Revenue, Customs and Opium, Bombay,

To—The Commissioner of Customs, Salt, Opium and Abkari, Bombay.

I have the honour to submit the report on the alleged increased use of opium and on the management of the opium-smoking houses in Bombay, called for in your letters No. 6781,* dated 27th November 1890, and No. 99, dated 16th January 1891.

* Accompaniments are returned.

2. At paragraph 14 of the memorial, which accompanied your letter of the 27th November, the momorialists notice the increase in the Bombay opium revenue during the last nine years and express the fear that the growth of the revenue points to a great increase in the facilities for opium-eating and for opium-smoking.

3. It is true that during the nine years ending 1889-90 the use of licit opium in Bombay City has greatly increased. The accompanying statement (Appendix B) shows a rise in sales from 10,730℔ in 1881-82 to 20,477lb in 1889-90. At the same time it does not follow that because more licit opium is used, the practice either of eating or of smoking opium has spread. During the nine years in question the accompanying return (Appendix A) shows that no addition has been made to the number of opium shops or smoking-houses. The dry opium shops have increased from 10 to 11, the chandul-smoking houses have remained unchanged at 10, the madat-smoking houses have fallen from 10 to 9. During these years the Government duty on opium has remained unchanged. No changes have been made with the object of cheapening licit opium or pushing its sale.

4. How then, it may be asked has the use of licit opium so greatly increased? The answer is mainly by reducing the consumption of illicit opium. The details (in Appendix B) of the use of licit opium during the nine years ending 1889-90 show the addition of 9,747lb to be almost entirely due to two large items, an increase of 5,000lb between 1884 and 1886 and an increase of 4,000lb between 1888 and 1890. The licit increase of about 5,000lb between 1884 and 1886 was due to the introduction of the Central Opium Warehouse system in 1885-86. The Opium Administration Reports for 1884-85 and 1885-86 show so notable a decline in opium wastage since the opening of the Central Warehouse as to prove that under the former practice of storage in scattered private godowns 16,800lb of opium on an average passed yearly into illicit use. There is no reason to doubt that the bulk of this illicit opium was used in Bombay City. Even supposing only two-thirds of the illicit opium was used in Bombay, the quantity would be 11,200lb a year, that is, more than the total average licit consumption during the five years (1880—85) preceding the opening of the Central Warehouse. The returns show during the five years ending 1884-85 an average consumption of 11,005lb of licit opium, of which on an average 7,880lb were used dry, 2,566lb were smoked as chandul, and 560lb were smoked as madat. In the five years since the opening of the Central Warehouse, the average licit consumption compared with the licit consumption in the five preceding years has risen from 11,005 to 18,288lb. Of the whole increase the rise in the use of licit dry opium has been from 7,880 to 14,065lb; in the use of licit chandul from 2,564 to 3,475lb; and in the use of licit madat from 560 to 747lb. Though the increase in the use of licit opium is large, it does not amount to two-thirds of the quantity which before the introduction of the Central Warehouse system found its way into illicit use.

5. Again, as explained in paragraph 45 of the 1889 Opium Administration Report, the increase in the use of licit opium from 16,903lb in 1887-88 to 20,477lb in 1889-90 is due not to any pushing of opium sales by lowering prices or opening shops. It is mainly due to a change from yearly to three-year farms, and to the consequent greatly increased power of the contractor to bring to light and secure the punishment of opium-smuggling.

6. Further, it is to be remembered that during the past nine years Bombay has grown greatly in size and in wealth. I see no reason to suppose that any increase in the use of licit opium which is not due to the lessening of the use of licit opium is greater than what would naturally accompany the increased size and wealth of the city. Much opium is still smuggled into Bombay. A special establishment will be required to ascertain the extent and the character of this smuggling. Until the existing system of smuggling is known and is suppressed any rules further restricting the use of licit opium will prove most hurtful. No lessening of the use of opium will follow. The use of smuggled opium will increase, the use of licit opium will decrease.

7. As regards the dry opium-shops the estimate in the papers under report of the number of daily customers at the 11 shops at 11,000 a day seems excessive. A special enumeration by the Chief Inspector from opening to closing gives 7,215, which the addition of customers who purchase three or four days' supply at a time may raise to about 8,000.

Reprint, page 7.

8. As regards the Bombay opium-smoking houses on which a special report is required, the papers under review estimate their number at 40 The correct number is 19, of which 10 are chandul and 9 are madat-houses. Since 1881-82 the number of chandul-houses has remained unchanged, the number of madat-houses has been reduced by one. The additional smoking-house referred to at page 10 of the reprint was found not to be wanted and was closed soon after it was opened.

Reprint, pages 11 and 14.

9. The attendance at the licensed smoking-houses was, as shown in Appendix C, tested morning and evening during six days in December 1890. Almost all who smoke in the morning also smoke in the evening. The evening attendance when almost all smokers are present shows in chandul-houses 574 and in madat-houses 189, that is, 763 in all. Of the 189 madat-smokers all but 4 women and one lad are men, of the 574 chandul-smokers all but 8 women and 10 lads are men. Of the smokers about 88 per cent. are Musalmans and 12 per cent. Hindus. There are also 10 to 12 Chinamen and 4 or 5 Parsis.

10. Two of the papers under review assert that opiums-moking houses are licensed because of the profit they bring to Government. It is true the opium consumed in the licensed smoking-houses yields Government a large yearly revenue, the chandul-opium R18,000, the madat-opium R3,000, that is, R21,000 in all. At the same time it is not less true that if the smoking of chandul and madat was stopped, the smokers would use an equal amount of equally duty-paying dry opium, so that, except so far as the withdrawal of smoking licenses would foster smuggling, the Government revenue would not suffer from the prohibition of opium-smoking. In addition to the duty on the opium smoked, Government make from the smoking-house licenses R420 a year, R300 from the chandul and R120 from the madat contract. Against this R420 is to be set an outlay of R954, the cost of the Assistant Inspector and peon employed in preventing irregular practices at the smoking houses. Clearly the reason for licensing opium-smoking-houses is not the profit they bring to Government.

Flaunting themselves in open day: parading the license of the Queen-Empress and carrying the sanction of the Supreme Government (Memorial, paragraph 18): men and women lying about in most immodest attitudes (Reprint, page 8). vile French photographs hung up to view (Reprint, page 8): comely Chinese women (Reprint, page 1): girls of 15 waiting on the smokers (Reprint, page 2): handsome young song-singing women (Reprint, page 2): women loaded with jewellery smoking with the men (Reprint, page 3).

11. Certain of the articles under report give the impression that to push the sale of opium and add to the revenue, care is taken in the choice and management of the smoking-houses to make them tempting and attractive. In no Bombay smoking-house is any attempt made to attract customers in the way described in the marginal extracts. The Bombay smoking-houses are almost all in side streets not to be found except by searching. All are entirely without any form of outer attraction. Small dingy wooden doors give entrance to all. The inside is even less attractive, squalid grime is their unvarying characteristic. To no smoking-house in Bombay are customers allured either by pictures or by prostitutes.

Reprint, page 8.

The opium contractor in Bombay is bound down to forfeit R3,000 if he fails to sell the quantity contracted for.

12. One passage gives the impression that heavy penalties force the Bombay opium contractor to increase his sales. The statement in the margin is incorrect. The penalty for short sales of licit opium is R5 a pound; this fine is refunded if the contractor sells over the minimum. The necessity for enforcing a minimum sale is evident. No equally effective check on the use of illicit opium by the contractor can be devised.

Reprint, pages 11 and 12.

13. In my judgment the pictures which these accounts give of the opium smokers is overdrawn and misleading. The statement that in Bombay houses children smoke is supported by so much precision and detail as to make it difficult to suppose the writer was mistaken. At the same time cases of allowing children to smoke must be extremely rare. I have never seen a child smoking or who had smoked or who was intended to smoke. I have never seen a child in a smoking-house except the child of one of the shopmen who professed to be and was, I believe, aghast at the idea of allowing his child to smoke. I have not heard either from Inspectors or smokers of a case of a child being allowed to smoke. On the contrary, after special enquiry, the Chief Inspector assures me that such cases are unknown.

14. As to the men smokers and the effect of smoking on their character, appearance, and health, the descriptions under review seem to me misleading. I have no fault to find with the general description of a Bombay chandul-house, given at page 9 of the reprint:—

"A dirty, dilapidated non-descript shop with its shutters up............Raised platforms with some hundred recumbent and semi-recumbent figures, all men, except three women and a few young lads............ Groups of smokers, some half-lying, half-sitting, others curled up or reclining at full length."

Except that so far as I have seen or can learn, no youths under 18 attend these smoking-houses, this description seems to me accurate. The Poona description is also moderate.

Reprint, page 9.

"A low-roofed room with 25 to 30 persons in groups of 5 or 6 round each lamp, most of them intent on their pipes, a few in a semi conscious state."

On the other hand, I have seen nothing to justify the following passages:—

"Human swine of both sexes......most immodest attitudes. ...... handsome young women sprawling on the senseless bodies of men."

Such sights I believe are not to be found in Bombay smoking-houses. In a room of 40 or 50 smokers all but three or four are awake. The bulk of them have done a hard day's work. They are tired and indolent. In opium-smoking houses assaults or acts of violence are almost unknown. Of the smokers very few are unable to answer questions clearly and readily. Even those asleep awake when lightly shaken. Even when suddenly aroused they can at once tell their name and calling "If you had to go out now and work could you go?" Almost always the answer is "yes' we could."

Reprint, page 5.

15. Again as to the effect of opium-smoking on character. It is true a share of the smokers are beggars and a share of them are bad characters. It is true the houses are watched by the Police, for thieves meet in them and scheme crimes. Still are all or nearly all the smokers ne'er-do-wells? Not nearly all. So far as I have seen a Bombay opium-smoking house is much like Dr. Morison's description of a Bengal smoking-house.

"Almost all the smokers are of the labouring classes, tailors, day labourers, and one or two shopkeepers."

So far as I could judge by questioning the smokers in Bombay smoking-houses about two-thirds are regular working craftsmen and labourers. I asked the Assistant Collector to frame a separate estimate. His estimate was:—

"At the fewest 70 per cent. regular craftsmen and labourers: at the most 20 per cent. beggars and 10 per cent. bad characters."

I made a further personal test in three houses taken at random. The result was—

In one house of eleven smokers all were craftsmen in regular work: in a second house of 25 smokers all were craftsmen in work: in a third house of 47 smokers one was a woman, nine were beggars, the rest were craftsmen and labourers.

I have made the Chief Inspector take a similar test in fourteen more houses. The result is of 227 smokers, 188 are workers, 38 are beggars, and one is a thief. It is probable that some among the workers are bad characters. Still care was taken to ascertain that in most cases the smokers are actually employed on the work they named. The estimate that two-thirds of the whole smokers are able to do and do regular work as labourers, weavers, embroiderers, sailors, drivers, cartmen, blacksmiths, mill-hands, fitters, barbers, and also as small traders and shopkeepers, sellers of fire-wood, fish, tea, coffee, tobacco, and cloth seems well within the mark.

16. Similarly as regards the effect of the smoking on the health and the appearance of the smokers the descriptions seem to me over-drawn and misleading. "Of horrible destructions of God's image more terrible than delirium tremens, idiotcy or lunacy" I have seen none. Of the starved and emaciated shrivelled warnings I have seen surprisingly few. The bulk of the men, I should say over two-thirds, though smokers of 8, 12, 20, and in one case of 40 years' standing, were in body and face to look at well-nourished and healthy. To many of them I, in surprise, asked the question, which Dr. Morison asked in Bengal: You have smoked four or five years and are stout and strong. How is this? The explanation in Bombay is the same as the explanation in Bengal. Smoking does not injure those who are well-fed as it injured the starving.

17. On the point of appearance and harm to health I checked my first impression by my Assistant's experience. His answer was: almost none, except the old and the beggars, not more than ten per cent. in all are emaciated.

I made a personal test in three houses. In one of eleven smokers all seemed healthy and well-nourished; in a second of 25 smokers, one old man was emaciated; in a third of 47, though the beggars looked dissipated none were notably withered or broken. In the fourteen houses specially tested by the Chief Inspector, ten were found emaciated or slightly withered. In almost every case the emaciated and withered were over fifty years of age. So far as I can judge the Assistant Collector's estimate is correct, that except some of the old and some of the beggars very few opium-smokers are notably withered or emaciated.

18. A point noted in two of the papers under consideration is that the opium-smokers are themselves anxious to see all smoking-houses closed. In Allahabad every opium-smoker would sign a memorial to have the smoking-houses closed. Dr. Morison describing a Bengal smoking-room states: "All the men implored me to do what I could to have the smoking-room closed." Only apparently they added, "Let us die first." The writers on the Bombay smoking-rooms do not notice any petitions for closing the houses. It is not uncommon on talking to opium-smokers in Bombay to be interrupted by some man praying that the smoking-room may be closed. So far as I have seen in Bombay such petitioners are not many, perhaps ten to twelve per cent. I doubted the good faith of such petitions. It seemed to me probable that the petitioners hoped if the licensed houses were closed the chance of cheaper opium at unlicensed houses would be better. My Assistant does not agree with this view. He believes such petitions are made in good faith Granting the good faith it seems to me unlikely that men who cannot withstand the drawing of a licensed house will be able to resist the temptation of a cheaper smoke at an unlicensed house or at a private club. All smokers seem to agree in this. If our opium-smoking is stopped we shall eat as much dry opium as we at present smoke.

19. The last point noticed in these papers is the smoking of opium by educated lads and men of good position. Dr. Morison notices school teachers as opium-smokers. Canon Wilberforce says many of the upper classes smoke in their own houses in secret; the describer of the Bombay houses found among the smokers a graduate with honours of the Elphinstone College, probably the writer meant of the Bombay University. Dr. Morison may be correct in stating that among the men connected with his mission in Bengal opium-smoking is almost universal. I do not believe that any such statement can be correctly made regarding the missions in Western India. At least among the Catholics and the salvationists discipline is not so slack as to allow opium-smoking. As regards the City of Bombay as a whole any statement that opium-smoking is 'almost universal and is rapidly spreading,' is singularly wide of the truth. Of the 600,000 to 700,000 middle and poor classes in Bombay according to information recorded at a census taken at all the opium smoking houses during seven consecutive days only 763 persons regularly resort to licensed smoking houses. Among the middle and lower classes opium-smoking except in the licensed houses is almost unknown. The Bombay middle and lower class opium-smokers may therefore be calculated at 1,000 or at 1,500 as an outside estimate That is, among the middle and lower classes in Bombay not more than one in 5,000 is an opium-smoker. And of the smokers not more than one in three is a sot unfit for work. That is, in the middle and lower classes the proportion of opium wrecks is about one in 15,000

Reprint, page 7.

20. As regards the upper classes several keepers of licensed smoking-houses have assured me that many of the rich smoke secretly in their own houses. This statement has the support of Canon Wilberforce. The truth is difficult to ascertain. I find there are in all about nine private clubs with five to twenty members where opium is smoked. Of three of these the members are Chinamen: of the rest the bulk of the members are Musalmans. None of these clubs are of recent institution. Except in these clubs the statement that opium-smoking is common among the well to-do in Bombay has little foundation in fact. I think it probable that the proportion of opium-smokers among the upper classes is less than among the poor. That is, not one in 5,000 of the rich and upper middle classes smokes opium. For the occasional ruin of an educated and upper class man wrecked by unrestrained opium-smoking Government arrangements seem to me in no way to blame. In the matter of liquor-drinking it is known that by raising prices and putting down smuggling Government have to a remarkable degree lessened the drunkenness of the middle and lower classes in the City of Bombay and in the neighbouring districts. That drunkenness has increased (if it has increased) among the higher classes is in no way due to any temptations thrown in the way of the young by the number of licensed liquor shops. Drinkers of the educated and upper classes rarely enter a common public house or liquor shop. Some go to hotels. As a rule they drink in private houses and in clubs. The causes of the spread of drunkenness (if drunkenness has spread) among the upper classes is not the increase of liquor shops but the decay of social and religious restraints, a result of the unthinking adoption of false notions of freedom. No Government arrangements can prevent drunkenness among the rich. The cure of the evil is either the renewing of old or the forging of new social and religious restraints. Similarly, opium-smoking, if, which would seem not to be the case, the practice is spreading among the upper classes, especially among lads at high schools and colleges, can be checked only by discipline and the enforcement of neglected restraints. To say that the existing smoking-houses are in any way an incitement or temptation to school or college lads is to say what is not the fact. I believe that no upper class lad has ever learned or ever will learn to smoke opium in the licensed houses. If educated wrecks are found among the smokers (which so far as my information goes is not the case) they learned to smoke in private lodgings or in private clubs and places of amusement. They have not come to the smoking-house till unrestrained indulgence has ruined their lives. So far as I can ascertain all Bombay does not at present supply one case of an educated man so lost to shame as to smoke opium in a common licensed house.

21. Though the descriptions under review may be overdrawn and misleading, the practice of smoking opium is evil and wasteful. It would be well if it did not exist. So far as I can judge Government do nothing to increase opium-smoking, and beyond the determination to keep the practice at a minimum by preventing the use of illicit opium and by maintaining the high price of licit opium Government can do nothing to stop it.

22. What would be the result of closing the licensed houses? The answer depends on the question—How far is the preparation of chandul and madat so difficult that if the licensed shops were closed the smokers unable to make the preparation would content themselves with dry opium. For easy reference a description of the making and smoking of chandul and madat is appended (Appendix D). I am not prepared to admit either chandul and madat is hard to make. It may be true that in the licensed shops smokers are critical and refuse any chandul or madat but what is made by trained hands. Still if they had no licensed houses the smokers would content themselves with something less choice. The boiling of the chandul and the mixing of the madat with pulse ashes take time and patience. Still the operation is easy and simple. A clever man can master the art in a day or two. I see no reason to suppose that to close the licensed smoking-houses would be to stop the supply of smokable chandul and madat. If the licensed houses were closed the better-off smokers might prepare their opium in their houses. The rest would be more likely to form clubs and employ the chandul and madat-makers of the present licensed houses as club cooks.

23. There would be nothing illegal or even irregular in forming opium-smoking clubs. Already, as has been noticed, about nine small opium-smoking clubs are in existence. Each member can get his 10 tolahs of dry opium, take them to the club and have them prepared by a trained cook. So long as no chandul or madat is sold at these clubs the smoking is in no way illegal. The evil of having such clubs scattered over the town, the certain increase in the use of smuggled opium, the probable increase to the facilities for bad characters plotting crimes, are serious evils. I see no element of good to set against these evils.

24. One other change may be suggested. The smoking of chandul and madat should be forbidden. To such a proposal the answer seems to be, the enforcing of any rule forbidding the use of chandul and madat would cause unbearable interference with private life. Any such rule must remain a dead letter.

25. To sum up:—

(1) I see no reason to suppose that during the last ten years opium-smoking has increased in Bombay out of proportion to the city's growth in size and wealth.

(2) I do not see that any part of the existing arrangements is open to the objection that it in any way encourages the smoking of opium.

(3) I do not see that the closing of licensed houses would lessen opium-smoking.

(4) On the contrary the result of closing licensed smoking-houses would be—

(a) to increase the number of smoking clubs;

(b) to increase the use of illicit opium.

26. For these reasons I am unable to admit that any change in the existing system of licensed opium-smoking houses is either necessary or advisable.

APPENDIX D.

The making and the smoking of Chandul and Madat.

Chandul-making.—A pound of crude opium and a half pound of the refuse scraped from the chandul pipes after they have been smoked are dissolved in about five pounds of water. The mixture is then boiled and strained through a piece of cotton stuff and again boiled until the water has all evaporated. The residue is made into a cake at the bottom of the vessel used in the boiling process and the oil remaining in it consumed by the vessel being inverted over a glowing fire. The cake is next re-dissolved in about four pounds of water and boiled until the liquid is reduced to about one-half. The preparation is known as chandul. One ℔ crude opium equals 2℔ chandul.

Chandul-smoking.—The smoker takes a quarter or half tolah of chandul in a small china-ware cup and by means of a piece of wire about six inches in length, flattened at one end, lifts a small quantity of the liquid and dries it over a lamp flame, repeating the process until he has obtained on the end of the wire a piece of the solidified preparation of the size of a pea. This is placed above the hole in the chandul pipe, and the smoker reclining on a wooden bench or mat with his head supported by pillows or bolsters applies a flame to the pipe and inhales the smoke through the pipe stem.

Madat-making.—An ounce of crude opium is dissolved in four ounces of water and boiled after being strained through a piece of cotton stuff and the liquid reduced to about half its original bulk by being again boiled, a quantity of the charred husk of mung is then thrown into it and saturated in the liquid extract. The husk so saturated is next made into balls of the size of small marbles and is known as madat. One ℔ crude opium equals 2 ℔ madat.

Madat-smoking.—The consumer takes one of the balls and makes it into several pills. He then places one of these in the bowl of the hooka used and applies a flame to it, at the same time taking a whiff when the pill is reduced to an ash This process is repeated with a fresh pill and so on.

From—A. D. Carey, Esq., Acting Commissioner of Customs, Salt, Opium and Abkari, Bombay,
To—The Chief Secretary to the Government of Bombay, Revenue Department.

I have the honour to return herewith a statement showing the number of shops licensed for the sale of opium and chandul and madat in the districts of Upper Sind Frontier and Thar and Parkar—the opium shops for the years from 1879-80 to 1882-83 and the chandul and madat shops for the years from 1879-80 to 1888-89—as promised in a note in the remark column of the statement submitted with this office No. 1094, dated the 9th ultimo.

Acting Commissioner of Customs,

BOMBAY;
24th April 1891.

No. 1677, dated 21st May 1891.

From—A. C. TREVOR, Esq., C.S., Commissioner in Sind,

To—His Excellency the Governor of Bombay.

I have the honour to submit the following remarks on the memorial of the Society for the Suppression of the Opium Trade, received under Government endorsement No. 8269 of 15th November 1890.

2. It is unnecessary for me to remark on those portions of the memorial which animadvert on the general policy of Government in regard to opium administration. The same general criticism to which the Opium Department is now subjected has been made before and has been before answered fully and frequently, and I need only say, speaking for this Province, that the repeatedly declared wishes of Government have been kept steadily in view.

3. The Society assumes that the consumption of opium, even in a moderate degree, is detrimental to man both physically and mentally. It is far from certain, however, that this assumption is correct, and we have the evidence afforded by whole tribes who have habitually from generation to generation taken opium. As instances may be taken the Rajputs and Bhils. Their energy, endurance, and bravery cannot be said to have been affected by their addiction to opium. Throughout the country one meets with people who take opium in moderation and for much the same purpose and with much the same result as the English gentleman of the present day takes his wine.

4. It would be impossible for Government to prohibit the cultivation of the poppy in Native States where it is now largely grown. It would be even more impossible to prohibit its consumption by the large class of persons to whom it is a necessary of life, and it is to be borne in mind that in the Bombay Presidency the revenue derived from the drug is confined to the levy of a heavy import duty, a limited number of licenses being granted free of any direct fee simply in order that the control necessary to check smuggling may be maintained.

5 So far, however, as the Society concerns itself with the abuse and not the mere use of opium I am in accord with it. That opium is sometimes taken in excess particularly in the form of chandul and madat and that the existence of opium-dens under which name chandul and madat shops are probably referred to, is a temptation in this direction, is true. It would, I believe, be no great hardship if the grant of licenses for the sale of these preparations were discontinued. Those who cannot do without them could always buy the opium and prepare them at home. The loss of revenue would be insignificant, and the gain to the public decency and morality would be appreciable.

From—T. D. MACKENZIE, Esq., Chief Secy. to the Govt. of Bombay, Revenue Department,

To—The Secretary to the Government of India, FINANCE AND COMMERCE DEPARTMENT.

With reference to your telegram dated the 1st ultimo, I am directed to forward herewith, for submission to the Government of India, the accompanying statements showing (1) the consumption of licit opium in each of the districts of the Bombay Presidency, including Sind, during the revenue year 1889-90, and (2) the number of shops licensed for the sale of opium and chandul and madat in each of the districts of the Bombay Presidency, including Sind, during the same year; and to state that the shops licensed for the sale of intoxicating drugs are quite distinct from those licensed for the sale of opium.

No. 3166, dated 29th July 1891.

From—The Government of India, FINANCE AND COMMERCE DEPARTMENT,

To—The Chief Commissioner of Burma.

I am directed to acknowledge receipt of your letter No. 1—10-E., dated 2nd February 1891, written in reply to my letter No. 4938, dated the 18th October 1890, with which were forwarded certain representations made by the Society for the Suppression of the Opium Trade regarding the consumption of opium in India.

2. You give statistics of the number of licensed shops, and of the quantity of opium issued to them for sale since 1878-79. You state that there is no reason to believe that the increase in consumption in the past few years indicates any serious extension of the practice of opium-eating and smoking among the Burmese, or that it is greatly disproportionate to the growth of the non-Burman population, while some part of the increase is certainly due to improved checks upon illicit consumption. You also say that the total quantity of opium consumed may be larger than the amount indicated by the figures for the licensed shops, as, in spite of the efforts which have been made to put a stop to smuggling, much illicit traffic in opium is still carried on. Your conclusion from the reports and evidence before you is that"the use of opium among the Burmese is increasing, though not as yet to any very serious extent, save in special tracts, such as Arrakan, the sea-port towns, and the dated of the Irrawaddy."

3. With reference to the question whether the Government can take effectual measures to check the increase in the consumption of opium, you state that a reduction in the number of licensed shops would have little-effect, as such a reduction is found to be accompanied by an increase in the average quantity of opium sold by each shop; and that if all the shops were closed, it is certain that illicit trade would be carried on to a great extent.

4. As another obstacle in the way of checking the use of opium in Burma you mention the presence in the Province of a considerable non-Burman population consisting of Shans, Chinese and others, "who are accustomed to the moderate use of opium and who consume it without ill-effects or even with beneficial results." You are not prepared to advise the absolute prohibition of the possession or sale of opium in the case of persons of non-Burman descent, as you consider that "such a step would be an unjustifiable interference with the habits of a large section of the population and would be quite impossible to enforce."

5. In view, however, of the unanimous opinion of respectable Burmans, and of official and non-official Europeans in the Province, that the use of opium by Burmans is deleterious and harmful in a very special degree, you propose to prohibit the sale of opium to, and the possession of opium by, Burmans throughout Burma.

6. This measure has already been adopted in Upper Burma. The doubt which you express, whether the possession of opium by Burmans is illegal in Upper Burma, has been removed by the issue of the Revised Opium Rules, which were forwarded with your letter No. 852—8-E., dated 20th October 1890, and approved in my letter No. 748, dated 20th February 1891. The effect of Rules 39 (1) and 10 of those Rules is to prohibit distinctly both sale to, and possession by, Burmans in Upper Burma.

The question which has now to be considered is therefore the expediency of applying the same measure to Lower Burma.

7. I am directed to say that, notwithstanding the very serious interference with the personal liberty of the Burmans, which the adoption of the measure would involve, the Governor General in Council would be prepared to sanction your proposal if he were satisfied—

(1) that the evil to be removed is as great as you depict it;
(2) that it would be practicable to enforce the prohibition; and
(3) that the enforcement of the prohibition would not entail, and be accompanied by, evils as great as that which it is desired to remove.

Without fuller information on these points the Governor General in Council is unable to sanction the very stringent measure which you propose.

8. In regard to the first of these three points, there is no doubt that the voluminous papers in which the opium question in Burma has been discussed in past years show that there is a practical unanimity of opinion—(a) that the use of opium by the non-Burman population of Burma has no harmful effect, but is on the contrary often beneficial, and (b) that the use of opium by the Burmese themselves is very deleterious to them. The opinion of the respectable Burmese and of the Europeans who are acquainted with the country is entitled to great weight, and the Governor General in Council has not failed to observe that vou have yourself accepted it as beyond a doubt that opium is to people of Burman race an absolute poison, destroying their morals, and degrading them in every way. But His Excellency feels that in a matter of such importance he is not justified in adopting measures of extreme stringency on the strength of public opinion unless that opinion is supported by unquestioned facts, and he considers that in justice to the large population whose liberty it is proposed to restrict, he should, before the consumption of opium by Burmans is absolutely prohibited, have more conclusive proof of the correctness of the general opinion on the subject. The papers on the subject, while they contain numerous statements of opinion, do not contain many facts in support of the opinion. I am therefore to request that you will test the correctness of the generally adopted view as to the difference of the effect of the use of opium on non-Burmans and Burmans respectively by the collection of statistics, facts and figures bearing on the question. One easily practicable method of testing the effect of opium on the Burmese will be to ascertain the proportion of Burmese criminals in the jails who are addicted to the use of opium, and the proportion of such Burmese opium-eating criminals who appear to have suffered physically or mentally from the habit. You will probably be able to arrange for the collection of similar, though necessarily less complete, statistics in regard to the general Burmese population in a sufficient number of representative places.

I am to request that in submitting the report required by this paragraph regarding the effects of the use of opium, a distinction may, if possible, be drawn between opium-eating and opium-smoking, and that you will state which of the two is the common form of the consumption of opium in Burma.

9. I am also directed to request that you will further consider and report on the question whether it will be possible to enforce the proposed prohibition. The difficulties in the way of enforcing against the Burmese portion of the population the absolute prohibition of the use of opium appear to be very great. The province contains a considerable non-Burman population, to which the prohibitory rule is not to be applied: arrangements for the supply of opium to that population will be necessary, and there seems little doubt that the non-Burmans would be only too ready to engage in the profitable trade of illicitly supplying opium to the Burmans who desire it The physical configuration of the country offers great facilities for smuggling. And supplies of the drug could be obtained from several sources, namely, from the licensed shops in Burma, which even new are understood to engage in a considerable illicit traffic, from India, from the Straits Settlements, and from Yunan, in which province opium cultivation has largely increased in recent years. Given these conditions, and a commodity desired with eagerness by the consumer, and of a bulk so small that it can be easily concealed, it seems probable that a much more efficient preventive force than is available in Burma would be required in order to make the proposed prohibition effectual.

10. There are now in Lower Burma 20 licensed opium shops, the population of the province being over 4½ millions and the area 87,220 square miles. The sale of opium anywhere, except from this small number of shops, is illegal. Yet it is notorious that the preventive agency has been unable to enforce this condition, and the evidence on the subject goes to show that opium is procurable nearly everywhere. The effect of the reduction in the number of shops instead of being, as was hoped, the practical stamping out of the use of opium in the villages and districts for which shops were not considered to be necessary, has been the establishment in many districts of a regular system of illicit traffic in opium. The prevention of that illicit traffic ought to be a matter of much less difficulty than the enforcement of an absolute prohibition of possession by Burmans. The illicit sales must be made by a comparatively small number of persons, and to carry on the traffic, the persons engaged in it must always be in possession of more than three tolas of opium, the maximum quantity of which the possession is legal. It must apparently be an easier task to watch the small number of persons engaged in the traffic and to obtain convictions against them for possession of an illegal quantity of opium, than to watch the enormously larger body of Burmese who consume opium and to prosecute them for illegal possession.

The preventive agency in Burma has, however, failed to prevent the illicit traffic, and the Governor General in Council thinks that, before undertaking the much more formidable duty of enforcing the prohibition of possession of opium by Burmese, you should consider whether the agency at your disposal is likely to be able to discharge the duty with any approach to completeness.

11. In considering the practicability of enforcing the proposed prohibition, the experience of working of the similar measure in Upper Burma may be of use, though possibly the defect in the drafting of the rules to which reference is made in paragraph 6 of this letter may have interfered with the success of the measure there and rendered the experiment, in so far as it has yet been tried, inconclusive. I am to request that with your reply you will forward reports showing how far the prohibition of the use of opium by Burmans in Upper Burma has been, or promises to be effectual.

12. In the next place I am directed to invite your attention to a serious evil which would almost certainly arise in the attempt to enforce the prohibition of the possession of opium by Burmans. The agency for the enforcement of the prohibition would be the police. To enable the police force to discharge this duty it would be necessary to entrust to its members considerable powers, including the power of search when there was reason to suspect the possession of opium by Burmans. His Excellency in Council fears that there would be much danger of those powers being abused, and of the detective force becoming an engine of oppression and extortion more formidable to the innocent than to those who offended against the law. The regulation proposed would, it is anticipated, provide a weapon which the police would be only too ready to use for the purpose of extorting blackmail from all Burmans, whether addicted to the use of opium or not; and there would be a great risk of numerous false prosecutions being threatened and instituted. His Excellency is also apprehensive that another evil result would be the wholesale corruption of the police by the licensed vendors, who, having paid less than formerly for their licenses, would be disposed to spend the money so saved in bribing the police to overlook sales to Burmans in contravention of the law.

13. I am to request that you will carefully consider the aspect of the question noticed in the preceding paragraph and report whether, in your opinion, there is not a serious danger of the prohibition you propose resulting in a system of espionage and exaction and in a kind of oppression likely to render our rule in the Province odious and unpopular.

14. The measure which you suggest in paragraph 5 of your letter for the exemption from the prohibition of Burmans of the present generation who are too old to break themselves of the habit of opium-eating all at once with safety does not commend itself to His Excellency in Council. I am to request that, if you consider that the objections and difficulties mentioned in the preceding paragraphs can be overcome, you will further consider the means of alleviating the hardship of the proposed prohibition in the case of Burmans who have become accustomed to the use of opium.

15. The preceding paragraphs relate to the main and important recommendation made by you. With reference to the minor alternative proposal in paragraph 6 of your letter, namely, the closing of opium taverns to men of Burmese race, I am to suggest for your consideration whether it would not be preferable to adopt the proposal made in paragraph 12 of Mr. Fryer's memorandum, which accompanied your letter, and to prohibit altogether the consumption of opium on the premises of the licensed shops. The arguments stated by you in paragraph 6 of your letter appear to point to the adoption of this measure, and the Governor General in Council is prepared, if you concur, to approve of a condition being inserted in all licenses forbidding consumption on the premises, pending the further consideration of the more important measure which you have proposed.

16. In conclusion, I am to say that any possible loss of revenue involved in the adoption of the measures discussed in this letter need not be taken into account in deciding whether the measures should be adopted. If the measures are shown to be desirable on general grounds and to be of a practicable nature, the loss of revenue will not be allowed to stand in the way of their adoption.

No. 4120, dated 1st October 1891.

From—J. F. FINLAY, Esq., Secy. to the Govt. of India, FINANCE AND COMMERCE DEPARTMENT,
To—The Chief Secretary to the Government of Bombay, Revenue Department.

In his Despatch No. 10 (Revenue), dated the 30th July 1891, and addressed to His Excellency the Governor in Council, Bombay, the Secretary of State has said that he would be glad to learn the views of the Bombay Government as to the practical effect of the system of guaranteed minimum vend in the case of licenses for the sale of opium, and the advisability of maintaining or changing that system.

2. The question involved has been recently considered by the Government of India in connection with the facts brought to notice in your letter No 4911, dated the 18th July 1891. In paragraph 3 of that letter it was explained that the continuous increase in the amount of licit opium consumed in the Presidency during the last ten years was entirely due to the measures taken to check opium-smuggling, and to substitute licit opium for the contraband opium which formerly formed the bulk of the consumption. The measures referred to were introduced for the first time in a few districts in 1877-78, and by degrees their operation has been extended to the whole Presidency including Sind.

3. I am now directed to request you to lay before His Excellency the Governor in Council the views of the Government of India upon this question. The Secretary of State and the Government of India are aware that the measures adopted by the Bombay Government have had their origin in a desire to restrict consumption and at the same time to prevent illicit dealings in the drug. Before the passing of the Opium Act, I of 1878, it was the practice to auction the licenses for retail sale for periods of one year at a time, the license being granted to the person who offered the highest price for it. The licensee was bound to purchase the opium required by him from the public depôt, but it was found that in fact very little opium was so taken by him, his requirements being supplied for the most part by illicit importations. The total amount of duty-paid opium sold in the Presidency at the time was less than 40,000lb a year, while the license fees realised upwards of R1,30,000. In some cases the disproportion between the amount paid for the license and the amount of licit opium sold was so glaring as to show conclusively that the license was in reality only intended to cover the licensee's transactions in smuggled or illicit opium. There was consequently a large loss of public revenue, while the consumption of opium was being encouraged owing to a great portion of the opium consumed in the Province escaping taxation. The arrangements were, moreover, open to very strong objection on the grounds that no efficient control could be exercised over the opium shops; that the real amount of opium consumed could not be known, and that there was no proper security against undue encouragement of a taste for the drug among the people.

4. To meet these difficulties the Bombay Government gradually, from the 1st June 1878, introduced a system under which tenders were invited for opium licenses on a new system, the special object of which was to discourage illicit sales and ascertain the true vend of the various shops, the taxation on the drug being intended to be levied rather in the shape of duty on opium consumed than of fees for licenses to open shops. The method by which it was sought to secure these objects was to give preference to the tenderers who undertook to sell the largest quantity of opium per month on pain of forfeiture of a money deposit proportionate to the amount of vend stipulated for, the licensees being authorised to provide themselves with opium direct from the wholesale dealers instead of from public depôts, subject to a condition that the opium purchased by them should be duty-paid opium. Under this system the temptation to use the license as a cloak for the sale of smuggled opium practically disappeared, because the duty must in any case be paid whether the licensee sold smuggled or duty-paid opium, and, as a consequence the amount of licit opium consumed increased largely year by year, as the system was gradually extended, until, now that it is in force in all but five districts of the Presidency, the total amount of pass duty realised is more than four times as great as in 1878-79. The Government of India accept the conclusion that this result has been hitherto attained mainly by repression of opium-smuggling, and that the minimum guarantee-system has produced satisfactory results in so far as under it consumption is discouraged by levying a heavy tax on all opium consumed.

5. The system of guaranteed minimum vend is, however, open to misconstruction by persons not fully acquainted with the facts and can be made the subject of plausible misrepresentation. It can hardly be disputed that, to those who are unaware of the difficulties in consequence of which the present system was introduced, the practice of requiring opium farmers to guarantee the sale of an amount of opium large in itself, and in some cases above the reported sales of previous years, is on the face of it open to objection. The amount guaranteed has not, on the whole, increased much during the last six years, and it may be anticipated that the orders contained in the Bombay Government Resolution No. 4857, dated 8th July 1889, will have already effected a substantial decrease during the current year. Nevertheless the fact remains that the system appears to afford justification to some extent for the accusation that the Government is directly encouraging the consumption of the drug, and it is in this view that the Government of India now desire to press for the abolition of the system and a return to the ordinary licensing system which is generally in force in other Provinces, or the adoption of such other system as the Government of Bombay may consider calculated to ensure the full taxation of all opium consumed.

6. The Governor General in Council has the less hesitation in suggesting this change, as there is some reason to believe that the object with which the present system was introduced has already been attained. The natural level of consumption, including both illicit and duty-paid opium, has been ascertained with, at any rate, approximate accuracy, and competitors for a license are now ready to guarantee a larger vend than they have any expectation of realising. The privilege of exclusive vend is so valuable that they can afford to pay a large sum out of their profits to make up deficient pass duty, and the amount which they calculate on having to make good in this way represents the value of the exclusive privilege of sale over and above the license fee and the duty on opium actually sold. In other words, the contractors are now practically paying under another name what ought properly to be charged to them as license fees, and the Government is exposed to the charge of stimulating consumption without obtaining any actual benefit, if, as appears probable, the taxation of opium might be maintained as high as it now is by levying additional license fees equal in amount to the pass duty paid on deficient sales.

7. The statistics of opium revenue and consumption for the last ten years, the remarks on the subject contained in paragraph 5 of the Government Resolution on the report for 1887-88, and the circumstances detailed in the confidential memorandum forwarded with your letter No. 7232, dated the 11th October 1890, appear to support the view stated in the last paragraph, and it is observed that the Government of Bombay has already, in its Resolution of the 8th July 1889, prescribed that the amount of the minimum guarantee should no longer be fixed by competition. The experiment is being tried of leaving the Commissioner to determine the amount of the guarantee in each district at his own discretion. The Commissioner is instructed to be careful not to overburden farmers, and to fix the guaranteed minimum vend rather below than above his own estimate of the normal demand, and, having fixed the amount, he is to call for applications on those terms and give the farms to the persons whom he may consider most likely to conduct the business satisfactorily. While fully admitting that this modification of the system renders it less open to objection and misconstruction, the Government of India believe that His Excellency the Governor in Council will recognise that it is inadvisable to adopt any half-measures of the kind as the basis of a permanent policy. The objections which can be stated against the system lose little of their apparent force even when a very moderate estimate is made of the amount to be guaranteed, and it is the apparent, rather than the real, force of these objections which renders it necessary to modify the existing system. The ordinary demand of the districts has now been ascertained; the preventive establishments are much stronger than they were thirteen years ago; and it is hoped that they may be able to prevent smuggling and illicit practices without the aid of the guaranteed minimum system.

8. Under these circumstances the Government of India trust that the Government of Bombay will see their way to try the experiment of abolishing the system of a minimum guarantee for opium vend on the earliest possible opportunity. The system has been of value during the past thirteen years and has made control over the consumption of opium an easier task than it was in 1878-79. Much experience has been gained and smuggling has been successfully combated. The Governor General in Council hopes that the officers of the Opium Department will now be able to introduce a system which does not involve a minimum guarantee, and to work it successfully without serious risk of a revival of the difficulties met with in earlier years, and desires that steps may be taken at once to consider the question in time to enable the proposed change to be carried out from the beginning of the next revenue year.

RESOLUTION—By the Government of India, FINANCE AND COMMERCE DEPARTMENT.

RESOLUTION.—The evils connected with the smoking of opium and its preparations on the premises of licensed shops have for many years attracted the attention of the Government of India and the Local Governments; and endeavours have been made to prevent or minimise those evils. It has been recognised that it would be impossible, even if it were expedient, absolutely to prohibit the smoking of opium in India; and the Government has therefore refrained from attempting the absolute prevention of opium-smoking, and has had to decide whether it is preferable (a) that those who are addicted to the habit should indulge in it in shops licensed for the purpose, where police regulations can be fully enforced and all the opium smoked would certainly be licit opium on which the duty had been paid and which would therefore be enhanced in price by the amount of the duty; or (b) that the smokers should be driven to smoke in their private houses or in other unlicensed places where police regulations could not be enforced and where there would be much risk of the opium consumed being illicit opium and therefore unduly cheap.

2. The decision of most of the Local Governments has been that the evils connected with the smoking of opium in licensed shops are on the whole less than those which would arise under the system of refusing licenses for such shops. And the policy in most provinces has been gradually to reduce the number of licenses. The number of such shops has in recent years been reduced in all provinces, and in some very considerably.

3. In two Provinces, however, the policy has been different. In the Punjab, the Government between the years 1885 and 1890 gradually closed all the shops licensed for the sale of the preparations of opium used for smoking, and there is not now in that Province any shop at which madak or chandu can be licitly sold. It is believed that this measure has caused a decrease in the practice of opium-smoking, though in some districts it is already reported that private and illicit shops have to some extent taken the place of the licensed shops.

4. In the Central Provinces also the Chief Commissioner in 1890 directed the stoppage of all licenses for the consumption on the premises of opium and other drugs. Licenses for the sale of the preparations of opium which are smoked are still granted in the Central Provinces, but the number of them has been much reduced.

5. His Excellency the Governor General in Council has now given very careful consideration to the question discussed in the preceding paragraphs, and has come to the conclusion that it is expedient to try the experiment of inserting in the licenses in all Provinces clauses prohibiting the smoking, or the consumption of opiun and its preparations in any other form, on the premises.

6. His Excellency in Council is aware that the adoption of this measure involves the risk of unlicensed places being established for the smoking of opium or its preparations, and that dealings in illicit opium would be likely to occur in such places. It is also probable, especially in large towns, that the change may have the effect of increasing the difficulty of enforcing police regulations for the maintenance of order. But after careful consideration of the evils, which must be faced, whichever of the two courses be adopted, he has decided that it is better to run the risk involved, and to trust to Local Governments to adopt the preventive measures best calculated to minimise it.

7. One such measure would be to reduce the quantity of the preparations of opium used for smoking of which the possession is legal, and, in provinces in which licenses are issued for the sale of those preparations notwithstanding the prohibition of consumption on the premises, the amount which may be sold to one person. In most Provinces the amount of the preparations of opium which may be legally possessed is the same as the amount of unprepared opium, the quantity varying from three to ten tolas. Five or ten tolas of madak or chandu furnish sufficient material for a considerable number of smokers, and the congregation of smokers in private houses, payment being secretly made to the owner of the house, is difficult to prevent, if the possession of those quantities is allowed. It is possible that if the limit of amount of prepared opium, which private persons are allowed to possess, were to be reduced, say, to one tolah, the establishment of opium-smoking dens in private houses might be more easily prevented. The Governor General in Council will be prepared to consider favourably any alterations of the opium rules in this direction which Local Governments may propose.

8. For the reasons stated in this Resolution the Government of India now directs that, when the term for which any existing licenses are in force expires in any licenses which may be renewed, a clause should be inserted, prohibiting the consumption of opium on the premises in any form. If a Local Government considers that in any particular locality, such, for example, as the Presidency towns, it will be impossible to enforce this condition immediately, His Excellency the Governor General in Council will be prepared to consider any representation for temporary exemption of the locality from these orders. But he desires that, as a general rule, the orders should be brought into force everywhere on the first opportunity.

ORDER.—Ordered, that this Resolution be forwarded to all Local Governments and Administrations.

No. 289, dated 14th October 1891.

From—The Government of India,

To—The Secretary of State for India.

We have now the honour to reply to Your Lordship's Despatch No. 68 (Revenue), dated the 28th August 1890, forwarding, for our consideration, a memorial from the Society for the Suppression of the Opium Trade, dated the 30th July 1890. It is alleged in the memorial that the Society has received information from different quarters tending to show that in various parts of India the consumption of opium is on the increase, and that houses licensed for the smoking of opium and its products on the premises are the cause of great demoralisation in many of the towns of India; the memorialists further draw attention to what they consider a serious danger, namely, that the opium habit should spread throughout Her Majesty's dominions in India.

2. It is stated in the memorial that the information received by the Society is contained mainly in papers which have been printed in the Society's organ, called the Friend of China, and references to these papers were appended to the Memorial. We have examined them, and we find them to consist almost exclusively of exaggerated and highly-coloured accounts of what is alleged to have been seen and heard in visits to shops where opium and its products are smoked. There can be no doubt that if the haunts of the dregs of the population of great cities are examined in any country in the world, scenes of vice and misery will be witnessed, and it, therefore, seems to us that the basis on which the memorialists rest their case is altogether too narrow for the conclusions at which they have arrived. It is well to bear in mind that in 1889-90 there were only 936 shops licensed for the smoking of opium and its products in British India, exclusive of Madras, where such shops are not now separately shown, or less than one shop to every 197,000 inhabitants, being at the rate of (say) three or four shops for such a town as Liverpool or Glasgow.

3. In order to obtain the information necessary for the discussion of the whole question on a broader basis than has been adopted by the Society, we forwarded the memorial to the various Local Governments for report, and we requested that the general questions raised should be discussed so far as they affected each Province, and that the suggestion made in the memorial for the closing of shops for the sale of opium to be consumed on the premises should be specially considered. We enclose copies of the replies from Local Governments, which contain much valuable information.

4. The memorialists have in some parts of the memorial referred to other drugs as well as to opium, and some Local Governments have in consequence discussed the case as regards drugs of all kinds. We shall have an opportunity of dealing with the case of ganja and other drugs separately in replying to Your Lordship's Despatch No. 59 (Revenue), dated the 6th August 1891, and we think it best to confine our present remarks to the question of opium, which is alone discussed in detail in the memorial. Statement A, however, which is attached to this Despatch, gives the number of shops licensed for the saie of drugs of all kinds during the last ten years.

5. The main charge which the memorialists make is that the consumption of opium is on the increase, and that there is serious danger that the use of the drug may become more general throughout Her Majesty's dominions in India. If this charge is disproved, the memorialists' case, excluding the question of the demoralisation alleged to be caused in towns by shops for the smoking of opium and its products, falls to the ground. Before considering in detail the statements made in the memorial we desire to state emphatically that neither the replies of Local Governments to the reference we have just made to them, nor the figures regarding the consumption of opium collected by us, nor the evidence contained in the previous correspondence on the subject, afford any foundation for the assertion that there has been a serious increase in opium consumption in India during recent years. We are therefore unable to find any ground for the apprehensions felt by the memorialists that the opium habit is likely to spread with fatal results throughout Her Majesty's dominions in India; unless stricter measures than have hitherto been found practicable are adopted without delay for its repression. We admit that in some parts of India, especially in some of the larger towns, the habit prevails more generally than in others, and that some useful reforms may still be instituted in particular Provinces. But, taking India as a whole, we unhesitatingly deny that the practice of eating, drinking or smoking opium is decidedly on the increase. The whole evidence before us points to the conclusion that opium is consumed in considerable quantities only by special classes or in particular localities; that even among these classes and in these localities the habit of consuming opium is neither growing in popularity, nor causing an increase of misery and degradation; that among most classes of the population and in most localities the habit does not exist to any considerable extent, and that where it prevails at all it is kept in check by the strict precautions which have been for many years in force; and lastly, that neither the demand for the drug, nor the facilities for indulgence in it, have increased even in proportion to the increase in population during the last ten years. So far from its being true that we are encouraging in any way the consumption of the drug, we are met nearly everywhere with this difficulty—that the results of our action in raising the rate of duty, restricting the number of shops, and imposing conditions on the grant of licenses have made opium so expensive and so difficult to obtain that incessant watch has to be kept over the tendency to develope a regular trade in opium-smuggling. This difficulty has become so serious under present conditions that we have no doubt of the absolute impossibility of enforcing the complete prohibition of opium consumption, even if the facts before us warranted our contemplating so serious an interference with individual liberty.

6. In support of the statements made in the last paragraph regarding the absence of any indication that we are face to face with an evil of increasing magnitude, we invite special attention to the enclosed Statements A and B,* giving correct details of the number of shops for retail sale of drugs of all kinds, and the amount of opium issued from these shops during the last ten years. It will be seen that the figures of the number of shops given in Statement A differ somewhat from those given in paragraph 3 of the memorial. We have taken pains to make the Statement as correct as possible, and we think that the figures may be safely accepted by Your Lordship and the memorialists as more accurate than any which have been previously published. It will be observed that the total number of shops of all kinds for the supply of drugs to a population of 220 millions is about 22,000, while the remark entered in column 44 of the Statement explains that, in order to arrive at the actual number of separate shops, a large deduction must be made from this total, inasmuch as a shop selling opium and some other drug is frequently entered in the returns as two shops. The tendency has been in recent years to enter the shops in greater detail, and the fact that the total number of shops appears to be nearly the same for the last ten years is really an indication that the facilities for obtaining opium and other drugs have actually been reduced during that time. Tne population of British India has increased during these ten years by 9½ per cent., exclusive of the increase due to the annexation of Upper Burma, so that there are now distinctly fewer shops for each million of the population than in 1880-81, and we know that the shops themselves are more strictly controlled. Turning to Statement B it will be seen that very much the same inference may be drawn from the figures showing the amount of opium consumed. Omitting the figures for 1880-81, which are vitiated for the purposes of comparison by the doubt as to the correctness of the large amount of opium shown as consumed in the Punjab in that year, it appears that the total consumption in British India has increased during the nine years, 1881-82 to 1889-90, by nearly 14 per cent. In considering the total increase it has, however, to be considered that a very large proportion of it occurs in the Bombay Presidency alone, where it is due to the substitution of licit or duty-paid opium for the smuggled opium, which was more largely consumed in earlier years before the full effect of the measures adopted on the introduction of the Opium Act, I of 1878, into that Province was produced. We shall deal hereafter with the question of the apparent increase of consumption of opium in Bombay: for the present we content ourselves with stating the following figures, showing the number of cases of opium smuggling in which convictions were obtained in Bombay in recent years:—

* Appendices Nos. (1) and (2).

| Year. | No. of cases. |
| 1886-87 | 372 |
| 1887-88 | 478 |
| 1888-89 | 429 |
| 1889-90 | 366 |

The number of cases in which the smugglers were detected, and convictions were obtained against them, must bear but a small proportion to the total number of cases of smuggling, and the figures we have given show there is still room in Bombay for increase in the consumption of duty-paid opium without increase of the total consumption, including in the total consumption both duty-paid and smuggled opium. Taking the other Provinces, it will be seen that the increase on the whole is less than the increase of population during the period, while in some, such as Madras and Assam, it would appear that opium is losing rather than gaining ground. When allowance is made for the strictness with which the opium laws are now enforced, for the more active operations against smugglers and for the greater care with which the amount of opium consumed is brought to account in consequence of the attention everywhere paid to the subject, we are satisfied that the habit of opium consumption is thoroughly kept in check, and that, so long as the present policy of Government is maintained, there is no ground for anticipating any sudden or rapid extension of it in future.

7. Having thus indicated our general views upon the assumptions made in paragraphs 2 to 4 of the memorial, we will now discuss the particular allegations and suggestions contained in paragraphs 5 to 15, taking the Provinces in the order in which they are dealt with by the memorialists.

8. As regards Bengal, it will be seen that the number of licenses for retail sale has been largely reduced during the last ten years. The reduction occurs under all heads, but especially in the number of shops for sale of raw opium. The amount of opium consumed has indeed increased by about 8 per cent. during the period, as against an increase of 6½ per cent. in the general population, but the rate of increase in population in the districts where opium is chiefly consumed is fully equal to the rate of increase in the total consumption of opium, and the consumption has been practically stationary for the last seven years with only slight and unimportant fluctuations from year to year.

Under the circumstances the Local Government has confined its remarks to a discussion of the proposal for closure of shops for consumption on the premises. We reserve our remarks upon this question till the concluding paragraph of this Despatch, and it is only necessary to say that we regard the general facts about Bengal as on the whole satisfactory, when the enormous area and population are considered, and when further it is recognised how large a proportion of the area consists of alluvial, malarious tracts, in which the use of opium by the people is not a vice or even a luxury, but to some extent a necessity of life.

9. As regards the Central Provinces the memorialists have acknowledged the large reduction of shops effected during the last ten years, but have called attention to a small increase in the year 1888-89. The Chief Commissioner has explained that this increase is nominal and is due to the more correct method adopted in that year of including in the returns shops which had previously been excluded on the ground that the licenses were only for the occasional and temporary opening of the shops. The figures for the whole period of ten years show, in our opinion, that the Local Government has gone as far as it is possible to go in the direction desired by the memorialists, with due regard to the great facilities for smuggling which exist in districts surrounded on all sides by Native States. The number of smoking shops has been steadily and largely reduced, and the Chief Commissioner has already, by orders issued in August 1890. prohibited consumption of drugs in any form on the premises of shops. We invite attention to the instructions issued to the Commissioner of Excise in Mr. Laurie's letter No. 5106, dated the 1[illegible]th August 1890, which is enclosed in Appendix A to the Central Provinces reply of the 27th January 1891. It will be seen that the special measure advocated in paragraph 18 of the memorial had already been determined on before the receipt of Your Lordship's Despatch. Statement B shows that the amount of opium consumed in the Central Provinces has been practically stationary during the last eight years, and somewhat less than the amount consumed during the years 1880-81 and 1881-82, notwithstanding that population has increased in the meanwhile by more than 9 per cent. It will, of course, be recollected that there is opium-smuggling in the Central Provinces as in most of the other Provinces of India, and that we are unable to say what amount of smuggled opium is consumed.

10. Paragraph 6 of the memorial deals with Assam. In this Province much has been already done to reduce the number of shops and increase the price of opium, and the remarks of the memorialists are confined to a request that further efforts may be made in this direction. As regards the number of shops the Local Government, by a comparison with the year 1874-75, when the Province was constituted as a separate Chief Commissionership, shows forcibly how much has been done to carry out its policy for the restriction of the opium trade. During the series of 16 years ending with 1889-90 the number of shops has been reduced by over 74 per cent. It is not reasonable to anticipate so large a rate of decrease in future, seeing that opium is, as in some parts of Bengal, almost a necessity of life in the low-lying malarious tracts of the Province. Still the fact that the number of shops for sale of raw opium is shown by the Excise Report recently received to have been further reduced from 990 in 1889-90 to 946 in 1890-91, is a sufficient proof that the attention of the authorities is still directed to this question. In regard to the price of opium the memorialists have expressed a hope that prompt effect would be given to the suggestion for enhancement of the price made by the Chief Commissioner in his Resolution on the report for 1888-89. The suggestion was acted on before the memorial was presented to Your Lordship, and from the 1st April 1890 the price has in fact been raised from R32 to R37 a seer. It appears from the Excise Report for 1890-91 that the amount of opium consumed in that year was 52,333 seers; while the duty realised increased by R76,735. There has therefore been a reduction of over 22 per cent. in consumption since 1880-81, notwithstanding an increase of 11 per cent. in population as shown by the census of 1891.

11. Paragraphs 7 and 8 of the memorial afford a striking illustration of the difficulties under which the memorialists labour, owing to their imperfect acquaintance with India and its conditions. Lahore is placed by the Society in the North-Western Provinces and Lucknow in the Punjab. Your Lordship has informed us that the memorial was presented by an influential deputation, and that the number and character of the names appended added weight to their representations. Without attaching undue importance to the errors just indicated we think that we are justified in suggesting that the occurrence of two such extraordinary mistakes in successive paragraphs displays some want of care on the part of those persons on whom the memorialists appear to depend for information.

12. In paragraph 7 attention is called to what is considered to be a serious increase in the number of opium and other drug shops in the North-Western Provinces during the last ten years. The Local Government admits the substantial accuracy of the figures quoted, and defends the increase on the ground that it was required in order to prevent the greater evil involved in illicit consumption. Even after the increase in question the number of opium shops in the North-Western Provinces and Oudh is now smaller than that in any of the five larger Provinces except Madras, although the population is greater than that of any Province except Bengal. It is urged by the Local Government that a diminution in the number of shops would not reduce the total consumption, but might even have the opposite effect; and in view of the undoubted facilities that exist in the North-Western Provinces and Oudh for smuggling both from Native States and within the Province, we are inclined to accept this view. While the number of shops for the sale of opium and its preparations has on the whole increased, the number of opium-smoking shops has been reduced by 93 per cent., from 371 in 1882-83 to 26 in 1890-91. It is the case that the amount of opium consumed has increased by nearly 11 per cent. during the last ten years, as against an increase in population of about 6¼ per cent., but the total amount consumed yearly is not conspicuously large in proportion to the total population of nearly 47 millions. The increase in the licit consumption is not necessarily due to the increase in the number of shops: it is much more probable that it is due to the substitution of licit for smuggled opium. The whole question is engaging the attention of the Local Government which called for a report on the distribution of the opium shops in 1890, and has directed, in paragraph 20 of its Resolution of the 24th July 1891 on the Excise Report for 1889-90, that the matter should be now disposed of with as little delay as possible.

As regards the Lucknow shops referred to in paragraph 8 of the memorial, it will be seen from paragraph 7 of the Local Government's reply that one of these shops has been recently closed, leaving two only in that city.

13. Before quitting the subject of the North-Western Provinces, we invite a reference to paragraphs 8 and 9 of the North-Western Provinces letter, in which the Local Government has exposed the inaccuracy of the statistics given by Mr. Caine in the first of the extracts referred to in the memorial:—

"Turning to the Appendix to the memorial, I am to observe that Mr. Caine (page 2) writes: 'In the city of Lucknow there are 30 distilleries of native spirits, 201 liquor shops, 24 opium shops, and 92 for bhang and other intoxicating drugs.' The assertion is of characteristic inaccuracy and hardihood. In the whole Lucknow 'district'—an area of about 1,000 square miles, with a population of nearly 700,000—there were during 1888-89 one distillery, 136 shops for the retail vend of country spirits, 86 drug shops, 3 madak and chandu shops (the so-called 'opium dens'), and 27 opium shops not licensed for consumption on the premises. There seems to the Lieutenant-Governor and Chief Commissioner to be little practical usefulness in engaging in a never-ending discussion on the merits or demerits of the Indian Excise system with critics who have shown themselves quite incapable of understanding the uses of accuracy; whose object is not to prove their contentions, but to impress the general public, and to that end to declaim and to denounce; and who cannot therefore be expected to forego their methods of controversy before the most cogent reasoning or the most unanswerable statistics.

"I am to point out that Mr. Caine is equally wrong (page 3 of the Appendix) in confusing 'doubled revenue' with 'doubled consumption.' Enquiry shows conclusively that the increased revenue is very largely due to increased stringency on the part of Government and to the persistent suppression of illicit traffic."

14. The case of the Punjab is referred to in paragraph 8 of the memorial, and it is urged that there can be no adequate justification for an alleged increase in the number of opium licenses by 63 per cent. between the years 1879-80 and 1888-89. The figures given for the Punjab in paragraph 3 of the memorial differ considerably from those shown in column 2 of the enclosed Statement A. The reason for this is that we have excluded the number of wholesale licenses throughout, while in the table upon which the Society has based its remarks, these wholesale licenses were included for the years 1880-81 to 1886-87 and excluded for the years 1879-80, 1887-88 and 1888-89. Had the number of wholesale licenses in 1879-80 (324) been included, the total for that year would have been not 1,164 but 1,488, and the memorialists would have then seen that there was little or no change before the year 1887-88. It will be seen from Statement A that the number of shops remained nearly stationary up to the year 1886-87, inclusive, and that almost the whole of the apparent increase has taken place in the years 1887-88 and 1888-89. This increase is really nominal and is due to a more correct method of counting shops introduced in those years The cause of the sudden increase in 1887-88 was clearly explained in paragraph 2 of the Excise Report for the year, which is quoted in paragraph 3 of the Financial Commissioner's letter No. 66 of the 30th January 1891, enclosed in the Punjab Government's reply of the 24th March 1891. It was due to the substitution, in the case of some districts, of returns showing the number of separate shops, for returns showing the number of licenses, a license occasionally covering more than one shop. We regret that the statistics should have misled the memorialists, but an explanation of the apparent increase was given at the time when the change in the method of enumeration was first made, and as the Provincial Excise Reports are available for sale to the general public it would not have been difficult for persons interested in the returns to satisfy themselves as to the cause of the variation in the figures. This explanation in regard to the Punjab figures should be borne in mind in considering the apparent increase from 1887-88 in the total number of opium shops in British India shown in column 40 of Statement A. Allowing for an error of about 650 shops on account of the Punjab in the earlier years, it appears that the total number of shops has decreased slightly from 1881-82 and very considerably from 1880-81.

15. In connection with the Punjab, we invite attention to paragraphs 8 and 9 of the Financial Commissioner's letter, from which it will be seen that the expediency of refusing licenses for shops in which opium was smoked on the premises was considered by the Punjab Government as early as 1883, and that all such licenses were discontinued between 1885 and 1890.

16. Paragraph 9 of the memorial deals with Berar, Coorg and Ajmere-Merwara. It is true that there has been some increase in the number of shops for sale of drugs of all kinds in Berar, the figures making no distinction between opium and other drugs. The increase in the ten years ending 1889-90 is under 7 per cent. as against an increase in population of over 8 per cent. Excise has been for some time engaging the special attention of the Resident, and in his reply, dated the 20th March 1891, he stated that orders had issued for the reduction of at least 50 shops from the 1st April 1891. It has subsequently been explained in the Excise Report for 1890-91 that it was not found possible to alter the arrangements already made for the year 1891-92. The orders issued by the Resident will, however, secure that the matter shall be kept in view, and we have no doubt that all practicable measures will continue to be taken both for reduction of shops and discouragement of consumption. In Coorg and Ajmere the number of shops is small, and there is no reason to suppose that drugs are consumed in excess. In both cases our orders referred to in paragraph 29 below will effect all that is immediately required to improve the administration.

17. In paragraphs 10 to 13 the Society has discussed the case of Lower and Upper Burma, and has asked, as regards Lower Burma, what reason there can be, except that of the revenue involved, why the same policy of absolute prohibition should not be adopted with regard to opium as has already been carried into effect since 1872 in regard to ganja. The opium policy in Burma has been discussed at great length by successive Chief Commissioners from the time of Sir Charles Aitchison, and as the conclusion in each case has been that it is impossible to altogether prohibit the supply of opium, we must demur to the attempt to settle the question without stating a single new argument in support of the assumption that the supply of opium can and ought to be absolutely prohibited. In his memorandum of 1881 Sir Charles Aitchison distinctly stated that there were considerations which, in his judgment, made "it impossible altogether to prohibit the supply of opium."

Sir Charles Aitchison's view has been accepted by his successors and is now fully concurred in by Sir Alexander Mackenzie, who writes that—

"It has, moreover, been frequently explained that there is in this province a considerable non-Burman population consisting of Shans, Chinese, and others, who are accustomed to the moderate use of opium, and who consume it without ill-effects or even with. beneficial results. The Chief Commissioner is not prepared to advise the absolute prohibition of the possession of sale of opium in Burma by persons of non-Burman descent Such a step would be an unjustifiable interference with the habits of a large section of the population and would be quite impossible to enforce. As the Financial Commissioner remarks, even the prohibition of the use of ganja cannot be absolutely enforced. Indians who are accustomed to use it will have it and can arrange to get it. The enforcement of a general prohibition of the use of opium would present still greater difficulties as the classes which consume opium are far more numerous than those which consume ganja. As regards this Province, the opium question has been frequently discussed and the opinions of the most experienced officers have been more than once placed on record It may be considered as established beyond question that there is a legitimate demand for opium among the foreign residents in Burma, which would exist whether Government countenanced the use of opium or not; that if Government decided to declare the sale or possession of opium generally illegal, the demand would be supplied by illicit means; and that the results of any attempt to enforce absolute prohibition of the use of opium would be the loss of a large amount of revenue without any commensurate benefit."

Your Lordship will see that we have very carefully considered the Chief Commissioner's letter No. 1—10 E., dated the 2nd February 1891, and have in our reply No. 3166, dated the 29th July 1891,* expressed our willingness to support Sir A. Mackenzie's proposal for prohibition of sale and possession of opium as regards Burmans in Lower Burma, provided that he is able to establish the necessity and practicability of so stringent a measure, and to make it clear that his remedy will not involve evils as great as those which it is desired to remove. We have specially instructed him that in dealing with this matter he is not to take into consideration the question of any possible loss of revenue owing to the adoption of more severe restrictions on the consumption of opium.

* Enclosure No. 14.

18. The only other remark we desire to make in regard to Lower Burma is to call attention to the very small number of shops in that Province. The total number is 20 and the population is 4,569,170, giving one shop for every 228,458 inhabitants. The attempt to restrict consumption by reducing the number of shops has therefore been carried to an extreme in that Province, and one result of the excessive restriction in the number of licensed shops has been the springing up throughout the Province of numbers of unlicensed dens, in many of which there is reason to believe that opium is secretly sold, while in all it is regularly consumed. It is this increase in the number of unlicensed places in which opium is habitually consumed, which has led to the impression that every license issued in Lower Burma has been allowed to cover a large number of shops. The impression is, we need hardly say, a wholly mistaken one. The local authorities have been unable to prevent the existence of those unlicensed shops in the past, and it is doubtful whether the more vigorous efforts now being made to do so will prove successful. These facts lead us to remark that too much reliance should not be placed on endeavours to reduce the consumption of opium by restricting the number of shops. A more potent weapon is an increase in the duty on opium, and this is one which we are always prepared to employ up to the limit at which the increase of price seriously stimulates smuggling.

19. In regard to Upper Burma a prohibition is already in force against sale of opium to, and possession of opium by, persons of Burman descent, and we are not prepared to attempt more repressive measures until at any rate sufficient time has elapsed to enable us to judge of the success of the experiment. The latest information before us, contained in the Excise Report for 1890-91, is to the effect that the quantity of opium imported into Upper Burma is much less than in the year 1889-90, while there has been some increase in the small amount of Government opium issued to licensed vendors. In paragraph 9 of his Resolution on the report, dated the 24th August 1891, the Chief Commissioner has stated that the difficulties of checking smuggling in Upper Burma are very great, and it is clear that effectual means of dealing with the evil have not yet been devised. The difficulties referred to are due to the configuration of the country, and the presence of a large alien population habituated to the use of the drug.

20. In the Bombay Presidency there has hitherto been some confusion in regard to the published returns of licenses for sale of opium and other drugs. The figures given in Excise Reports (column 38 of Statement A) have been understood to cover all shops for sale of drugs including opium, but it now appears, from the Bombay Government letters of the 18th July 1891 and the 1st September 1891, that this is incorrect. In addition to the 1,290 shops for the sale of intoxicating drugs there were, in 1889-90, 1,281 shops selling exclusively opium and its preparations. We regret that the system under which opium is dealt with in a separate series of annual reports should have made a misapprehension possible, and we have now requested the Government of Bombay to show the number of opium shops distinctly in future.

21. With reference to the particular allegations made in paragraph 14 of the memorial as regards Bombay, it is true that the consumption in Bombay of licit, or duty-paid, opium has nearly doubled during the last ten years. It is explained by the Bombay Government that this increase is entirely due to the measures taken to check opium-smuggling and to substitute licit opium for the contraband opium which previously formed the bulk of the consumption. The measures referred to have been gradually introduced since the year 1878, and "the general result is that the retail selling price of opium has been doubled everywhere within the last fourteen years." It will, we believe, be admitted by the Society that the adoption of measures which result in the doubling in price of an already expensive luxury proves that the Government of Bombay has done a very great deal towards discouraging indulgence therein.

The letter from the Collector of Bombay, dated 4th February 1891, illustrates the danger of assuming that an increase in the consumption of duty-paid opium necessarily means an increase in the consumption of opium of all kinds, including both duty-paid and smuggled opium. The following figures state the consumption of duty-paid opium in the Town of Bombay for a series of years:—

| | ℔ |
|---|---|
| 1881-82 | 10,730 |
| 1882-83 | 11,058 |
| 1883-84 | 11,253 |
| 1884-85 | 12,171 |
| 1885-86 | 15,216 |
| 1886-87 | 17,053 |
| 1887-88 | 16,903 |
| 1888-89 | 21,791 |
| 1889-90 | 20,477 |

In the course of eight years the consumption of duty-paid opium has doubled, but the increase has mainly shown itself in the two years 1885-86 and 1888-89. Now, during these eight years the number of shops for the sale of opium of all kinds, as well as the duty on opium, have remained practically unchanged. The first marked increase beginning with 1885-86 coincides with the substitution of the Central Opium Warehouse system for the previous practice of storage in scattered private warehouses. On this change being made the amount of alleged wastage fell at once to an extent which showed that when private warehouses were in use about 16,800 ℔ of opium were yearly smuggled from them and written off as wastage. Simultaneously with this decrease of alleged wastage there was an increase of about 5,000 ℔ in the consumption of duty-paid opium. It can scarcely be doubted that a reduction of 16,800 ℔ yearly in smuggled opium and an increase of about 5,000 ℔ in the consumption of duty-paid opium represents not an increase, but a substantial decrease in the total consumption of opium. Similarly, the increase in the consumption of duty-paid opium in 1889-90, was not due to any pushing of opium rates by lowering prices or opening new shops, but merely to a change from one-year licenses to three-year licenses. This change gave a greatly increased power, as well as inducement, to the licensees to bring to light and secure the punishment of opium-smugglers. As already explained in paragraph 6 of this Despatch, the number of cases of opiums-muggling in which convictions are obtained in the Bombay Presidency, even at the present time, amounts to about 400 yearly.

22. Among the measures referred to in the preceding paragraphs as having been adopted with the special object of checking smuggling has been the insertion in the licenses of a condition that the farmer shall pay duty in each year on a certain minimum quantity of opium, even though his actual sales should fall short of that minimum. This condition makes it the interest of the farmer to refrain from dealing in illicit opium and also to help the authorities in preventing illicit dealings by others. Before it became the practice to insert this condition in the license, the license-holder paid merely for the right to open a shop, and made his profit by retailing smuggled opium, taking only a small quantity of duty-paid opium in order to avert suspicion. With a condition in his license binding him to pay duty on a minimum quantity of opium, he gains nothing by selling smuggled opium, as he must make up a certain amount of duty, however small his sales or duty-paid opium may be.' We are of opinion that the stipulation to pay at least a certain amount of duty, whatever the quantity of opium sold might be, has been one of the main causes of the success which the Government of Bombay have attained in repressing smuggling in the last twelve years.

But the system of a minimum guarantee of this nature is open to plausible misrepresentation by those who are ignorant of, or choose to ignore, the difficulties which the system is intended to meet, and who assert that its object, or effect, is merely to force the licensee to sell a larger quantity of opium than there is a demand for, under penalty of a fine. We hope that the knowledge which has now been gained of the ordinary consumption in the several districts may enable the preventive establishments, which are much stronger than they were twelve years ago, to combat successfully, without the help of the guaranteed minimum clause, the very strong tendency towards smuggling and illicit practices which undoubtedly exists in the Bombay Presidency. For these reasons as explained at greater length in our letter to the Bombay Government, No. 4120, dated 1st October 1891,* we have requested that Government to discontinue the system. We cannot, however, hope that the result will be to decrease the amount of opium consumed in the Province: we shall be content if no material increase of illicit consumption is caused.

* Enclosure No. 15.

With reference to the specific charges in connection with the opium-smoking shops in Bombay City, which are made in some of the enclosures of the memorial, we invite attention to the letter No. 950, dated the 4th February 1891, from the Collector of Bombay, to the Opium Commissioner. We confidently leave it to Your Lordship to decide whether Mr. Campbell's carefully written account is more likely to be near the truth, or the sensational descriptions drawn by Messrs. Gregory, Dyer and Sessions.

23. In support of their indictment against the opium administration in Madras the memorialists have, as in the case of Bombay, relied on a simple comparison of the figures shown in the Finance and Revenue Accounts for the two years 1879-80 and 1888-89 under the head "Duty on opium consumed in India." The Local Government has explained in paragraph 2 of its reply that no proper inference can be drawn from a comparison between the revenue figures of those two years, as rules under the Opium Act were only brought into force in the Presidency from the 1st July 1880. But had the memorialists, when referring to the entries in the accounts on which they base their conclusion, included in their comparison the intervening years, they would have seen that there was not sufficient ground for serious apprehension that the consumption of opium was increasing, as the revenue has been practically stationary during the six years ending 1888-89. The actual figures for these six years are as follows:—

| | Rx. |
|---|---|
| 1883-84 | 60,308 |
| 1884-85 | 62,886 |
| 1885-86 | 71,558 |
| 1886-87 | 62,664 |
| 1887-88 | 59,358 |
| 1888-89 | 60,858 |

We give these figures not because they accurately indicate the amount of opium consumed in the Province, but as an illustration of the misdirected ingenuity, to use the mildest term, with which the agents of the Society select for comparison any figures which appear to justify the assumptions with which they start, while omitting to notice the obvious inferences from figures which tell against them. The real facts as regards opium consumption in Madras are given in the margin of paragraph 2 of the Local Government's reply and in column 10 of Statement B The figures for the year 1880-81 may be left out of account as they represent the consumption for 9 months only, and it is probable that the recent change of system partially accounted for the abnormally large amount of opium shewn as consumed in the year 1881-82. Disregarding these two years it appears that from 1882-83 onwards the amount of opium retailed has declined from 38,591 seers to 33,612, or by nearly 13 per cent., as against an increase in population of $15\frac{1}{3}$ per cent. during the period 1881—91.

24. A further allegation made as regards Madras is that certain evidence was given before the House of Commons Committee of 1871 to the effect that there was then practically no consumption of opium in the Province, and that since that time "measures appear to have been taken to spread the habit of opium-smoking." The explanation given in the following quotation from the reply of the Local Government is conclusive on this point :—

"The Memorialists next refer to the evidence given by Sir T. Pycroft and Mr. E. F. Harrison before the Select Committees in 1871 and 1872, to the effect that there was practically no consumption of opium in this Presidency. In regard to this, I am to observe that a similar opinion was long entertained by this Government as the result of special enquiries made on the subject about the year 1855, but that this opinion was abandoned twenty years later, when a careful further enquiry showed that it did not represent the actual facts, but that, on the other hand, there was a large consumption of opium in the four northern districts of Ganjam, Vizagapatam, Godavari and Kistna."

The later enquiry referred to in this extract was made throughout the Madras Presidency in the years 1873 to 1875. The facts then brought to light furnished one of the chief reasons which induced the Government of India to extend the stringent provisions of the Bengal Opium law to the whole of India. The following is a quotation from the Statement of Objects and Reasons attached to a Bill introduced in the Legislstive Council of the Governor General of India, in September 1875 :—

"In Madras no check, either legislative or administrative, exists at present on the growth of the poppy or the transport, possession or storage of opium, and practices have resulted injurious alike to the public revenue and to public morality and health."

That Bill passed into Law as Act XXIII of 1876, which was however never brought into force, its operation being postponed by Act VI of 1877, while it was eventually superseded by the present Opium Act, I of 1878.

It will, therefore, be seen that the apparent increase of consumption and the real increase of revenue and of licensed shops since 1879-80 in Madras is due to the fact that before that year no attempt was made to regulate or restrict the sale of opium or other drugs in that Province owing to an erroneous belief that there was no such consumption. Before 1879-80 practically no duty was paid on opium or other drugs, and any person was at liberty to sell them who chose to do so, and it is assuredly the ne plus ultra of misrepresentation to represent the facts connected with the imposition of a heavy duty, and the limitation of the number of shops by requiring licenses and license fees, as indicating that "measures appear to have been taken to spread the habit of opium-smoking.

25. The following passage shows that a similar mistake has been made in the memorial in dealing with the arrangements adopted in certain very feverish hill districts of the Northern Division of Madras, in regard to which it is observed that the memorialists "deprecate so cruel a kindness as that of teaching the people to rely on opium as a febrifuge:"

"The memorialists next comment upon the statements contained in the progress and condition reports for 1884-85 and 1887-88 relative to the free grant of licenses in some of the hill tracts and the supply of opium to the people in the hill tracts of the northern districts of the Presidency at a lower price than elsewhere. The memorialists have not correctly apprehended the policy of Government in this matter. A perusal of the Appendix, attached to the Board's Proceedings forwarded herewith, will show that this Government has been endeavouring to reduce the consumption of opium in these tracts as much as possible, and that if any leniency was shown in the matter at first, it was only out of deference to the consideration that a sudden change might be productive of more harm than good among a population addicted by long habit to the use of the drug."

26. In the preceding paragraphs we have, following the memorialists, considered chiefly the variations in the numbers of shops for the sale of opium. But in our opinion the price at which opium is sold has much more influence on the consumption than the number of shops at which opium can be bought. In all Provinces the price at which opium is sold is more than double the cost of production, and in many the price has been considerably increased in the last ten years. It has been mentioned above that the retail price has been doubled in Bombay in the last fourteen years. In Assam the wholesale selling price has, between 1880-81 and 1890-91, been raised from R26 a seer to R37, and in Burma from R24 to R28 and R32.

27. Having dealt with each Province in turn we have now to consider the final remarks contained in paragraphs 16 to 18 of the memorial. In paragraph 16 the Society states again its apprehension that there is a serious danger lest the opium habit should spread throughout India, and quotes the example of Japan and certain other countries as proving the practicability of entire prohibition. We have, in paragraph 4 expressed our strong conviction that there is absolutely no ground for the Society's apprehension in regard to India as a whole, and we trust that our full explanation, Province by Province, will be accepted as showing conclusively that the memorialists have been misled by the incorrect, exaggerated, and untrustworthy information of their agents in India. We are, as the Resident of Hyderabad has said, always glad to receive suggestions as to the best method of establishing a strict system of control and supervision, but much of the good which might otherwise be effected in this way is neutralised by the rash assumptions, the intemperate language and the superficial methods of investigation adopted by the persons upon whom the Society is dependent for its facts and figures. We do not consider it incumbent on us to enter on an elaborate exposition of the fallacy underlying the suggestion that a policy which may be practicable in such places as Japan, the Corea, Java and the Philippine Islands, can therefore be adopted by a stroke of the pen in the enormous continent of India. Where the whole circumstances of the history, geographical position, nationality, and habits of the people are so essentially different, no useful purpose would be served by a purely academic discussion which failed to take into account the primary conditions with which we have to deal in India. The unanimous opinion of our responsible officers is that it is impossible to devise any machinery by which the consumption of opium could be wholly suppressed, even if it were desirable on general grounds to do so, while the attempt to enter upon any such policy of suppression would involve gigantic evils, of which the Society for the Suppression of the Opium Trade can have no conception from their experience of the wholly different conditions of life and society in England. We will quote one only from numerous passages in the correspondence before us to illustrate our contention. We select this particular passage because it expresses in temperate language the conclusion at which we have arrived, and because it is the opinion of an officer with unusually varied experience of India, acquired during a long service of 32 years, much of it spent in the three opium-consuming Provinces of the Punjab, the Central Provinces and Assam, before he was appointed to his present office of Resident at Hyderabad. In discussing the suggestion made to us by the Society in a separate communication, and practically repeated in paragraph 17 of the present memorial, "that the Government of India should be directed to use the absolute discretion conferred on it by the Indian Opium Act of 1878 * * * by the adoption of measures having for their object to limit the sales of opium to that which is necessary for medical use," Sir Dennis Fitzpatrick says:—

"He will not go so far as to say that this would be impossible in a territory isolated from opium-producing tracts and in which the use of opium had been previously little, if at all, known; but in the various parts of India in which he had served, the practice of eating or smoking opium has come down from a period anterior to our rule; opium, if not got in one way, can be got in another, and any proposal absolutely to prohibit the use of it now would, in his opinion, be so completely beyond the range of practical politics as to be scarcely worth discussing.

"There seems to be no doubt that there are, or until the other day have been, places in India where, owing to a want of proper supervision and control, abuses have prevailed like those described in these papers, and which at least strike one with greater horror than any corresponding abuses in countries where people are demoralized by drink, but the Resident would affirm without fear of contradiction that, speaking generally, the evils arising from indulgence in drink in England are vastly greater than those arising from indulgence in opium in those parts of India with which he is acquainted, and yet he presumes no responsible person would think of suggesting that the sale of intoxicating liquor in England, except for medicinal purposes, should be absolutely prohibited by law.

"That persons are found to suggest such a prohibition in regard to opium in the most general terms for the whole of British India is, he suspects, due, apart from the appalling but remediable abuses now brought to light in particular places, to two causes, viz., first, that while the drinking of alcohol seems to those persons the most natural thing in the world, the eating or smoking of opium, even in moderation, presents itself to them as a strange, wild and unnatural sort of indulgence, deserving of no consideration whatsoever; and secondly, that they imagine that the Government of India as a despotic Government can do anything not naturally impossible. Hence they feel no hesitation in recommending the universal prohibition of the sale of opium except for medicinal purposes, and they suppose that such a measure could be easily carried out by the exercise of the 'absolute discretion' conferred by the Indian Opium Act.

"Now, upon this it may be observed, to begin with, that, though the Indian Opium Act of 1878, like some other Acts passed about the same time, confers upon the executive authorities a latitude of discretion which from a constitutional point of view Sir Dennis Fitzpatrick has always regarded as excessive, it will nevertheless be perfectly clear to any one who studies that Act, and bears in mind the state of things under which it was passed, that it was never intended to confer upon the executive authorities power to do anything of the sort now proposed, and that to attempt to do under it anything of that sort would be a very gross abuse of the powers which it confers.

"Further, supposing this difficulty to be got over, the question would remain whether it would be justifiable or expedient to take such action, and the Resident is decidedly of opinion that it would not In the first place he is of opinion, though doubtless some persons will differ from him on this point, that it would involve an interference with individual liberty far in excess of what is justified by the nature and extent of the evils which necessarily result from the use of opium, that is to say, of the evils which do not admit of being checked by a stricter system of supervision and control: and in the second place, supposing considerations of this sort, which even the most despotic Government cannot venture to disregard, could be set aside, he is convinced that such a measure would be practically unworkable, and would lead to vastly more mischief than it would succeed in preventing.

"Every one who has had experience of the working of the Opium law knows that opium, owing to its extremely small bulk and the facility with which it can be stowed away, presents facilities for smuggling and clandestine sale immensely surpassing those presented by any other commodity in ordinary use.

"As it is, our officers are driven to their wits' ends to suppress the limited and not very highly organised system of illicit traffic which has been evoked by our severe duties on opium, and, if we were to make it impossible for those addicted to the use of opium to get anything but contraband opium, a system of illicit traffic would inevitably be started on such a scale and with such an organisation that we should be utterly powerless to cope with it. Speaking generally, 10 grains would be an ordinary daily allowance to an opium-eater, 20 grains would be a very full daily allowance. A seer of opium contains 1,440 times 10 grains and would be quite a stock in trade and yet it is a very small thing, for opium is a heavy substance. Let any one picture to himself the difficulty of detecting the smuggling and surreptitious sale over an immense extent of territory and for the supply of many millions of consumers, of such a commodity, and let any one who knows this country picture to himself what the attempt to suppress it here would mean. The imagination, at least the imagination of an ordinary practical man, refuses to conceive the establishments that would be required for such a purpose, and to any one who knows the class of persons who would have to be employed for such a purpose here, the prospect of oppression, corruption, and extortion which the suggestion opens out is truly appalling. No doubt, if we covered the whole face of the country with a net-work of preventive establishments and resorted to an extreme of severity whenever we got a conviction we should succeed in diminishing to some material extent the consumption of opium, but the advantage thus gained would be as nothing compared with the evils to be set against it."

28. We give this quotation in extenso subject to an explanation that the appalling abuses of which the Resident speaks refer to the descriptions of opium-dens contained in the papers referred to in the memorial, and not to scenes which have come under Sir Dennis Fitzpatrick's personal observation in Berar or any other part of India. We have already explained that these descriptions are much overdrawn, but the argument against the total prohibition of opium is made all the stronger by the fact that the Resident has arrived at his conclusion even on the assumption that the existing evils are as great as has been alleged. We have only to add that the Resident has omitted to notice one very important difficulty which would arise in attempting to enforce the measure suggested by the Society. We allude to the risk of serious disaffection which might arise in many Provinces if the people were suddenly deprived of what they have for generations been accustomed to regard as a legitimate and harmless luxury. This difficulty would be most seriously felt in the Punjab, from which Province the main element of the strength of our Native Army is derived and where the Sikh population is specially addicted to the use of opium.

29. We have reserved to the end the consideratoin of the final request made in paragraph 18 of the memorial for the closure of shops for the consumption of opium on the premises. This is a question which has engaged our attention for some time, and we took the opportunity of Your Lordship's reference to put the question definitely before Local Governments. The replies are not generally in favour of universal closure, but we have again carefully considered the point with special reference to the action which has been already taken in the Punjab and in the Central Provinces. In the former, shops in which opium may be smoked on the premises have been gradually abolished between the years 1885 and 1890, and in the latter consumption of drugs in any form upon the premises of shops has been prohibited from the 1st April 1891. The question is a difficult one to decide, and we fully recognise the force of the arguments which are stated by, among others, the Governments of Bengal and Madras, in favour of retention of a small number of smoking shops under strict supervision. We are aware that there is a risk that the abolition of these shops may in some places do more harm than good by substituting opium-smoking in private for opium-smoking at a licensed shop, and that the immediate and direct result of closure may not be in the interest either of the classes addicted to the practice, or of the general public. Nevertheless we have decided that the policy initiated in the Punjab is on the whole the right one to follow, or at least that it should be given a trial on a large scale, and Your Lordship will observe from our Resolution * No. 4033, dated 25th September 1891, that we have now directed all Local Governments to take steps for the earliest possible introduction of that policy wherever it can be safely adopted without risk of serious disorder. In the Resolution we have not limited our instructions to shops licensed for the smoking of opium, but have requested that in future licenses the consumption of opium in any form upon the premises of shops may be prohibited. We shall watch the results of the experiment closely, and we are not without hope that the measure we have now directed to be taken may, on the whole, be productive of good.

(a) The figure is believed to include a large weight of poppy-heads.

(b) These are the amounts issued from the Treasuries in Upper Burma. In addition the following amounts are shown in the returns as imported from beyond the Frontier:—

In 1888-89 . . . . . . . . . 19,130 seers.

" 1889-90 . . . . . . . . . 5,509 "

" 1890-91 . . . . . . . . . 1,094 "

No. 94 (Revenue), dated 17th December 1891.

From—The Secretary of State for India,

To—The Government of India.

I have considered in Council Your Excellency's letter No. 289, dated the 14th October 1891, with enclosures, regarding the consumption of opium in India, and the arrangements under which an Excise revenue of about Rx. 800,000 is levied on that consumption.

2. The information contained in these papers is precise and interesting. Among other matters they show—

(1) that the number of licensed opium shops in British India has decreased by 9 per cent. during the past ten years, while the population has increased 9 per cent. There were in—

1880, 11,113 licensed opium shops in British India.

These figures, I understand, include every individual authorised shop, whether it is separately licensed, or whether it is included with other shops in one license :

(2) that the quantity of licit opium consumed in British India, though it has fluctuated, has not increased greatly during the last ten years; while it is claimed that in some provinces, especially in Bombay and Madras, the increase is largely due to the substitution of licit for illicit opium. The figures of actual consumption are—

| | Seers. | Chests. |
|---|---|---|
| 1880 . . . . . . . | 444,833 = | 6,630 |
| 1881 . . . . . . . | 399,753 = | 5,966 |
| 1890 . . . . . . . | 455,114 = | 6,752 |

(3) that licenses for smoking opium, or its preparations on the premises (i.e., for opium dens, as they have been called), are no longer granted in the Punjab or in the Central Provinces; and you have given orders for the gradual withdrawal of all such licenses elsewhere :

(4) that the Government of Bombay have been requested to stop the practice of requiring licensed opium vendors to sell yearly a guaranteed minimum quantity of licit opium; though you consider that the practice has, in the past, operated to check illicit opium dealings :

(5) that it is a mistake to regard opium consumption as a new thing in the Madras Presidency; the truth being that, whereas such consumption was uncontrolled in the past, it is now controlled and checked by being made to pay a heavy duty :

(6) that one effective measure for checking the spread of opium consumption has been to enhance the duty upon, or price of opium; and this price has during the last ten years been raised in Assam from R26 to R37 per seer, and in Burma from R24 to R32 per seer, while in Bombay, during the past fourteen years, it has been raised from R10 to R20 per seer :

(7) that it is not practicable to close all opium shops and to stop opium consumption so long as opium is grown in British India and in Native States. Such a measure might create serious discontent, especially in the Punjab, which is the nursery of our Indian troops, where opium is largely consumed, and where the average physique of the people is excellent :

(8) that in Burma the Local Government has proposed arrangements for stopping the sale of opium to Burmans in the lower, as has already been done in the upper, province. You have intimated your readiness to sanction this proposal, provided certain facts are made clear; and you have told the Chief Commissioner that "any possible loss of revenue involved in" measures for checking the opium habit among Burmans "need not be taken into account" :

(9) that the total licit consumption of opium in British India would suffice to furnish a moderate daily dole of a quarter tola of opium (one-tenth of an ounce) to about 400,000 people, that is, to two persons in every thousand of the population.

3. I approve the orders which you have issued on the several points noticed; and I shall be glad to receive a special report when effect shall have been given everywhere to your orders on points (3) and (4), and to learn how far you may find it possible to carry further, and into other provinces, the policy of increasing the duty on or selling price of opium (point (6) above). I recognise fully that it is the wish and the policy of your Government to check and limit the habit of consuming licit opium among Indian populations, as far as is possible, without driving them to smuggling or to the use of more harmful narcotic drugs.

REVENUE AND AGRICULTURAL DEPARTMENT.

Weather Review of India for the week ending at 8 a.m. on Saturday, December 26th, 1891.

There has again been no change in the general weather during the week under review. High pressures accompanying fine weather and light anticyclonic winds have prevailed over the greater part of the Indian region, while in the extreme south the weather has been disturbed by a slight depression which gave rain and cyclonic winds to the south-west of the Bay and to the South Carnatic.

On the 20th the barometer was falling, except in Burma and the east of the Peninsula. The changes were, however, everywhere moderate or small, and the chart showed a large area of high pressure overlying North-Western and Central India and a low-pressure area over Malabar and the south of the Bay. The wind directions were fairly normal, and the force was moderate or light, except on the Madras and Konkan coasts where it was fresh. The weather was very fine except in the south-east of the Peninsula, and at Chittagong where light showers had fallen. On the 21st the chart showed the same general conditions as on the 20th, but in addition a very feeble depression existed over the western desert, and the low-pressure area over the south-west of the Bay had developed into a well-defined depression. Some easterly winds were shown in the north-west due to the depression in that neighbourhood, while the rainfall in the south was more extensive than on the previous day, accompanying the pressure changes in that region. In no other part of the country was there any rain. By the morning of the 22nd both depressions had disappeared. In the north-west this was accompanied with a brisk increase of pressure, but over the Peninsula and Burma the barometer was still falling. The winds had shifted to east on the Carnatic coast, but were otherwise little changed. Rain in small amounts had fallen over a large part of Madras and at Belgaum. A slight shower was also reported from Srinagar. The chart of the 23rd showed the regular anticyclonic conditions which have been so characteristic of the present season. Pressure decreased from 30·25" at Peshawar to 29·909" at Colombo. The wind exhibited a steady outset from the high-pressure area and, except at a few stations on the coasts of the Peninsula, was light or moderate in force. Rain was confined to the south of the Peninsula and was light at all stations. On the 24th pressure was increasing almost everywhere, but the general conditions as regards distribution and winds were unchanged. The only rainfall within the Indian region was a few drops at Wellington and Colombo. On the 25th the barometer was falling over the south-east of the Peninsula and the south-west of the Bay, and there were again signs of disturbed weather in that region. Elsewhere there was no important change. The wind was very strong from north east at Negapatam, and rain was reported from Cuddalore, Negapatam, Colombo, and Wellington. In each case the amount received was very small. On the 26th the barometer was falling except in the Carnatic, where there was a slight rise. The signs of disturbance in that region were decreasing and pressure decreased regularly from a high-pressure area over the North-West and Central Provinces to a low-pressure area in the south. The winds were generally unaltered and the only rainfall was in the extreme south of the Peninsula and in Ceylon. At Negapatam the amount exceeded one inch, but at the other stations the fall continued light.

Temperature.—The mean temperature of the Indian region has been generally above the average of the time of year.

The following table shows the variations of the mean temperature from the normal on each day of the week for the principal provinces of India:—

| PROVINCE. | 20th. | 21st. | 22nd. | 23rd. | 24th. | 25th. | 26th. | Mean variation of week. |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Burma . . . . | +0·9 | +1·6 | +1·9 | +1·7 | +1·0 | +0·2 | −0·8 | +0·9 |
| Bengal and Assam . . | +2·3 | +2·1 | +2·1 | +1·9 | +1·2 | −0·5 | −0·7 | +1·2 |
| North-Western Provinces and Oudh . . . | +1·8 | +1·1 | +1·6 | −0·8 | −1·7 | −2·9 | −3·6 | −0·6 |
| Punjab . . . . | +0·6 | +0·8 | −0·2 | −1·1 | −0·5 | −1·6 | −1·1 | −0·4 |
| Bombay . . . . | +2·0 | +3·7 | +4·3 | +5·2 | +4·3 | +2·5 | +1·5 | +3·4 |
| Berar and Central Provinces | +1·8 | +3·1 | +5·1 | +3·0 | −1·3 | −2·3 | −3·2 | +0·9 |
| Guzerat and Central India . | +2·0 | +1·4 | +1·7 | +1·1 | +1·9 | +0·8 | +1·0 | +1·4 |
| Sind and Rajputana . . | +1·9 | +0·7 | +1·1 | −0·6 | +0·2 | −0·2 | +1·3 | +0·6 |
| Madras . . . . | +5·4 | +4·4 | +3·9 | +3·9 | +2·8 | +2·2 | +1·2 | +3·4 |
| MEAN FOR WHOLE INDIA . | +2·1 | +2·1 | +2·4 | +1·6 | +0·9 | −0·2 | −0·5 | +1·2 |

The mean diurnal variation was thus +1·2. On five days the mean temperature of the whole of India was higher than usual and on two days lower. The excess was greatest (2°·4) on the 22nd and the deficiency was greatest (0°·5) on the 26th. The provincial variations show that for the whole week there was a slight deficiency of temperature in the North-Western Provinces and the Punjab and an excess in all the other provinces. This excess was as much as 3° over the Peninsula.

Rain.—As in the previous week, the total rainfall throughout India has been exceedingly slight. Forty of the rainfall divisions had absolutely no rain during the week, five divisions had an average total fall of less than one-tenth of an inch, and six had an average fall of over one-tenth of an inch. Three of the last mentioned divisions had falls exceeding one inch. Rain was confined to Burma and the south and west of the Indian Peninsula. The east coast (south) received an average of 1¾ inch of rain, Madras (south) of 1½ inch, and Madras (south-central) of 1 inch. In the other divisions reporting rain the amounts were small.

The only heavy falls of rain were in the extreme south. Thus Cunoor (Nilgiris) received 4½ inches; Chidamaliaram (South Arcot) 4 inches; Nannilam (Tanjore) 6¼ inches; Sholapuram (Trichinopoly) 4 inches; and Ambasamudram (Tinnevelly) 5¼ inches.

The general conditions as regards the seasonal rainfall, i.e., the rain from October 18th to December 26th, are practically unchanged. An excess is reported from the Burma divisions, from Cachar, from Orissa, from Malabar, from Madras (south-central), from the East Coast (south), and from Madras (south) and a defect from all the other divisions. In parts of North-West and of Central India no rain whatever has fallen during the past two months.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

REVENUE AND AGRICULTURAL DEPARTMENT.

Weekly Report on the state of the Season and Prospects of the Crops.

Madras.—For week ending 2nd January.—Rainfall good in Tanjore and parts of Madura and Tinnevelly; a few local showers in South Arcot and Chingleput; no rain elsewhere. December rainfall entirely failed in four northern coast districts, north Nellore, Kurnool, Bellary, Anantapur, and the greater parts of Cuddapah, North Arcot uplands and Salem. Crops in southern districts generally fair and prospects favourable. In northern coast districts except deltas of Kistna and in Godavari, in Kurnool, Bellary, Anantapur, Cuddapah, Salem, and parts of Coimbatore and North Arcot above the ghats, much of the dry crop withered or withering, and water-supply for irrigation deficient. Outturn of early crops poor and condition of late bad. Pasture and supplies of fodder deficient, especially in parts of Bellary and Anantapur where cattle are suffering. Prices stationary or fallen slightly, except in Ganjam and Vizagapatam where further sharp rise, and Kistna, Nellore, Cuddapah, South Arcot, Trichinopoly, and Madura where rise moderate. Prices of staple food-grains now reached or exceeded scarcity rates in Kistna, Kurnool, Bellary, Anantapur, Cuddapah, Nellore, Chingleput, North Arcot, Salem, and Madura. General prospects more gloomy in Cuddapah, Anantapur, Bellary, Kurnool and north Nellore. Works:—Numbers employed—Chingleput 601, Wandiwash 75, Polur 50, Kalahasti 2,577, Coimbatore 1,863, Salem 4,197, Kurnool 3,650, Anantapur 501, Bellary 4,874 and Cuddapah 972, total 19,360 against 18,390 last week. Kitchens:—Numbers fed mostly women and children—Wandiwash 451, Polur 109, Kalahasti 662, Coimbatore 251, Salem 332, and Kurnool 197, increase over last week 44. Kitchens closed in Chingleput. Loans disbursed to date for construction and repair of wells:—Chingleput R3,78,044, Wandiwash R1,63,842, Polur R18,394, Coimbatore R1,35,515, Cuddapah R57,6·9, Nellore R62,220, Tinnevelly R41,481, South Arcot R18,049, Salem R56,370, Kurnool R3,295, Bellary R8,010 and Anantapur R1,330. For feeding or purchase of cattle and seed grain:—Chingleput R22,617, Wandiwash R-00, Polur R855, Coimbatore R52,115, Cuddapah R5,206, Nellore R2,440, Tinnevelly R4,870, South Arcot R5,740, Salem R9,598, Kurnool R1,710, Bellary R666, and Anantapur R200. Wells constructed—Chingleput 1,553, Wandiwash and Polur 411, and seven other districts 324; under construction—Chingleput 2,343, Wandiwash and Polur 1,168, and eight other districts 1,924.

Bombay.—For week ending 6th January.—Slight rain in parts of Shikarpur; no rain elsewhere. Crops withering and fodder scarce in seven districts of the Deccan and Karnatak and in parts of Sind. Water insufficient and cattle being removed to other places in parts of four districts. Prices rising in seven districts; steady in others. Harvesting of early crops continues in five districts.

Bengal.—For week ending 5th January.—No rain during the week; weather fine and cold. The winter rice has been nearly harvested with a fair outturn over the greater part of the Province. In some parts of Behar and North Bengal the crop has yielded almost nothing, and in Nuddea and Jessore the outturn has been poor. The prospects of the rabi crops are generally fair, but rain is still required in many districts to secure a good crop. In Behar the unirrigated crops are deteriorating, but if it rains even now some improvement may be expected. The condition of the rabi crops is also unfavourable in Nuddea, Jessore and Moorshedabad. Poppy continues to promise well on the irrigated lands, bnt rain is wanted where there is no irrigation. Sugarcane is in good condition, and is being pressed in some districts. Tobacco and indigo prospects are favourable. Prices are stationary with slight fluctuations in some districts. Cattle are generally doing well, and there is ample supply of fodder and water. The Commissioner of Patna reports that everything depends on the rain, and that, if it comes, there will be nothing like famine anywhere in the division, and no distress that cannot be dealt with locally. If rain does not come, it is still expected that the District Boards will be able to deal with the wants of the people, but Government will have to help with funds in the shape of agricultural advances and public works. In Muzaffarpore and Durbhunga things are said to be not so bad as at first feared. Prices everywhere are stationary or nearly so, and there is up to date no unusual demand for labour. The situation in the districts of Bhagalpur, Monghyr and Purneah is unaltered, and the Commissioner is of opinion that no serious or general distress need be apprehended before February. Prices continue as before, and rice is cheaper in the distressed localities of Purneah. In respect of the Dinagepore district the Commissioner reports that the winter rice harvest north of the Railway has amounted to six annas. There is, however, a tract with a population of 200,000, in the north-western portion of the district, the harvest of which is estimated at three annas only In this tract it is stated that pressure will begin to be severely felt in the middle of April, and will last until August, that is, until it is relieved by the next bhadoi crop, assuming that that crop will be a successful one. Further information is awaited with regard to the districts of Bogra, Rungpore and Julpaiguri. In Rajshahye and Pubna there is no ground for apprehension.

North-Western Provinces and Oudh.—For week ending 6th January.—Though the weather has been frequently cloudy there has been no rain and it is now wanted for unirrigated crops; where irrigation is available the rabi is doing well. Frost has slightly injured cotton and arhar in the Agra district. Prices are reported to be rising in two districts; elsewhere they are steady.

Punjab.—For week ending 6th January.—Rainfall nil Prices rising in five districts; unsettled in one and stationary elsewhere. Cotton-picking is in progress in Mooltan. Weeding and watering of rabi crops going on. Prospects of standing crops are generally reported good at present; they are poor in Ferozepore and bad on the unirrigated land of Amritsar. Rain is wanted throughout the province to improve the condition of standing crops. Cattle are suffering for want of grass in two districts; their condition is poor in Lahore, but elsewhere good. Fodder is reported deficient in seven districts.

Central Provinces.—For week ending 6th January.—Weather cloudy in Northern districts with high winds in Hoshangabad; elsewhere clear and cool. Prospects of winter crops unchanged. Cattle in good condition. Prices stationary.

Burma.—For week ending 2nd January.—LOWER BURMA: Reaping progressing and approaching completion in some districts. Crop prospects are reported to be good on the whole, except in parts of Prome and Thayetmyo. UPPER BURMA: Mandalay—condition of crops good. Bhamo—reaping of early paddy completed and sowing for dry-weather paddy begun, reaping of wet-weather paddy in progress. Katha—reaping continues, crop prospects good except in Myadaung sub-division, Manle and Kawlin townships and parts of Pinlebu. Shwebo—reaping continues, cultivation of dry-weather paddy progressing. Sagaing—in Sagaing sub-division one-third of paddy and sessamum reaped, the remaining two-thirds destroyed by drought; in Myinmu sub-division sessamum and millet are being reaped. Upper Chindwin—reaping nearly finished, dry-weather paddy planting progressing. Lower Chindwin—sowing of pulses continues in eastern sub-division and reaping of jowari and sessamum in progress, outturn below average; in western sub-division reaping of wet-weather paddy in progress and reaping of jowari begun. Standing crops are bad in eastern sub-division and fair in western sub-division. Myingyan—reaping of late millet commenced. Pakokku—sowing of tobacco completed; wet-weather paddy reaped; estimated yield 99,330 baskets; in Pakokku sub-division dry-weather crop favourable in Yesagyo, Myaing, Pakokku and Seikpyu, and fair in Pauk; reaping almost completed. Minbu—fair crops are expected in Sagu township, but in some cases they have partially failed and in others are not looking so well as last year; worms are attacking sessamum crops in Mon sub-division. Magwe—millet generally reaped, paddy on irrigated lands being reaped; estimated outturn of millet from twelve to fourteen annas; paddy two-anna crop expected. Kyaukse—wet-weather paddy estimated at sixteen annas is being reaped, and ploughing for dry-weather paddy is progressing. Meiktila—reaping is generally going on throughout the district, and new paddy and millet are coming into the market in increasing quantities. Yamethin—reaping progressing and approaching completion in some circles. Pyinmana—reaping continues. Price of paddy has decreased slightly at Akyab, Bassein, Thayetmyo, Bhamo, and Kyaukse, and considerably at Rangoon, Pegu, Amherst, Shwegyin, Toungoo, Katha, Shwebo, Pakokku, Magwe, Yamethin and Pyinmana; in Tharrawaddy, Prome, and Sagaing there has been a rise. Numbers on relief works:—Sagaing 2,414; Lower Chindwin 1,775; Myingyan 3,744; Minbu 1,509; Meiktila 2,568; Yamethin 3,018; Shwebo, Ye-u, and Magwe not reported.

Assam.—For week ending 30th December.—Weather seasonable. Reaping of late rice and gathering of pulses continue. Pruning of tea going on. Cattle in good condition.

For week ending 6th January.—Weather cold and dry. Harvesting of winter paddy progressing. Condition of cattle good. Supply of water normal Fodder becoming scarce in Hill districts and parts of Sibsagar.

Mysore and Coorg.—For week ending 6th January.—No rain. Standing crops withered and withering in parts. Outturn of harvests generally poor. Expansion of ordinary public works as relief works sanctioned in two taluks of Kolar district. Fodder becoming scarce, and in parts of Tumkur district cattle being fed with date leaves. Prices risen in four districts.

Reaping of rice and picking of coffee continue in Coorg. Prices stationary. Water and fodder for cattle sufficient.

Berar and Hyderabad.—For week ending 6th January.—Weather fair and cool in Berar. Threshing of jowari continues. Cotton-picking in progress. Rabi crops not in good condition in two districts Wheat in ear, gram in pod. Fodder and water sufficient except in one taluk; cattle healthy. Prices high in three districts.

No rain in Hyderabad during the week. Harvesting of abi crops continues. Standing rabi crops are at present in good condition. Fodder for cattle, though at present available, is gradually becoming scarce. Prices:—wheat 8½, coarse rice 8, white juar 12¼, yellow juar 13½, and tur 11¼ seers per current rupee.

Central India.—For week ending 6th January.—Prices of food-grains rising in Goona. No other changes since last report.

Rajputana.—For week ending 6th January.—Agricultural operations satisfactory generally. Rabi being irrigated in Ajmere and in good condition in the other States. Good harvests expected in Sirohi and Jhallawar. Crops damaged partly by frost in Dholpore. Cattle in good condition except in five States, and at Kherwara and Ajmere where they are getting worse. Pasturage or fodder scarce in six States and at Kherwara and Ajmere. Maize stems afford relief to some extent in the latter place. Water-supply failing in places in Kherwara. Ten rubaris with 200 cattle left Sirohi for Dauta and Palunpore; 344 immigrants and 339 cattle entered Kotah. Prices steady in seven States and at Ajmere and Harowtee, falling in two and fluctuating in two States. Seven thousand three hundred and thirty-five men employed on relief works and 6,585 gratuitously treated in Marwar; in Ajmere 9,566 men employed. Labour return from Merwara not received. Scarcity prevails throughout whole or part of ten tehsils in Bikanir, where 2,040 persons are employed on relief works and 539 persons gratuitously treated.

Nepal.—For week ending 31st December.—Weather fine. Wheat germinating; potato land in preparation. Prices slightly lower than at date of last report.

5. The medical establishment (which is not to form part of the regimental establishment) will consist of—

1 Medical officer (Medical Staff).
1 Apothecary (1st grade).
1 Senior hospital assistant.
1 Hospital assistant.

The following will be temporarily entertained and may accompany the regiment to China at discretion of the commanding officer, but the question of their permanent retention, as well as of the rates of pay to be drawn by them after arrival at Hong-Kong, will be settled by the local authorities:—

|---|---|
| 2 Cooks2 Bhisties2 Sweepers | At Native Infantry followers' rates plus 50 per cent. for the voyage. |

6. The apothecary will receive an allowance of R100 or 44 $ a month, in addition to his Indian pay and allowances of R200 or 88 $, also free quarters or compensation in lieu.

The hospital assistants will be seconded in their present grades and will receive pay at the following rates, also free quarters or compensation in lieu :—

The terms of service of the apothecary and hospital assistants will be five years, with the privilege of extending their service at the end of that period. For pension privileges they will come under the Indian Regulations.

7. Of the seventeen Native officers required for the Hong-Kong Regiment, nine will be appointed from the Native Army, the remaining eight vacancies being filled by the promotion of men transferred as havildars or by granting direct commissions to Native gentlemen.

8. Of the 987 non-commissioned officers and men required for the battalion, 50 per cent. of Pathans and Punjabi Mahomedans and 75 per cent. of Hindustani Mahomedans will be obtained from Native Infantry regiments of the Bengal Army and Punjab Frontier Force.

9. Officers commanding regiments in which there are men of the required classes are authorized to submit the names of any Native officers, non-commissioned officers or men who are desirous of, and who can be recommended for, transfer to the Hong-Kong Regiment either in their present or in a higher rank. The rolls of such volunteers should be submitted to Major E. G. Barrow, the commandant of the regiment, and should contain particulars as to caste, age, service, character, field services, etc., also the rank in which the transfer is recommended. The number of volunteers is limited to 30 per regiment. All volunteers should have less than eleven years' service, but Native officers, non-commissioned officers and buglers of over that service may be taken.

All previous service in India will be allowed to count as qualifying for pension at the end of twenty-one years, but no officer or soldier will be taken unless he engages to serve for at least five years.

10. Free passage by rail to Jhelum is authorised for transfers of any rank.

11. No arms, accoutrements or clothing will be taken by transfers. In respect to clothing and necessaries and half-mounting balances, the men transferred will be treated in the same way as men discharged.

12. The rates of pay for Native officers, non-commissioned officers and men are as follow :—

| " 18 " " | Four " |
| " 23 " " | Five " |
| " 28 " " | Six " |

To every good-conduct badge shall be attached good-conduct pay at one cent per diem.

17. With regard to deferred pay, clothing, rations, and equipment, Native officers, non-commissioned officers and men of the Hong-Kong Regiment will be placed on a similar footing to the Asiatic Artillery at Hong-Kong.

18. The term of service will be for five years, with the option of re-engagement on entering the fifth year. Recruits will be attested under the Army Act, and volunteers from the Indian Army will be re-attested under that Act. The men will be enlisted for general service in India and elsewhere.

19. The corps will be subject to the provisions of the Army Act.

20. The formation of a band is postponed pending further orders.

21. Furlough will be granted to 20 per cent. of the men annually, commencing a year after they join at Hong-Kong; free passage by sea and railway conveyance to and from the nearest point to the men's homes will be granted.

22. The uniform laid down for the regiment is scarlet with yellow facings, and khaki in the hot weather, but British officers will wear white at mess and on garrison duties in the hot weather.

The cloth clothing will be issued by the Army Clothing Department, Alipore.

23. The equipment will be the same as is in use in the Bengal Army, brown leather belts, etc., and will be supplied by the Ordnance Department in India.

Arms will be supplied from England for the regiment, and will be issued as soon as received.

Tentage.—To meet the case of detachments, sanitary camps, etc., Indian Native infantry general service tents for 25 per cent. of the strength of the regiment will be taken from India.

THE INDIAN LAW REPORTS.

PUBLISHED UNDER AUTHORITY.

The Indian Law Reports, published under the authority of the Governor-General in Council, appear in monthly parts, published as soon as possible after the first of each month, at Calcutta, Madras, Bombay, and Allahabad, and comprise four series,—one for the Calcutta High Court, a second for the Madras High Court, a third for the Bombay High Court, and a fourth for the Allahabad High Court. The cases heard by the Privy Council on appeal from each High Court are reported in the series for that High Court. Cases heard by the Privy Council on appeal from Provinces in India not subject to any High Court are reported in the Calcutta Series.

The Calcutta Series is distributed by the Bengal Secretariat, and the Madras, Bombay and Allahabad Series are distributed direct from Madras, Bombay and Allahabad, respectively.

In supersession of the previous advertisements, on and from the 1st January, 1889, the terms of subscription and sale will be as follows for current issues as well as for back numbers of the Reports from 1870:—

REVENUE DEPARTMENT.

[Revised Advertisement.]

A Dictionary of the Economic Products of India.

BY DR. GEO. WATT, C.I.E.,

Reporter on Economic Products.

Published under the authority of the Government of India in the Revenue and Agricultural Department.

The first five volumes of the Dictionary are now ready at the Office of Superintendent of Government Printing, No. 8, Hastings Street, Calcutta, and will be supplied to non-subscribers on receipt of the price for the complete set, which is R45 in India, and 3 guineas in England (exclusive of the Index, for which a separate charge will be made): packing and postage, in India, 8 annas per volume; for England, 2 rupees 6 annas per volume. For copies bound in half calf or half morocco, R6 and 8 shillings respectively will be charged extra for the whole set.

The Dictionary is intended to deal with the products of India—animal, vegetable, and mineral; each product being treated after a uniform plan, the paragraphs of which give the scientific, vernacular, and European names; habitat or source; history; properties and uses (both chemical and industrial); trade statistics; markets, etc. The work is arranged alphabetically according to scientific nomenclature, but commercial and important vernacular names are also given as cross references, so that little difficulty need be experienced in finding the account of a product even when its scientific name is unknown to the reader.

An important feature of the Dictionary consists in the fact that derived information is in every instance given under quotation marks, and with a reference to the original publication. Numerous contributors have, however, furnished the results of new discoveries, and confirmed the vernacular names, so that the Dictionary is not only a complete compilation of published information, but has been brought abreast of the most recent inventions and discoveries.

Volume I contains the letters A and B, and consists of 550 royal octavo pages; Volume II embraces the letter C in 689 pages; Volume III contains the letters D, E, F, and half of G; Volume IV latter half of G to middle of L, and Volume V contains the latter half of L to end of O. The whole work will, it is expected, be completed in seven volumes during the current year, but an eighth volume may also be issued, consisting of an Index to all the vernacular and other names contained in the Dictionary. The Index will practically be a glossary of the vernacular and European names of the plants, animals, and minerals of India, and, as such, will be a work of reference, which, it is hoped, may prove of considerable value

DEATH OF HIS ROYAL HIGHNESS THE DUKE OF CLARENCE.

His Excellency THE PRESIDENT addressed the Council as follows:—

"I feel sure that my hon'ble colleagues will desire to take some notice of the great calamity, the news of which reached us yesterday—a calamity the shadow of which has thrown a deep gloom over the whole of the British Empire.

"The death of a Prince, who, in the natural order of events, would have succeeded to the Throne of India, is an event which a Council, entrusted, as this Council is, with the duty of legislating for India, and containing members connected with almost every part of the country, is not likely to pass over without some outward manifestation of its sympathy and regret.

"Two years ago many of us had the pleasure of becoming acquainted with the late Duke of Clarence when he was our guest here. Our thoughts travel back to the time when we looked upon him as he stood amongst us then, in the spring-tide of his life, full of health and hope, the destined inheritor, not only of a great Empire, but of that wealth of affection and respect which Her Majesty and Her children have known how to accumulate for themselves.

"Of late our interest in His Royal Highness had been redoubled by the announcement of his engagement to a young and charming Princess, herself widely popular amongst Her Majesty's subjects—an engagement which appealed vividly to our imaginations, which seemed to promise, for those who were about to become husband and wife, a rich abundance of happiness, and, for the nation, an increase to the stability of the Royal House and to the security of the Throne.

"No more brilliant or attractive prospect ever lay before a young Englishman, no career could have seemed fuller of useful and far-reaching opportunities, than that which was open to the young Prince whom India as well as England now mourns. A few days—I might almost say a few hours—have sufficed to shatter all our hopes, to ruin all the bright expectations in which we had indulged.

"At this moment there is scarcely room in our thoughts for the loss which the nation has sustained, or for conjectures as to the remoter results of this misfortune. We can think only of the blow which has fallen upon Her Majesty the Queen-Empress, of the grief of those who are sorrowing with her over the Duke of Clarence's death, and to whom we wish to convey some token of our deep regret, some mark of our regard for his memory.

"I suggest for the consideration of the Council that it would be a proper and usual mark of respect that we should adjourn without transacting the business which is upon the paper. I leave it entirely to my hon'ble colleagues to say whether they desire that any specific assurance should be offered on their behalf to Her Majesty the Queen-Empress and to the rest of the Royal Family."

His Honour THE LIEUTENANT-GOVERNOR said:—

"I believe, my Lord, that I am expressing the feelings of all my hon'ble colleagues assembled here when I say that it would be the wish of the Council that some expression should be conveyed by Your Excellency, in the manner in which you have suggested, of our profound sympathy with Her Majesty the Queen-Empress and Their Royal Highnesses the Prince and Princess of Wales in the great calamity which has overtaken not only them but the nation.

"I will not attempt to suggest that anything should be added to what was contained in the eloquent words which Your Excellency has just uttered, and I believe that they express as fitly and completely as possible the feelings which animate us all.

"I may venture, however, as the Lieutenant-Governor of this vast Province, to say that a calamity of this kind must be very deeply and widely felt by a population with whom personal loyalty is so strong a motive as it is with the people of India, and who were so much drawn and attracted by what they saw and heard of His Royal Highness' demeanour and character on the occasion of his visit to India.

"I am quite sure that every intelligent and educated member of this province will desire to associate himself with the Government of India and with Your Excellency's Council in the expression of their deep sympathy in the great disaster which has overtaken the people of India no less than ourselves and the Royal Family."

The Hon'ble LIEUTENANT-GENERAL BRACKENBURY said :—

"I regret that His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief is not present here to-day, that he might give utterance to the feelings of Her Majesty's army on this sad occasion. In his absence I would ask permission to say on behalf of all classes of Her Majesty's soldiers, European and Native, how great is our sorrow at the loss of this young Prince, our comrade in arms; how deep is the sympathy that we feel in their bereavement with Their Royal Highnesses the Prince and Princess of Wales, and in this, the crowning sorrow of Her life, with Her Most Gracious Majesty the Queen-Empress, whom we, her loyal soldiers, so truly love, honour and revere."

The Hon'ble RAJA UDAI PARTAB SINGH OF BHINGA said :—

"On behalf of the Native members of Your Excellency's Legislative Council I beg to express the deep sorrow we feel at the calamity which has befallen us all. We desire that an expression of our sorrow and sympathy may be conveyed to Her Most Gracious Majesty, and to Their Royal Highnesses the Prince and Princess of Wales."

His Excellency THE PRESIDENT said :—

"In accordance with the wish which has been expressed, I will convey to Her Majesty an assurance of the deep sympathy felt by hon'ble members in the loss which She has sustained.

"It may interest hon'ble members to know that I have received the following reply from Her Majesty to a telegram which I addressed to Her yesterday. I had ventured to offer Her Majesty my respectful condolence, and I mentioned to Her the consternation with which the news of His Royal Highness' illness and its fatal termination had been received here.

"Her Majesty's gracious reply runs as follows :—

'Many thanks. I am sure of the sympathy of my loyal Indian people.'"

The Council adjourned to Saturday, the 16th January, 1892.

Weather Review of India for the week ending at 8 a.m. on Saturday, January 2nd, 1892.

The reports and charts of the week under review show no change in the general weather and pressure conditions, which have existed over India during the past five or six weeks. Pressure has increased and decreased, sometimes by considerable amounts, in different parts of India, during the week, but throughout these changes, readings have remained steadily high over the north-west and centre of India, and steadily low over the south of the Indian region. The winds were generally anticyclonic circulating around the high pressure area in the north-west and centre, but on the Carnatic coast there were at times signs of cyclonic movement due probably to the existence of relatively low pressures over the south-west of the Bay. The rainfall throughout was exceedingly light.

On the 27th, pressure was falling except in North-Western India. Readings were highest near Peshawar, lowest off the Malabar coast and near Ceylon. The winds were anticyclonic except at Madras, Cuddalore and Negapatam where they were cyclonic in direction and fresh to strong in force. Rain was reported from Colombo, Trevandrum, Madras, Madura and Negapatam. At the last station 2½ inches had fallen, but at the other stations the amounts were less than one-tenth of an inch. On the 28th, pressure was decreasing except in Sind, Rajputana, Khandeish, and the south of the Peninsula. The cyclonic tendency of the wind on the Carnatic coast had disappeared, but elsewhere the winds were unchanged. Showers were reported from Toungoo, Colombo, Wellington, Negapatam and Madura. The chart of the 29th showed that pressure was falling almost everywhere. The wind had shifted to south-west at Rawalpindi and to south-east at Murree, and there were again indications of a cyclonic circulation on the Carnatic coast. In other parts of the Indian region there was no change. Slight showers were reported from Tounghoo, Quetta, Madras and Cuddalore. On the 30th, pressure was still decreasing almost everywhere, the fall being greatest at Ludhiana, Roorkee, Dehra Dun and Mussoorie. A fresh south-east wind was reported from Murree and a slight shower had occurred there. The only other stations from which rain was reported were Quetta and Cuddalore. On the 31st, the barometer was still falling, but the region of greatest fall had been transferred eastward from the neighbourhood of Roorkee and Ludhiana to the neighbourhood of Bareilly and Lucknow. The winds were fairly normal in direction and the only rainfall reported was a slight shower at Colombo. On the morning of January 1st, 1892, pressure was increasing over Northern India and decreasing over the Central Provinces and the Peninsula. Readings were highest over Rajputana and the Central Provinces and were, compared with the normal, very low over the Indus Valley. Light anticyclonic winds and calms prevailed and the only rainfall was again at Colombo. On the 2nd, the barometric changes were similar to those reported on the previous day, but the rise was much greater in the Punjab than elsewhere, and the area of highest pressure was again transferred to North-Western India. Gradients were somewhat steeper and the winds, though preserving the same general directions, were rather stronger. Showers were reported from Colombo and Negapatam.

| Province. | 27th | 28th. | 29th. | 30th | 31st. | 1st. | 2nd. | Mean variation of week. |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Burma . . . . | −1·9 | −1·9 | −0·7 | −1·2 | −2·2 | −1·9 | −1·2 | −1·6 |
| Bengal and Assam . | −0·7 | −0·4 | +1·2 | −0·4 | −0·7 | −0·6 | +0·3 | −0·2 |
| North-Western Provinces and Oudh . . . . | −3·0 | −1·7 | −0·4 | +1·0 | +1·5 | +1·9 | −1·1 | −0·3 |
| Punjab . . . . | −1·6 | +0·5 | +1·0 | +0·6 | +2·8 | +1·0 | −1·1 | +0·5 |
| Bombay . . . | +0·9 | 0 | −0·4 | −0·4 | −0·1 | +0·1 | +1·3 | +0·2 |
| Berar and Central Provinces | −3·6 | −4·0 | −4·3 | −3·0 | −3·0 | −1·1 | −0·4 | −2·8 |
| Guzerat and Central India . | −2·1 | −2·9 | −3·2 | −2·1 | −1·0 | +0·6 | +0·1 | −1·5 |
| Sind and Rajputana . . | +0·8 | +1·4 | +0·1 | +1·2 | +2·1 | +1·6 | +1·5 | +1·2 |
| Madras . . . . | +0·7 | +0·7 | +0·8 | +0·2 | +0·4 | +0·8 | −0·3 | +0·5 |
| Mean for whole India . | −1·2 | −0·9 | −0·7 | −0·5 | 0 | +0·3 | −0·1 | −0·4 |

The above figures show that the mean temperature of the whole of India was below the normal on the first four days of the week and about normal on the remaining three days. The provincial variations exhibit an excess in the Punjab, Bombay, Sind, Rajputana and Madras, and a deficiency elsewhere. In the Central Provinces the deficiency was nearly 3° and in Central India and Burma about 1½° while in Sind and Rajputana the excess was 1·2°. In all the other Provinces the variations were small and unimportant. On the 29th, the minimum temperatures were very high at some of the north-western stations.

Rain.—As shown by the preceding paragraphs, there has been no improvement in the rainfall during the week, and the concluding table shows that only in three divisions of India has any rain been recorded. These three divisions are Central Burma with an average for the division of 0·29 inch; the East Coast (south) with an average of 0·25 inch, and Madras (south) with an average of 0·12 inch. In all the other divisions the rainfall record for the week is blank.

In Central Burma there is ordinarily no rain during the week under review, so that there is an excess of 0·29 inch for that division; in the East Coast (south) the normal average is 0·12 inch, so that here also there has been more rain than usual, but in Madras (south) the normal average for the week is 0·22 inch and the actual average 0·12 inch, so that in this case there is a slight deficiency.

Tirunalur (Tanjore) received 2½ inches during the week, and Negapatam received 2¼ inches, but with these exceptions none of the stations reporting rain recorded much more than ½ an inch during the week.

The general features of the seasonal rainfall show no important change, but in most cases the percentage of deficiency is slowly increasing.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

REVENUE AND AGRICULTURAL DEPARTMENT.

Weekly Report on the state of the Season and Prospects of the Crops.

Madras.—For week ending 9th January.—No rain, except light showers in parts of Tanjore and Tinnevelly. Agricultural outlook unchanged, but deficiency of water, pasture, and fodder for stock in Kurnool, Bellary, and Anantapur intensifying. Prices generally easier except in northern coast districts and South Arcot, scarcity rates for staple food-grains still exceeded in districts last reported, except Bellary, Salem, and Madura, and have been reached in Ganjam and nearly so in Vizagapatam and Godavari. Works:—Numbers employed—Wandiwash 60, Kalahasti 2,539, Coimbatore 1,505, Salem 4,473, Kurnool 6,240, Bellary 6,267, Anantapur 517, Cuddapah 2 258; total 23,859, against 18,709 last week. Relief works closed in Chingleput and Polur. Kitchens: —Numbers fed—mostly women and children—Wandiwash 452, Polur 105. Kalahasti 543, Salem 308, and Kurnool 325, decrease from last week 18. At kitchen newly opened in Anantapur 334. Kitchens closed in Coimbatore. Loans disbursed to date for construction and repair of wells:—Chingleput R3,78,347, Wandiwash R1,65,675, Polur R19,234, Coimbatore R1,41,443, Cuddapah R58,933, Nellore R5,130, Salem R66,590, Kurnool R6,170, Bellary revised figure R6,770, and Anantapur R2,030. For feeding and purchase of cattle and seed grain:—Chingleput R22 268, Wandiwash R700, Polur R880, Coimbatore R55,105, Cuddapah R5,206, Nellore R4,150, Salem R9,958, Kurnool R3,250, Bellary R666, and Anantapur R2_0. Wells constructed:—Chingleput 1,589, Wandiwash and Polur 420, and five other districts 261; under construction—Chingleput 2,307, Wandiwash and Polur 1,173, and six other districts 1,605.

Bombay.—For week ending 13th January.—Slight rain in parts of Karachi and Shikarpur; no rain elsewhere. Late crops more or less withered and fodder scarce in seven districts of Deccan and Karnatak. Fodder also scarce in parts of Sind and Baroda. Water insufficient and cattle being removed to other places in parts of four districts. Prices rising in seven districts. Harvesting of early crops continues in five districts.

Bengal.—For week ending 12th January.—There has been no rain during the week, and the temperature is high for the time of year. The winter rice crop is almost all gathered in, and the outturn generally is fair, except in some parts of Behar, Northern Bengal, and Central Bengal as previously reported. The rabi crops are still doing fairly well, but are now in urgent want of rain over most of the Province. Poppy in the irrigated lands is reported on favourably, but where there is no irrigation the crop is backward for want of rain. In Sarun about 1,200 bighas of poppy land are a complete failure. Tobacco promises to be a good crop, but in Jalpaiguri and parts of Durbhanga it does not look so well as before. Reports of the sugarcane crop are generally satisfactory. Prices are slightly rising in almost all districts of the Patna Division, elsewhere they are still stationary. The supply of fodder is generally sufficient, and cattle are in good condition. The situation of the districts, about which anxiety is felt at present, continues almost unchanged, but the want of rain must materially affect the prospects of the rabi crops. There are, however, no signs of distress as yet. In Gya the failure of the rabi crop, except in the canal-irrigated tracts, is assured, and there will be distress in the south-western part of the district, but it is hoped that the local authorities will be able to deal with it. In Mozufferpore, if no rain falls to revive the rabi crop, there will be considerable distress in parts two months hence. In Durbhanga there will undoubtedly be distress later on, but not severe, so far as can be judged at present. In these two districts also the distress is likely to be capable of being dealt with locally. The reports from Patna are generally of an assuring character, and a downfall within the next few days will considerably improve the prospects and dispel all fear of scarcity. There is no cause for anxiety about Sarun and Chumparun. In Monghyr it is expected that the former estimate of 2 annas for the winter rice crop will be exceeded, and the prospects of the rabi crop are still good. In Purneah prices are still easier, and there is every expectation of an eight-anna to twelve-anna rabi crop even if no rain falls. Bhagulpore reports that the paddy crop in the north has yielded 4 to 5 annas, and that the rabi prospects are more unfavourable. In Jalpaiguri the failure of the winter rice is now supposed to be greater than was formerly reported. In Dinagepur and Rungpore the situation is reported to be practically unchanged. There is no fear of distress in the latter district except in a few villages in thana Kurigram.

North-Western Provinces and Oudh.—For week ending 13th January.—Cloudy weather, with slight showers in a few districts. Rain much needed for unirrigated crops. Rabi prospects continue good. Prices generally steady.

Punjab.—For week ending 13th January.—Slight rain has fallen in all but five districts. Prices rising in three districts; stationary elsewhere. Cotton-picking still going on in Mooltan; weeding for rape in progress throughout the province. Condition and prospects of standing crops are generally reported average. Rain is urgently wanted throughout the province for standing rabi crops which are suffering for want of it; recent slight rain has done some good to the crops in Sialkote. Condition of cattle is reported poor in one district; they are suffering for want of grass in two others; elsewhere their condition is fair. Fodder scarce in six districts; below average in one and sufficient elsewhere.

Central Provinces.—For week ending 13th January.—Weather cloudy in northern and eastern districts, with very slight fall of rain in Saugor; elsewhere clear and cool. Threshings of rice and juar and picking of cotton continue. Prospects of winter crops unchanged. Linseed in flower. Cattle in good condition. In some districts prices rising, while in others they are unchanged.

Burma.—For week ending 9th January.—LOWER BURMA: Reaping in progress and approaching completion. In Thayetmyo sowing of dry-weather crops begun in parts of the district. Crop prospects are on the whole good. The area under paddy in the ten chief rice-producing districts is estimated at 4,107,562 acres, being 191,374 acres more than the actuals of the previous year. UPPER BURMA: Bhamo—reaping of wet-weather paddy in progress and sowing for dry-weather paddy begun. Katha—reaping in progress. Shwebo—dry-weather paddy cultivation progressing, reaping of wet-weather paddy nearly completed. Ye-u—dry-weather paddy cultivation progressing. Sagaing—in Sagaing sub-division crops have been reaped; in Sadaung township dry-weather paddy, peas, onions, chillies, wheat, and gram are progressing; in Myinmu sub-division sesamum and millet have been reaped. In Ava sub-division paddy, sesamum, and millet are being reaped, dry-weather paddy and peas progressing. Upper Chindwin—reaping of wet-weather paddy nearly completed, planting of dry-weather paddy in progress. Lower Chindwin—sowing of pulses completed in eastern sub-division, and reaping of jowar and sesamum in progress; crops on reaping have turned out much below estimate, many ears of corn being empty and grain light: in western sub-division reaping of paddy, jowar, and sesamum in progress. Standing crops are bad in eastern sub-division; in western sub-division standing crops of onions, peas, and wheat are fair. Myingyan—early sesamum being reaped. In Pagan late sesamum and bean crops in flower in Sate. Pakokku—sowing of tobacco completed in Seikpyu, paddy reaping commenced. Minbu—millet is being reaped. Magwe—reaping in progress, outturn of millet and jowar fair, and of paddy poor. Kyaukse—wet-weather paddy is being reaped, estimated yield sixteen-anna crop; sowing of dry-weather paddy progressing. Meiktila—paddy and jowar being reaped and coming into market in increasing quantities; gram and wheat in excellent condition; cultivation of wheat still continues in parts. Yamethin—reaping progressing. Pyinmana—reaping and threshing going on. Price of paddy has fallen slightly at Bassein and Minbu and considerably at Thayetmyo, Shwebo, Magwe, Meiktila, and Pyinmana; it has increased slightly at Prome, Amherst, Tavoy, and Pakokku, and considerably at Katha. Numbers on relief works:—Ye-u 6,723; Sagaing 1,324; Lower Chindwin 1,678; Myingyan 2,639; Minbu 1,137; Meiktila 2,581; Yamethin 3,451; Magwe and Shwebo not reported.

Assam.—For week ending 13th January.—Slight rain has fallen in some districts. Weather cold and seasonable. Reaping of late rice generally finished. Tea season closed, but pruning still continues in Sylhet and Darrang. Fodder and water sufficient except in Golaghat and some parts of the hill districts. Cattle generally in good condition.

Mysore and Coorg.—For week ending 13th January.—No rain in Mysore and consequently no improvement in prospects. Water and fodder decreasing. Prices risen in three districts.

Reaping of rice crop continues in Coorg. Coffee-picking nearly completed. Slight rise in prices of food-grains. Forage and water-supply for cattle sufficient.

Berar and Hyderabad.—For week ending 13th January.—Weather fair and cool in Berar. Cotton-picking continues; threshing of jowari in progress. Rabi crops not in good condition in three districts. Fodder insufficient in one taluk and water in another. Cattle healthy. Prices almost steady.

No rain in Hyderabad during week. Harvesting of abi crops continues. Sowing of tabi crops commenced. Rabi crops are at present in fair condition. Fodder for cattle in almost all the talukas is becoming scarce; in the Ambarpett taluk scarcity of water for cattle has commenced to be felt. Prices:—wheat 8½, coarse rice 8, white juar 12½; yellow juar 13½, and tur 11¼ seers per current rupee.

Central India.—For week ending 13th January.—Moderate rain in Gwalior during week. Prices of food-grains steady in Goona and high in Nimach. No other changes since last report.

Rajputana.—For week ending 13th January.—Agricultural operations satisfactory generally; in Kherwara only one-fourth of usual area of wheat cultivated; in Ajmere one-third area rabi cultivated, but it is doubtful if the crops will mature though prospects are not bad at present. Rabi sowing progressing in Meywar. Standing crops in good condition generally, but rain wanted in Dholepore. Water very scarce in Kherwara. Good harvests in Sirohi and Bhurtpore, average in Dholepore where the crops are partly damaged by frost. Cattle dying in Merwara of starvation; very poor in Kherwara; suffering in Marwar and parts of Bikanir; satisfactory elsewhere. Pasturage or fodder scarce in six States, and at Ajmere, Kherwara, and parts of Harowtee. Prices steady in nine States and at Kherwara and Ajmere; rising in two and fluctuating in one. Five hundred and sixty-six immigrants and 480 cattle in Kotah; 75 persons emigrated from Marwar during the week; 4,251 persons employed on relief works in Marwar and 1,771 gratuitously treated; about 9,931 men employed on relief works in Ajmere and daily average of 8,517 in Merwara, and 1,322 gratuitously treated; 2,400 persons employed on relief works in Bikanir State and 623 gratuitously treated; 2,750 persons on relief works in Jeypore State.

Nepal.—For week ending 7th January.—No rain.

E. C. BUCK,
Secretary to the Government of India.

One "seer" is equal to 80 tolas, and one "maund" is equal to 40 seers.

---

Rules for the control of the manufacture, conversion, possession and sale of arms, ammunition and sulphur in the cantonment of Secunderabad.

Manufacture, sale and storage.

1. No person shall manufacture, convert or sell, or keep, offer, or expose for sale, any arms or ammunition, except under a license granted under these rules.

Nothing herein contained shall prevent any person from selling any arms or ammunition which he lawfully possesses for his own private use to any person who is not prohibited from possessing the same.

Licenses to manufacture, sell or keep.

2. Licenses to manufacture, convert and sell, or to keep and sell arms or ammunition may be granted by the Cantonment Magistrate. They shall be in forms I and II appended to these rules. The fee payable in stamps shall be Rs. 20 in respect of licenses to manufacture, convert and sell, and Rs. 10 in respect of licenses to keep and sell.

License to manufacture, sell or keep sulphur.

3. No person shall manufacture or keep in his possession more than one maund of sulphur, or sell more than ten seers of sulphur at a time except under and to the extent and subject to the conditions provided by a license issued by the Cantonment Magistrate. Such licenses may be issued on plain paper in form III appended to these rules.

Register of stock.

4. Every license-holder under rules 2 and 3 shall keep a register of stock in the form IV appended to these rules, and shall show in it correctly all receipts and all sales of arms, ammunition, or sulphur in his possession. He shall exhibit this register when called upon to do so to any Magistrate or to any police officer not below the rank of an Inspector.

Inspection of premises.

5. Any Magistrate or police officer not below the rank of an Inspector may at all reasonable times enter and inspect the premises of any person licensed to manufacture, convert, sell or keep arms, ammunition, or sulphur under these rules, and every such person shall be bound to exhibit the entire stock of arms, ammunition, or sulphur in his possession or under his control.

Board to be affixed to shops of licensed vendors.

6. Every person licensed to manufacture, convert, or sell arms, ammunition, or sulphur under these rules shall affix a board on a conspicuous part of his shop or usual place of business, and shall cause to be painted thereon in large letters, in English and Urdu, his name and the words "Licensed to manutacture" or "Licensed to deal in arms, ammunition, and sulphur."

Revocation of license.

7. The Cantonment Magistrate may, for reasons to be recorded in writing, cancel or suspend the license of any vendor or manufacturer.

Penalties.

8. Whoever commits any of the following offences (namely) :—

(1) Manufactures, converts, or sells, or keeps, offers or exposes for sale, any arms or ammunition in contravention of the provisions of rule 1, or

(2) intentionally makes a false entry in the stock register, which by rule 4 he is required to keep, or

(3) intentionally fails to exhibit anything which by rule 5 he is required to exhibit, or to keep such board affixed as required by rule 6, shall be liable to imprisonment for a term which may extend to three years, or to fine which may extend to five hundred rupees, or to both.

9. Whoever, without a license from the Cantonment Magistrate, manufactures or keeps on his premises more than one maund of sulphur, or sells or agrees to sell to any person more than 10 seers of sulphur in contravention of rule 3, shall be liable to imprisonment for a term which may extend to six months, or to fine which may extend to five hundred rupees, or to both.

Sulphur.

10. Any person violating any of these rules, for the violation of which no other penalty is provided by these rules, shall be liable to imprisonment for a term which may extend to one month, or to fine which may extend to two hundred rupees, or to both.

Unspecified penalties.

11. Whenever the Cantonment Magistrate has reason to believe that any unlicensed person has in his possession for sale arms or ammunition, or is keeping upon his premises without permission more than one maund of sulphur, he may, after recording in writing the grounds of his belief, cause a search to be made of the house or premises in which he believes such arms, ammunition, or sulphur are, and, if found, may seize and confiscate them.

Search of suspected premises.

12. When any person is convicted of an offence punishable under these rules committed by him in respect of any arms, ammunition, or sulphur, it shall be in the discretion of the convicting Court further to direct that the whole or any portion of such arms, ammunition, or sulphur shall be confiscated.

Confiscation.

13. The orders of the Resident at Hyderabad shall be taken regarding the disposal of all articles confiscated under these rules and such orders shall be final.

Disposal of confiscated property.

14.(a) The Cantonment Magistrate may award up to one-half of the amount of all fines inflicted under these rules, and up to one-half of the sale price of any confiscated articles sold under these rules to any one who has given information leading to a conviction.

Rewards.

(b) Cases in which it may appear to the convicting Court desirable to award a reward, but in which no fine has been imposed, or in which the convicting Court is of opinion that the reward ought to be larger than is provided for in sub-section (a), shall be submitted for the orders of the Resident.

184. (1) The owner or occupier of every place within the limits of the Civil and Military Station of Bangalore used for any of the following purposes, namely:—

melting tallow;
boiling bones, offal, or blood; or as a soap-house, oil boiling house, dyeing house, or tannery; or as a brick kiln pottery or lime kiln; or as a manufactory of ærated waters; or as any manufactory or place of business from which offensive or unwholesome smells arise; or as a yard or depôt for trade in hay, straw, thatching grass, wood, or coal, or any dangerously inflammable material; or as a store-house for kerosine, petroleum, naphtha, or any inflammable oil, spirit, or explosive substance; shall register the same in a book to be kept by the Commissioners for the purpose.

(2) No place shall be newly used for any of the said purposes except under a license from the President which shall be renewable annually.

(3) The license shall not be withheld unless the President considers that the business which it is intended to establish or maintain would be offensive or dangerous to persons residing in or frequenting the immediate neighbourhood or having directly or indirectly dealings with the person or persons conducting the business.

(4) The President may charge fees for such licenses, and may impose such conditions in respect thereof as the Commissioners may think necessary.

(5) Whoever, without such registration or without a license, uses any place for any such purpose shall be punishable with fine which may extend to fifty rupees, and with further fine not exceeding ten rupees for every day during which the offence is continued after he has been convicted of such offence.

Power to prohibit such trades.

185. (1) If it be shown to the satisfaction of the President that any place registered or licensed under the last preceding section is a nuisance to the neighbourhood or likely to be dangerous to life, health, or property, or that the trade carried on therein is carried on under conditions injurious, or likely to be injurious to the public health, he may, by notice, require the occupier thereof to discontinue the use of the place, or to use it in such manner as will, in his opinion, render it no longer a nuisance or dangerous.

(2) Whoever, after such notice has been given, uses the place or permits it to be used in such a manner as to be a nuisance to the neighbourhood or dangerous, shall be punishable with fine which may extend to two hundred rupees, and with further fine not exceeding forty rupees for every day during which the offence is continued after he has been convicted of such offence.

Saving of places already licensed or registered.

186. Subject to the provisions of the last preceding section, places of the nature described in section 184 already licensed or registered under these Regulations shall be deemed to have been licensed or registered under section 184.

REVENUE DEPARTMENT.

[Revised Advertisement.]

A Dictionary of the Economic Products of India.

BY DR. GEO. WATT, C.I.E.,

Reporter on Economic Products.

Published under the authority of the Government of India in the Revenue and Agricultural Department.

The first five volumes of the Dictionary are now ready at the Office of Superintendent of Government Printing, No. 8, Hastings Street, Calcutta, and will be supplied to non-subscribers on receipt of the price for the complete set, which is R45 in India, and 3 guineas in England (exclusive of the Index, for which a separate charge will be made): packing and postage, in India, 8 annas per volume; for England, 2 rupees 6 annas per volume. For copies bound in half calf or half morocco, R6 and 8 shillings respectively will be charged extra for the whole set.

The Dictionary is intended to deal with the products of India—animal, vegetable, and mineral; each product being treated after a uniform plan, the paragraphs of which give the scientific, vernacular, and European names; habitat or source; history; properties and uses (both chemical and industrial); trade statistics; markets, etc. The work is arranged alphabetically according to scientific nomenclature, but commercial and important vernacular names are also given as cross references, so that little difficulty need be experienced in finding the account of a product even when its scientific name is unknown to the reader.

An important feature of the Dictionary consists in the fact that derived information is in every instance given under quotation marks, and with a reference to the original publication. Numerous contributors have, however, furnished the results of new discoveries, and confirmed the vernacular names, so that the Dictionary is not only a complete compilation of published information, but has been brought abreast of the most recent inventions and discoveries.

Volume I contains the letters A and B, and consists of 559 royal octavo pages; Volume II embraces the letter C in 689 pages; Volume III contains the letters D, E, F, and half of G; Volume IV, latter half of G to middle of L, and Volume V contains the latter half of L to end of O. The whole work will, it is expected, be completed in seven volumes during the current year, but an eighth volume may also be issued, consisting of an Index to all the vernacular and other names contained in the Dictionary. The Index will practically be a glossary of the vernacular and European names of the plants, animals, and minerals of India, and, as such, will be a work of reference, which, it is hoped, may prove of considerable value.

Bills introduced into the Council of the Governor General of India for making Laws and Regulations, or Reports of Select Committees presented to the Council.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

The following Bill was introduced into the Council of the Governor General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 16th January, 1892:—

No. 1 OF 1892.

A Bill to amend the Indian Tariff Act, 1882.

WHEREAS it is expedient to amend the Indian Tariff Act, 1882; It is hereby enacted as follows:— XI of 1882.

Commencement.

1. This Act shall be deemed to have come into force on the fifteenth day of January, 1892.

Substitution of new clause for clause (a) in section 5, Act XI of 1882.

2. For clause (a) in section 5 of the Indian Tariff Act, 1882, the following shall be substituted, namely:— XI of 1882.

"(a) Foreign European Settlements bordering on any part of the territories administered by the Governor of Fort St. George in Council or by the Governor of Bombay in Council."

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

THE Treaty of 1880 between the Governments of the United Kingdom and of Portugal in respect of the Indian possessions of the latter country established amongst other things a Customs Union between British India and Portuguese India. Following on the establishment of this Customs Union, the provision in the Tariff Act which empowered the Government to levy Customs duties on goods imported from and exported to Portuguese India was repealed, that territory being treated for Customs purposes as British Indian.

It was considered desirable to modify the engagements undertaken by the Government of India under the Treaty, but negotiations for the revision of the Treaty have failed and it has been decided not to renew it. The Treaty came to an end on the 14th January, and it becomes necessary now again to treat Portuguese India as foreign territory with effect from the 15th idem. This Bill accordingly is framed to authorise the levy of duties of Customs on goods passing by land out of or into foreign European Settlements bordering on any part of the territories administered by the Governor of Bombay in Council.

The following Bill was introduced in the Council of the Governor General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 16th January, 1892 :—

No. 2 OF 1892.

A Bill to amend the Rangoon Port Commissioners Act, 1879.

XV of 1879. WHEREAS it is expedient to amend the Rangoon Port Commissioners Act, 1879; It is hereby enacted as follows :—

Addition to section 60, clauses (d) and (e), Act XV of 1879.

XV of 1879. 1. (1) To section 60, clause (d), of the Rangoon Port Commissioners Act, 1879, the following proviso shall be added, namely :—

"but no Commissioner who is prohibited as hereinafter provided from voting or taking part in any proceedings shall be counted in the quorum so far as regards such proceedings."

(2) To section 60, clause (e), of the said Act, the following proviso shall be added, namely :—

"Provided that no Commissioner shall vote or take part in any proceedings relating to any work or contract in which he is pecuniarily interested."

Substitution of new section for section 71, Act XV of 1879.

2. For section 71 of the said Act the following shall be substituted, namely :—

Commissioners, &c., not to be interested in contracts, &c.

"71. (1) Any officer or servant of the Commissioners who shall directly or indirectly lend money to the Commissioners, or become pecuniarily interested in any contract made by, or on behalf of, the Commissioners, or participate or agree to participate in any profits of any work done by order or on behalf of the Commissioners, shall forfeit his office or employment, and shall thenceforward be incapable of holding any office or employment under the Commissioners, and shall further be punishable with fine which may extend to five hundred rupees.

(2) Any Commissioner who, without the previous sanction, in writing, of the Local Government, shall directly or indirectly lend money to the Commissioners, or become pecuniarily interested in any contract made by, or on behalf of, the Commissioners, or participate or agree to participate in any profits of any work done by order or on behalf of Commissioners, and any Commissioner who shall vote or take part in any proceedings relating to any contract or work in which he is pecuniarily interested, shall forfeit his office as Commissioner, and shall be incapable of re-appointment, and shall be punishable with fine which may extend to five hundred rupees:

Provided that nothing in this section shall apply to any Commissioner or officer or servant of the Commissioners by reason only of his—

(a) being a shareholder in or member of any incorporated or registered company which may lend money to, or make contracts with, or do work for or on behalf of, the Commissioners; or

(b) holding one or more debentures in any loan raised by the Commissioners in open market."

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

Act XV of 1879.

BY section 71 of the Rangoon Port Commissioners Act, 1879, it is provided that "any Commissioner or servant of the Commissioners who directly or indirectly lends money to the Commissioners, or becomes interested in any contract made by, or on behalf of, the Commissioners, or participates or agrees to participate in any profits of any work done by order or on behalf of the Commissioners, shall forfeit his office or employment" and be liable to various penalties. The only exception recognized by the law is in favour of shareholders in incorporated or registered companies.

From inquiries made, it appears that for several years past certain firms who are represented on the Port Commission have done work for, or supplied goods to, the Port Commissioners; and there can be no doubt that if the representatives of those firms were at the time partners in the firms, or otherwise interested in the profits of the firms' business, they unwittingly infringed the law.

Owing to the narrowness of the area of selection for Commissionerships, it is impossible to dispense with the services of persons connected with shipping and commerce, and it would be disadvantageous in the interests of the port to exclude the shipping and commercial firms to which such persons belong from Port Commission contracts. In many cases the Commission would have to satisfy its requirements from outside Rangoon, because within the town the only source of supply was closed by law. In other cases rates would be unduly raised owing to the knowledge that competition was prevented by the same cause.

The present Bill proposes to extend to the Port Commission provisions similar to those contained in section 17 of the Calcutta Port Act, 1890, and in section 37 of the Lower Burma Municipal Act, 1884; and to allow Port Commissioners, with the sanction of the Local Government, to tender for Port Commission contracts. A proviso has, however, been added that no Commissioner shall vote or take part in any proceedings relating to such contracts.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

The following Report of the Select Committee on the Bill to validate certain marriages solemnized under Part VI of the Indian Christian Marriage Act, 1872, was presented to the Council of the Governor-General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 16th January, 1892 :—

WE, the undersigned, Members of the Select Committee to which the Bill to validate certain marriages solemnized under Part VI of the Indian Christian Marriage Act, 1872, was referred, have considered the Bill and the papers noted in the margin, and have now the honour to submit this our Report, with the Bill as amended by us annexed thereto.

From Secretary for Berar to Resident, Hyderabad, No. 245, dated 8th August, 1891 [Paper No. 1].
From Secretary to Chief Commissioner, Coorg, No 1339--114-91, dated 18th August, 1891 [Paper No 2].
From Chief Commissioner, Ajmere-Merwara, No. 983, dated 25th August, 1891, and enclosure [Papers No. 3]
From Officiating Governor General's Agent in Baluchistan, No. 3550, dated 25th August, 1891 [Paper No. 4].
From Under-Secretary to Chief Commissioner, Central Provinces, No. 6206-- 545, dated 27th August, 1891, and enclosure [Papers No. 5].
From Registrar, High Court, Calcutta, No. 2335, dated 31st August, 1891 [Paper No 6].
From Chief Secretary to Government, Madras, No. 1662 Judicial, dated 22nd August, 1891, and enclosures [Papers No. 7].
From Officiating Junior Secretary to Government, Punjab, No. 844, dated 31st August, 1891, and enclosures [Papers No 8].
From Junior Secretary to Chief Commissioner, Burma, No. 918 --19-E. E., dated 31st August, 1891, and enclosure [Papers No. 9].
From Secretary to Government, Bombay, No. 69, dated 4th September, 1891, and enclosures [Papers No 10].
From Chief Secretary to Government, North-Western Provinces and Oudh, No. 1425, dated 10th September, 1891 and enclosures [Papers No 11].
From Officiating Secretary to Government, Bengal, No. 146-T. G., dated 6th September, 1891, and enclosures [Papers No. 12].
From Secretary to Chief Commissioner, Assam, No. 2779-J., dated 11th September, 1891, and enclosures [Papers No 13].

2. Section 3.—This section as originally drafted proposed to validate all marriages of the kind referred to which may be solemnized within three months after the commencement of the Act. We have omitted this provision as we understand that the attention of all Local Governments has already been drawn by the Government of India to the requirements of the law, and that all persons licensed under section 9 of the Indian Christian Marriage Act, 1872, must by this time have been informed how the law really stands. We think therefore that any further extension of time is unnecessary, and might be mischievous.

XV of 1872.

3. We have at the same time inserted a provision that the validation contemplated by section 3 shall not apply to (1) marriages already judicially declared to be void, or to (2) cases in which, subsequent to the solemnization of any such invalid marriage, and before the commencement of this Act, one of the parties has contracted a valid marriage. The equity of these additional provisions is obvious.

4. In one of the opinions on the Bill which have been referred to us we find that it has been stated by certain clergymen in Allahabad that "the consensus of Christendom and the rule of the English Church do not admit the validity of a marriage between a person baptised and a person unbaptised"; and that should any Christian who has entered into such a union desire to forsake it they would encourage him to do so; and that if he wished subsequently "to enter upon a Christian marriage valid before the Church" they would, if there were no special reasons for refusing, solemnize it notwithstanding secular sanction to the previous union. The Committee cannot of course presume to offer these gentlemen advice, but we deem it our duty to warn them that by such action they will apparently render themselves liable to a prosecution for abetment of an offence under Chapter XX of the Indian Penal Code.

A Bill to validate certain marriages solemnised under Part VI of the Indian Christian Marriage Act, 1872.

WHEREAS provision is made in Part VI of the XV of 1872. Indian Christian Marriage Act, 1872, for the solemnization of marriages between persons of whom both are Native Christians, but not of marriages between persons of whom one only is a Native Christian;

And whereas persons licensed under section 9 of the said Act have in divers parts of British India, through ignorance of the law, permitted marriages to be solemnized in their presence under the said Part between persons of whom one is a Native Christian and the other is not a Native Christian;

And whereas it is expedient that such marriages, having been solemnized in good faith, should be validated;

It is hereby enacted as follows:—

Commencement.

1. This Act shall come into force at once.

Definition.

2. In this Act the expression "Native Christian" has the same meaning as in the Indian Christian Marriage Act, 1872. XV of 1872.

Validation of irregular marriages.

3. All marriages which have already been solemnized under Part VI of the Indian Christian Marriage Act, 1872, between persons of whom one only was a Native Christian, shall be as good and valid in law as if such marriages had been solemnized between persons of whom both were Native Christians: XV of 1872.

Provided that nothing in this section shall apply to any marriage which has been judicially declared to be null and void, or to any case where either of the parties has, since the solemnization of such marriage and prior to the commencement of this Act, contracted a valid marriage.

Validation of records of irregular marriages.

4. Certificates of marriages which are declared by the last foregoing section to be good and valid in law, and register-books, and certified copies of true and duly authenticated extracts therefrom, deposited in compliance with the law for the time being in force, in so far as the register-books and extracts relate to such marriages as aforesaid, shall be received as evidence of such marriages as if such marriages had been solemnized between persons of whom both were Native Christians.

Application of Act to marriages under Act V of 1865.

5. References in this Act to the Indian Christian Marriage Act, 1872, shall, so far as may be requisite, be construed as applying also to the corresponding portions of the Indian Marriage Act, 1865. XV of 1872. V of 1865.

Penalty for solemnizing irregular marriages.

6. If any person licensed under section 9 of the said Act to grant certificates of marriage between Native Christians shall at any time after the commencement of this Act solemnize or affect to solemnize any marriage under Part VI of the said Act or grant any such certificate as therein mentioned, knowing that one of the parties to such marriage or affected marriage was at the date of such solemnization not a Christian, he shall be liable to have his license cancelled, and in addition thereto he shall be deemed to have been guilty of an offence prohibited by section 73 of the said Act, and shall be punishable accordingly.

INDIAN BANKRUPTCY BILL.

The Hon'ble SIR ALEXANDER MILLER moved that the Hon'ble Mr. Nugent, the Hon'ble Mr. Woodburn and the Hon'ble Dr. Rash Behari Ghose be added to the Select Committee on the Bill to amend and consolidate the Law of Bankruptcy and Insolvency in British India.

The Motion was put and agreed to.

BILL TO VALIDATE CERTAIN CHRISTIAN MARRIAGES.

The Hon'ble SIR ALEXANDER MILLER also presented the Report of the Select Committee on the Bill to validate certain marriages solemnized under Part VI of the Indian Christian Marriage Act, 1872. He said that he understood the practice to be that any observations which he had to make on the subject should be reserved until the Report was taken into consideration.

MADRAS SMALL CAUSE COURT BILL.

The Hon'ble SIR PHILIP HUTCHINS moved that the Hon'ble Mr. Bliss, the Hon'ble Mr. Evans, the Hon'ble Dr. Rash Behari Ghose and the Hon'ble P. Chentsal Rao be added to the Select Committee on the Bill to extend the jurisdiction of the Court of Small Causes of Madras, and that the Committee be instructed to report within a fortnight. He said :—

"The motion for a Committee to consider a Bill is usually a mere matter of form, but on the present occasion I ask Your Excellency, before putting the formal question, to allow me to make a short statement, as I shall invite the Select Committee to consider some alternative proposals and I am anxious to let the people of Madras know at once how far I think it possible to meet the wishes which they have expressed.

"Hon'ble Members are probably aware that the original Bill has not been received at Madras with that universal approval which I anticipated. I think it would not be difficult to answer most of the objections raised to it, but I desire to avoid unnecessary controversy, and I would rather place emphasis on the fact that every one seems to agree in the fundamental proposition on which the Bill rests, viz., that it is desirable to relieve the High Court of original civil suits of small value arising within the city of Madras. The third and principal Resolution adopted at a public meeting which was held in Madras on the 4th of September last was to the effect 'that there do exist a hardship and a practical denial of justice to a not insignificant portion of the inhabitants of this city under the present system of judicial administration in the presidency-town' which call for an early remedy. It was to meet this hardship and this practical denial of justice that I proposed to establish a regular side of the Small Cause Court, so that on the most essential point, and I think I may say on the only essential point, I may claim to have rightly gauged the popular sentiment.

"But the same Resolution went on to declare 'that the proper remedy should be sought in the creation of a new tribunal, presided over by Judges selected from the legal profession, and having regular jurisdiction to try suits up to R2,500.' I will not stop to enquire how far this opposition to making the new Court a part and parcel of the Small Cause Court has sprung from the fact, which I mentioned in my former speech, that the Judge of the new Court would have to be an Advocate and not a member of any other branch of the legal profession; for I myself would greatly prefer that Vakils as well as Advocates should be eligible for the new appointment. That, however, is not the ostensible ground of the opposition to a regular side of the Small Cause Court. It is said that the regular suits will interfere with the summary jurisdiction, which undoubtedly is the primary work of a Court of Small Causes. I cannot for a moment admit the soundness of this objection. The opinions of most authorities best qualified to form one are that there would be no such interference, and it appears to me that the objection is really based on a misapprehension. I will not, however, pursue this subject further, because I am personally quite willing to accept the alternative of a separate Court upon one condition—a condition which is not likely to be objected to—and that is that the Judge or Judges shall be ex officio Judges of the Small Cause Court also, and shall devote their spare time to helping to dispose of claims instituted in that Court. I have already explained how impossible it is to foresee how much business will be attracted to the new Court: it may fall very far short of what even a single Judge can cope with; or it may prove too much for one, but not enough for two.

"I am the more ready to accede to this alternative, because it would greatly simplify the drafting of the Bill and obviate all possibility of question as to how far, if at all, the Court is to be governed by the procedure prescribed by Act XV of 1882. The new Court would obviously be, as I intended the regular side of the Small Cause Court to be, absolutely distinct and separate from the Court of summary jurisdiction. As to procedure, it would be governed exclusively by the Code of Civil Procedure, and in common with all other Courts (not specially excepted like the Small Cause Court) it would be subject to the Court-fees Act and other enactments of general application.

"So much for the main point. Now, as to the pecuniary limit of jurisdiction. It was originally intended that this should be Rs. 2,500, but in view of the proposal (contrary to my own expressed opinion, in which I am glad to find most of the Madras authorities agree) that the High Court should retain a concurrent jurisdiction, I set down Rs. 5,000 in the Bill as introduced. This was always intended to be a tentative figure and open to revision, but I take it that if a distinct Court is created the concurrent jurisdiction of the High Court will cease under the operation of section 15 of the Code, and it is therefore unnecessary to consider the matter further. I revert as a matter of course to the original proposal.

"In the Bill as introduced I proposed to empower the Local Government, with the previous sanction of Your Excellency in Council, to extend the new Court's jurisdiction to a higher limit. I was careful to explain that such sanction would only be accorded if the High Court agreed, and I would readily consent to make the concurrence of the Hon'ble the Judges a statutory condition. It will be for the Select Committee to decide whether there shall be a clause permitting the extension of the jurisdiction up to (say) Rs. 5,000 when the High Court, the Local Government and the Government of India all agree, or whether such extension by notification is so radically bad or otherwise objectionable that it is better not to permit it at all. I have already stated the arguments in favour of such a provision; it is not one for which I should be inclined to press with any persistence.

"It seems hardly necessary for me to say that none of my proposals will, in any way, trench on the independence of the High Court. Their Lordships the Judges will be relieved of the necessity of dealing with the petty cases which fall within the cognizance of the new Court, but they will have full power to call up such suits to their own file, and I have already expressed a hope that this power may be freely exercised, at all events at the commencement.

"I ask that it be an instruction to the Committee to submit its report within a fortnight, but it must not be supposed that I wish the Bill to be rushed through the Council. I have no intention of bringing it on for final consideration before about the middle of March. My object is simply that the people interested may have the longest possible notice of the Committee's decision as to the alternative proposals which will be laid before it."

The Hon'ble RAJA UDAI PARTAB SINGH OF BHINGA said:—

"After what has already been said about the Bill before the Council, a lengthy reference from me would be superfluous. I would, however, remark that the Allahabad High Court having no original jurisdiction, the somewhat alarming note that is sounded in the reference to the introduction of the 'thin end of the wedge' has little or no application to the people of the United Provinces. As regards Madras, the papers before the Council clearly show that the residents of the town itself want some such relief as is provided in this Bill. But at the same time I venture to submit that the objections to the proposal of raising the pecuniary limit, vesting in the Local Government the power to raise it still higher without having recourse to legislation or reference to the High Court, and the increase of court-fees under the proposed changes, appear to be weighty and deserving of careful consideration."

The Hon'ble SIR PHILIP HUTCHINS said that as the Raja of Bhinga had given some attention to the subject and appeared to take an interest in it, he would propose that his name should be added to the Select Committee.

The Motion that the Hon'ble Mr. Bliss, the Hon'ble Mr. Evans, the Hon'ble Raja Udai Partab Singh of Bhinga, the Hon'ble Dr. Rash Behari Ghose and the Hon'ble P. Chentsal Rao be added to the Select Committee on the Bill, and that the Committee be instructed to submit its report within a fortnight, was then put and agreed to.

RANGOON PORT COMMISSIONERS' ACT, 1879, AMENDMENT BILL.

The Hon'ble MR. BLISS moved for leave to introduce a Bill to amend the Rangoon Port Commissioners' Act, 1879. He said:—

"The reasons which have rendered the introduction of this Bill advisable are fully set out in the Statement of Objects and Reasons attached to the Bill. Briefly they are, that inconvenience has in practice been found to arise from the provision in section 71 of the existing Act that no Commissioner shall directly or indirectly lend money to the Commissioners or be interested in any contract made by, or on behalf of, the Commissioners. Rangoon is a comparatively small place, and if all the firms to which different members of the Port Commission belong are to be prohibited from accepting contracts from, and from carrying out works on account of, the Port Commission, it will be difficult to get certain works carried out economically and efficiently, or perhaps at all. On the other hand, if all gentlemen whose firms are capable and desirous of executing works for the Port Commission are to be compelled to decline to serve on the Commission, in order to enable their firms to do business with it, the interests of the port will suffer by the absence from the Commission of the very persons whose services on it will be most valuable. It is, therefore, proposed to amend the law by granting permission to members of the Port Commission to tender for and carry out Port Commission works, with the previous sanction in writing of the Local Government, and by the simultaneous addition of a proviso that no Port Commissioner shall vote or take any part in any proceedings relating to any such tender or contract. The law will thus be assimilated to those which regulate in this respect the administration of the port of Calcutta and of the municipalities in Lower Burma."

The Motion was put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble MR. BLISS also introduced the Bill.

The Hon'ble MR. BLISS also moved that the Bill and Statement of Objects and Reasons be published in the Gazette of India in English, and in the Burma Gazette in English and in such other languages as the Local Administration thinks fit.

The Motion was put and agreed to.

INDIAN TARIFF ACT, 1882, AMENDMENT BILL.

The Hon'ble SIR DAVID BARBOUR moved for leave to introduce a Bill to amend the Indian Tariff Act, 1882. He said:—

"The amendment which I propose is very simple. Under section 5 of the Act of 1882 power is taken to impose customs-duties in accordance with the existing tariff on goods passing by land out of or into foreign European settlements situated on the line of coast within the limits of the Presidency of Fort St. George. This provision is necessary in order to prevent advantage being taken of the existence of these settlements for the purpose of evading payment of the customs-duties of British India. But no similar provision exists with regard to foreign settlements situated within the limits of the Presidency of Bombay, and the cause of this difference is that, at the time the Act of 1882 was passed, we had a treaty with Portugal which established a sort of customs-union between British India and Portuguese India. This treaty was considered to be in more than one respect disadvantageous to the interests of British India, and, as the efforts made to effect suitable modifications of it have unfortunately failed, the treaty has come to an end, and it becomes necessary to make such alteration of the law as shall prevent advantage being taken of the Portuguese settlements on the West Coast for the purpose of evading payment of our customs-duties. With this object provision is made in the Bill, which I propose to introduce, for the levy of customs-duties at the prescribed rates on goods passing by land into or out of foreign European settlements bordering on any part of the territories administered by the Governor of Bombay in Council, thus applying to Bombay the provisions which already exist in the case of Madras."

The Motion was put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble SIR DAVID BARBOUR also introduced the Bill. He said that, as it was necessary, in order to prevent evasions of the payment of customs-duties, that the proposed amendment of the law should come into force immediately, he would ask His Excellency to suspend the Rules for the Conduct of Business, so that the Bill might be passed at the present meeting of the Council. He might also mention that, owing to the adjournment of the Council yesterday, it was necessary to provide in the Bill that the alteration in the law should have effect from the 15th January.

THE PRESIDENT declared the Rules to be suspended.

The Hon'ble SIR DAVID BARBOUR moved that the Bill be taken into consideration.

The Motion was put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble SIR DAVID BARBOUR then moved that the Bill be passed.

The Motion was put and agreed to.

The Council adjourned to Friday, the 29th January, 1892.

REVENUE AND AGRICULTURAL DEPARTMENT.

Weather Review of India for the week ending at 8 a.m. on Saturday, January 9th, 1892.

Conditions in the North-west have been somewhat less settled, though the depressions and the unsettled weather have been of much less intensity than is ordinarily the case at this season of the year. From the 3rd to the 5th the anti-cyclonic conditions, which have prevailed so continuously since the setting in of the cold weather, were maintained, and pressure decreased from a high-pressure area in the North-west to a low-pressure area in the extreme south, the winds being anticyclonic and the weather fine and warm. On the 6th, however, a small low-pressure area which had advanced from the westward was shown over the Central Punjab. The winds in North-West India exhibited a feeble indraught towards the low-pressure area, a fall of 1 inch (?) of rain was reported from Khushab, and light showers had fallen at Simla and Ludhiana; these showers extended during the day to Meerut and Roorkee. By the morning of the 7th the depression had entirely disappeared, and the former anticyclonic distribution was re-established. On the 8th, though the general features of the distribution were unchanged, i. e., the highest pressures were shown in the extreme north-west, the winds on the North-west Himalaya and in Rajputana and the Southern Punjab indicated the presence of another depression, and on the 9th the chart showed a well-marked, though very slight, depression over the western desert. Cyclonic winds prevailed over the greater part of North-West India, and showers were reported from Srinagar, Murree,Khushab Rawalpindi, Sialkote, Lahore, Ludhiana, and Sirsa. In Kashmir snow was falling. During the day the depression drifted eastward. Except in North-West India, the general conditions have been unaltered since the previous week. Over the Peninsula pressure has been steadily high over the more central regions and relatively low off both coasts, but particularly off the west coast. The winds have been northerly in the east and easterly in the west, while the only rainfall reported has been one or two light showers on the South Carnatic coast. In North-East India high pressures have held steadily with variable to northerly winds and fine weather.

Temperature—Has been high throughout the greater part of India. In the Punjab, Rajputana, Guzerat, and Central India the warmest period was at the close of the week, when the high temperatures which ordinarily precede the appearance of a depression were sufficiently marked to counterbalance the effect of the light rainfall.

The following table shows the variations of the mean temperature from the normal on each day of the week for the principal provinces of India :—

| Province. | 3rd. | 4th. | 5th. | 6th. | 7th. | 8th. | 9th. | Mean variation of week. |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Burma . . . . | −0·4 | +1·0 | +1·4 | +1·4 | +2·2 | +0·9 | +0·2 | +1·0 |
| Bengal and Assam . . | −1·1 | −1·6 | −1·6 | −0·9 | −0·1 | +1·0 | +1·7 | −0·4 |
| North-Western Provinces and Oudh . . . . | −1·7 | −1·4 | −1·4 | +0·1 | +1·3 | +3·3 | +3·9 | +0·6 |
| Punjab . . . . | −1·1 | −0·3 | +2·3 | +2·2 | +4·1 | +6·5 | +7·1 | +3·0 |
| Bombay . . . . | +2·0 | +2·4 | +1·6 | +0·9 | +1·2 | +1·9 | +1·0 | +1·6 |
| Berar and Central Provinces | +1·0 | +0·3 | −1·2 | −0·4 | −0·3 | +0·9 | +1·7 | +0·3 |
| Guzerat and Central India . | +1·9 | +3·6 | +1·8 | +2·6 | +2·7 | +4·0 | +4·8 | +3·1 |
| Sind and Rajputana . . | +1·3 | +3·3 | +2·3 | +4·0 | +5·1 | +5·5 | +6·2 | +4·0 |
| Madras . . . . | −0·6 | +0·6 | +0·2 | +0·2 | 0 | −0·3 | −0·3 | 0 |
| MEAN FOR WHOLE INDIA. . | +0·1 | +0·9 | +0·6 | +1·1 | +1·8 | +2·6 | +2·9 | +1·4 |

The above figures show that the mean temperature of the whole of India has been above the normal on each day, the excess increasing from only 0·1° on the 3rd to as much as 2·9° on the 9th. The provincial variations show that the mean temperature of Madras for the week exactly equalled the normal, and that in Bengal there was a deficiency of nearly half a degree In all the other provinces there was an excess which was greatest in North-Western India. On the 7th, 8th and 9th the minimum temperatures in North-Western India were exceedingly high.

Rain.—The concluding table shows that the distribution of rainfall has changed somewhat, but that in amount and in extent of country covered there has been hardly any improvement since the preceding week. Rain is reported from eight divisions and fine dry weather from forty-three divisions. The eight divisions reporting rainfall are the six divisions of the Punjab, the East Coast (south) and Madras (south), of which only one, viz., the Punjab (north-west), records an average fall for the week of more than $\frac{1}{10}$ of an inch of rain.

In addition to the above, the Meerut and Garhwal divisions of the North-Western Provinces had a few drops of rain.

There were no heavy falls of rain in any part of the Indian region during the week. In the Punjab the largest total for the week was 1 inch at Jhelum followed by 0·86 inch at Kharian (Gujrat), by 0·44 inch at Wazirabad (Gujranwalla), and by 0·41 inch at Muktsar (Ferozepore). In Southern India one station in Tinnevelly received 1 inch.

With the present week a fresh rainfall period commences, and the percentage values of the seasonal rainfall give the same information as that shown in the third column of the concluding table.

REVENUE AND AGRICULTURAL DEPARTMENT.

Weekly Report on the state of the Season and Prospects of the Crops.

Madras.—For week ending 16th January.—No rain. Agricultural prospects unaltered. Water-supply failing. Pasture dried up, fodder very scarce, and cattle suffering in parts of Nellore, the Deccan districts, and parts of North Arcot and Salem. Prices generally rather easier except in Nellore, Kurnool, and Cuddapah; principal food-grains at or over scarcity rates now only in Kistna, Nellore, Kurnool, Cuddapah, North Arcot, and Chingleput. Numbers on works:—East Coast districts 250, details unknown. South Central—men 1,101, women 2,660, children 731. Works closed in Coimbatore. Deccan districts, men 4,807, women 6,202, children 2,777, besides 1,542 in Cuddapah, for which details unknown; total 20,070 against 22,354 last week. On gratuitous relief: East Coast—men 4, women 35, children 68; South Central—men 34, women 108, children 147; Deccan—men 75, women 128, and children 483. Loans disbursed for construction and repair of wells:—East Coast, R5,69,591, South Central, R2,18,983, and Deccan R80,313. Wells constructed —2,046, 101, and 71, and under construction—3,484, 471, and 649 in respective blocks. Loans under Agriculturists' Loans Act—R32,898, R69,128, and R9,669 respectively. East Coast districts include Nellore, Chingleput, and North Arcot; South Central: Salem and Coimbatore; and Deccan: Cuddapah, Anantapur, Bellary, and Kurnool.

Bombay.—For week ending 20th January.—Slight rain in three talukas of Sind; none elsewhere. Late crops mostly withered, and prospects poor throughout Deccan and Karnatak except Khandesh. Fodder scarce in parts of Sind and seven districts of Deccan and Karnatak. Water insufficient in parts of four districts. People emigrating with their cattle from parts of Sholapur and Bijapur. Cattle also distressed in parts of Sind, Poona, Belgaum, and Dharwar. Prices rising in eight districts; stationary in others. Harvesting of early crops continues in parts of five districts, and cotton-picking in parts of three.

Bengal.—For week ending 19th January.—

General Summary.—There was no rainfall during the week. Weather seasonably cold. In Behar west winds have set in earlier than usual. The harvesting of the winter rice crop is almost over, and the general results are fairly satisfactory throughout the greater part of the province: but in some parts of Behar, Northern Bengal, and Central Bengal the outturn has been very scanty. Rain is generally much wanted for the rabi crops, and without it the unirrigated crops in many parts will be deficient. Poppy and tobacco crops are in good condition, but are in want of rain in some places. Early poppy is flowering, mustard and sugarcane crops generally promise well, and are being harvested in some districts. Cultivation and transplanting of spring rice have begun. Lands are being prepared for bhadoi paddy and jute in parts of the Rajshahye Division. Price of common rice shows a tendency to rise in most of the Behar districts in spite of the appearance of the new crop in the market. Fodder and water-supply is generally sufficient, and cattle are in good condition. As at present reported, there is no fear of any general distress, but relief may be required later in a few localities in the Rajshahye, Bhagulpore, and Patna Divisions. The Dinagepore, Bogra, and Pubna reports show no change in the situation. In Rungpore the locality for which most anxiety is felt is Kurigram, but it is believed that no relief measures will be necessary, as the people there chiefly depend on the aus and jute crops, which did not fail to the same extent as the winter rice. The Rajshahye report shows that there is no cause for anxiety except in parts of Manda and perhaps Lalpore, but the Commissioner is not disposed to believe that any relief will be needed. In Manda, where the greatest failure is reported, rice is selling at 15 seers the rupee. The parts of the Rajshahye Division bordering on Purneah, such as Titaliya in Jalpaiguri and North-Western Dinagepore, have had a very bad crop. In Gya anxiety is chiefly felt for the south of the sudder sub-division and the south centre of Aurungubad, where the bhadoi and rice crops have failed, and the prospects of the rabi are not good. Further reports are awaited from the Bhagulpore Division. The winter rice estimate for the Jamui Sub-division of Monghyr is now put at 4 annas, for North Bhagulpore at about 4 annas, and for the Purneah District generally at 4 to 6 annas.

North-Western Provinces and Oudh.—For week ending 20th January.—Weather cloudy with a few local showers. Rabi crops promise well, but rain is now greatly needed. Prices are generally steady, but show a tendency to rise in four districts.

Punjab.—For week ending 20th January.—Slight rain has fallen in four districts. Prices rising in three districts, fluctuating in two others, and stationary elsewhere. Cotton-picking finished in Mooltan. Rabi sowings completed in Dera Ismail Khan. Condition and prospects of standing crops are generally reported average. Rain is badly wanted throughout the province. Condition of cattle is reported poor in four districts, fair in two others, and good elsewhere. Fodder scarce in seven districts; sufficient elsewhere.

Central Provinces.—For week ending 20th January.—Weather continues cloudy in some districts, but no rain. Prospects of winter crops unaltered. Winnowing of juar, pressing of sugarcane, and picking of cotton continue. Fodder sufficient. Prices rising in one district.

Burma.—For week ending 16th January.—In Lower Burma reaping is nearly completed and threshing and winnowing in progress. Prospects unchanged. UPPER BURMA :—Bhamo—reaping completed in some townships and in progress in others; dry-weather sowings nearly finished. Katha—reaping almost completed Shewbo—kaukkyi and high-land crops nearly all reaped, mayin paddy being transplanted. Sagaing—crops have been reaped in Sagaing and Myinmu sub-divisions. Upper Chindwin—reaping of kaukkyi nearly finished, mayin being transplanted. Ye-u—over one-third an average paddy crop has been reaped in most villages of the Indaing township, elsewhere the outturn is below one-third average. Lower Chindwin—in eastern sub-division jowari and sesamum and in western sub-division paddy, jowari, and sesamum are being reaped; in the eastern sub-division the standing crop of peas is bad, and in the western sub-division wheat, peas, and onions doing fairly well. Myingyan—jowari being reaped everywhere, and in Pagan sesamum and lu being reaped. Pakokku—in Gangaw and Pauk wet-weather paddy has been reaped; the outturn in Gangaw is one-third the average yield, the lu crop prospects are good; in Pauk the area under dry-weather paddy is larger than last year; in Yesagyo, Pakokku sub-division, crop prospects are good. Minbu—Indiancorn being reaped in Sagu township and paddy in Dabwin, Sidoktaya, and parts of Legaing township. Magwe—lu being threshed and jowari reaped ; the outturn of the latter is estimated at 12 annas ; island crops doing well. Kyaukse—kaukkyi being reaped and mayin sowing progressing; the outturn of kaukkyi is estimated at 16 annas. Yamethin—reaping in progress or completed in all circles. Pyinmana—reaping and threshing in progress. The price of paddy has declined in Rangoon, Henzada, Toungoo, Sagaing, Pakokku, Minbu, and Pyinmana, and risen slightly in Magwe. Numbers on relief works:—Ye-u 3,049; Lower Chindwin 1,515; Myingyan 3,600; Minbu 842; Yamethin 3,619; Meiktila, Sagaing, and Magwe not reported.

Assam.—For week ending 20th January.—Slight rain in three districts. Weather fine and seasonable generally, but in Sibsagar partly cloudy and partly fine. Reaping of late rice almost completed and of winter paddy commenced. Gathering of mustard and pressing of sugarcane progressing. Condition of cattle good. Water and fodder sufficient. Jhum clearing in Naga Hills begun.

Mysore and Coorg.—For week ending 20th January.—Mysore:—No rain. Crops generally withering. No material change in prospects and prices. Ordinary public works commenced as reli ef works in Chitaldroog district.

Coorg: Reaping of the rice crop and coffee-picking nearly completed in Coorg. Prices rising. Forage and water for cattle sufficient.

Berar and Hyderabad.—For week ending 20th January.—Weather clear and cool. Picking of cotton and threshing of jowari continues. Rabi crop not in good condition in three districts for want of sufficient moisture. Fodder in one taluk and water in another insufficient. Prices rising in two districts.

No rain in Hyderabad during the week. Harvesting of abi crops continues; sowing of tabi crops commenced. Rabi crops are at present in fair condition. Scarcity of water and fodder for cattle is felt in Amberpet taluka and to some extent in other talukas also. Prices:—wheat 8½, coarse rice 8, white juar 12, yellow juar 14½, and tur 11 seers per current rupee.

Central India.—For week ending 20th January.—Gwalior reports rain insufficient for rabi crops. Condition in other Agencies same as last week.

Rajputana.—For week ending 20th January.—Rainfall slight in Bikanir. Rabi in good condition; one-third area cultivated in Ajmere. Standing crops satisfactory generally. Kharif harvested in Ajmere. Good harvests expected in Sirohi. Cotton, much below average in Kotah; sugarcane, average in Jhallawar. Cattle poor in some States, fairly satisfactory in others, in bad condition in Ajmere, from whence 8,263 cattle are reported to have emigrated during last month. Pasturage or fodder scarce in seven States and at Ajmere and Kherwara. Prices steady in nine States, rising in two, fluctuating in two. Five hundred and fifty-one immigrants and 3,514 cattle entered Kotah during the week. Eight thousand four hundred and sixty-one persons employed on relief works, Ajmere Collectorate; 2,110 gratuitously treated. In Bikanir 2,791 persons on relief works; 807 gratuitously treated.

Nepal.—For week ending 14th January.—Weather fine. Prospects good

REVENUE DEPARTMENT.

[Revised Advertisement.]

A Dictionary of the Economic Products of India.

BY DR. GEO. WATT, C.I.E.,

Reporter on Economic Products

Published under the authority of the Government of India in the Revenue and Agricultural Department.

The first five volumes of the Dictionary are now ready at the Office of Superintendent of Government Printing, No. 8, Hastings Street, Calcutta, and will be supplied to non-subscribers on receipt of the price for the complete set, which is R45 in India, and 3 guineas in England (exclusive of the Index, for which a separate charge will be made): packing and postage, in India, 8 annas per volume; for England, 2 rupees 6 annas per volume. For copies bound in half calf or half morocco, R6 and 8 shillings respectively will be charged extra for the whole set.

The Dictionary is intended to deal with the products of India—animal, vegetable, and mineral; each product being treated after a uniform plan, the paragraphs of which give the scientific, vernacular, and European names; habitat or source; history; properties and uses (both chemical and industrial); trade statistics; markets, etc. The work is arranged alphabetically according to scientific nomenclature, but commercial and important vernacular names are also given as cross references, so that little difficulty need be experienced in finding the account of a product even when its scientific name is unknown to the reader.

An important feature of the Dictionary consists in the fact that derived information is in every instance given under quotation marks, and with a reference to the original publication. Numerous contributors have, however, furnished the results of new discoveries, and confirmed the vernacular names, so that the Dictionary is not only a complete compilation of published information, but has been brought abreast of the most recent inventions and discoveries.

Volume I contains the letters A and B, and consists of 550 royal octavo pages; Volume II embraces the letter C in 689 pages; Volume III contains the letters D, E, F, and half of G; Volume IV, latter half of G to middle of L, and Volume V contains the latter half of L to end of O. The whole work will, it is expected, be completed in seven volumes during the current year, but an eighth volume may also be issued, consisting of an Index to all the vernacular and other names contained in the Dictionary. The Index will practically be a glossary of the vernacular and European names of the plants, animals, and minerals of India, and, as such, will be a work of reference, which, it is hoped, may prove of considerable value.

PART IV.

Acts of the Governor General's Council assented to by the Governor General.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

The following Act of the Governor General of India in Council received the assent of His Excellency the Governor General on the 29th January, 1892, and is hereby promulgated for general information :—

ACT No. II OF 1892.

An Act to validate certain marriages solemnized under Part VI of the Indian Christian Marriage Act, 1872.

WHEREAS provision is made in Part VI of the V of 1872. Indian Christian Marriage Act, 1872, for the solemnization of marriages between persons of whom both are Native Christians, but not of marriages between persons of whom one only is a Native Christian;

And whereas persons licensed under section 9 of the said Act have in divers parts of British India, through ignorance of the law, permitted marriages to be solemnized in their presence under the said Part between persons of whom one is a Native Christian and the other is not a Native Christian;

And whereas it is expedient that such marriages, having been solemnized in good faith, should be validated;

It is hereby enacted as follows :—

Commencement.

1. This Act shall come into force at once.

Definition.

2. In this Act the expression "Native Christian" has the same meaning as in the Indian Chris-
V of 1872. tian Marriage Act, 1872.

Validation of irregular marriages.

3. All marriages which have already been solemnized under Part VI of the Indian Christian
V of 1872. Marriage Act, 1872, between persons of whom one only was a Native Christian, shall be as good and valid in law as if such marriages had been solemnized between persons of whom both were Native Christians:

Provided that nothing in this section shall apply to any marriage which has been judicially declared to be null and void, or to any case where either of the parties has, since the solemnization of such marriage and prior to the commencement of this Act, contracted a valid marriage.

Validation of records of irregular marriages.

4. Certificates of marriages which are declared by the last foregoing section to be good and valid in law, and register-books, and certified copies of true and duly authenticated extracts therefrom, deposited in compliance with the law for the time being in force, in so far as the register-books and extracts relate to such marriages as aforesaid, shall be received as evidence of such marriages as if such marriages had been solemnized between persons of whom both were Native Christians.

Application of Act to marriages under Act V of 1865.

5. References in this Act to the Indian Christian Marriage Act, 1872, shall, so far as may XV of 1872. be requisite, be construed as applying also to the corresponding portions of the Indian Marriage Act, 1865. V of 1865.

Penalty for solemnizing irregular marriages.

6. If any person licensed under section 9 of the said Act to grant certificates of marriage between Native Christians shall at any time after the commencement of this Act solemnize or affect to solemnize any marriage under Part VI of the said Act or grant any such certificate as therein mentioned, knowing that one of the parties to such marriage or affected marriage was at the date of such solemnization not a Christian, he shall be liable to have his license cancelled, and in addition thereto he shall be deemed to have been guilty of an offence prohibited by section 73 of the said Act, and shall be punishable accordingly.

PART V.

Bills introduced into the Council of the Governor General of India for making Laws and Regulations, or Reports of Select Committees presented to the Council.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

The following Report of the Select Committee on the Bill to extend the jurisdiction of the Court of Small Causes of Madras was presented to the Council of the Governor General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 29th January, 1892:—

WE, the undersigned, Members of the Select Committee to which the Bill to extend the jurisdiction of the Court of Small Causes of Madras was referred, have considered the Bill and the papers noted in the margin, and have now the honour to submit this our preliminary Report, with the Bill as amended by us annexed thereto.

Office Memorandum from Home Department, No. 1291, dated 29th September, 1891, and enclosure [Papers No. 1].
Petition of the Inhabitants of Madras, dated 24th September, 1891 [Paper No. 2].
From Chief Secretary to Government, Madras, No. 2040, dated 5th October, 1891, and enclosures [Papers No. 3].
Office Memorandum from Private Secretary to Viceroy, No. 447, dated 4th November, 1891, and enclosure [Papers No. 4].

2. The Bill laid before us is entitled a Bill to extend the jurisdiction of the Court of Small Causes of Madras, but its effect would be to establish a regular side of that Court for the determination of ordinary suits as distinguished from small causes.

3. Some alternative proposals have been made to us by the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill, and we prefer them generally to what has been provided by the original Bill. They have not, however, been considered at Madras; and, although they appear to be in accordance with resolutions passed at a general meeting held in that city, we think it desirable that they be made public, and that we should have the advantage of knowing how far they are accepted by the authorities and by the persons interested before we take them into consideration in detail. These new proposals have accordingly been formulated in a Bill, and we recommend that it be published in the usual course, and that the time appointed for the submission of our final Report be extended.

No. II.

A Bill to establish a Civil Court for the City of Madras.

WHEREAS it is expedient to establish a Civil Court for the City of Madras; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

Title and commencement.

1. (1) This Act may be called the Madras City Civil Court Act, 1892; and (2) It shall come into force at once.

Definitions.

2. In this Act, unless there is something repugnant in the subject or context,—

(1) "High Court" means the High Court of Judicature at Madras:

(2) "Small Cause Court" means the Court of Small Causes of Madras: and

(3) "City of Madras" means such places as are within the local limits for the time being of the ordinary original civil jurisdiction of the High Court.

Constitution of the Madras City Civil Court.

3. The Governor of Fort St. George in Council may, by notification, establish a Court to be called the Madras City Civil Court, with jurisdiction to receive, try and dispose of all suits and other proceedings of a civil nature not exceeding two thousand five hundred rupees in value and arising within the City of Madras, except suits which are cognizable by the High Court as a Court of Admiralty or Vice-Admiralty or as a Colonial Court of Admiralty, or as a Court having testamentary, intestate or matrimonial jurisdiction, or as a Court for the relief of insolvent debtors.

Judge of Civil Court to be Judge of Small Cause Court.

4. (1) Every person appointed a Judge of the Madras City Civil Court shall be, by virtue of his office, a Judge of the Small Cause Court with respect to cases cognizable by that Court.

(2) Every such Judge shall be liable, subject to any directions which may be given by the Local Government and so far as may be consistent with the due discharge of his duties under this Act, to perform any duties of a Judge of the Small Cause Court which the Chief Judge of the Small Cause Court may require him to perform.

Allowance for fees paid in City Civil Court in cases removed to High Court.

5 When, under section 13 of the Letters Patent for the High Court, dated the twenty-eighth day of December, 1866, or under section 25 of the Code of Civil Procedure, XIV of 1882. the High Court has removed for trial by itself any suit from the City Civil Court, fees on the scale for the time being in force in the High Court as a Court of ordinary original civil jurisdiction shall be payable in that Court in respect of the suit and proceedings therein:

Provided that, in the levy of any such fees which according to the practice of the Court are credited to the Government, credit shall be given to the plaintiff in the suit for any fee which in the City Civil Court he has already paid under the Court-fees Act, 1870, on the X of 1870. plaint.

Appeals.

PROCEEDINGS UNDER THE INDIAN MERCHANDISE MARKS ACT, 1889, DURING THE YEAR 1890-91.

No. 23 S., Calcutta, the 27th January 1892.

RESOLUTION—By the Government of India, Finance and Commerce Department.

Read the following reports on the proceedings taken by Customs officials under the Indian Merchandise Marks Act, 1889, during the year 1890-91:—

From the Government of Bengal, No. 3522, dated the 5th August 1891.
From the Government of Bengal, No. 3973, dated the 5th September 1891.
From the Government of Madras, No. 4530 A., dated the 18th August 1891.
From the Chief Commissioner of Burma, No. 187–5 C., dated the 10th October 1891.
From the Government of Bombay, No. 7388, dated the 27th October 1891, and No. 88, dated the 6th January 1892.

RESOLUTION.—The reports have not been rendered with the punctuality which is desirable, and the local Governments should be requested to expedite their submission in future so that they may be before the Government of India by the 1st of August.

2. There were altogether during the year 1,133 cases of detention under the Merchandise Marks Act, of which 666, being nearly 59 per cent. of the whole, were under clause (f) of section 10, sub-section (2) of the Act, which requires all piece-goods to be stamped with their length. There were 332 cases of counterfeit trade marks or false trade descriptions, and 135 cases of non-description of foreign origin.

3. The following table shows for each of the chief ports the number of detentions under the Act :—
